SUMMARY.

Dr. Daneff declares Adrianople and the Aegean Islands must be surrendered or negotiations will be broken off.

Reshid Pasha stated that Turkey did not intend to face such losses.

The conference of ambassadors of the Great Powers has resumed its sittings.

As the conference has recognised the principle of Albanian autonomy, three Albanian delegates have arrived to arrange details.

Similarly vigorous preparations are evident in Servia, and 80,000 additional men have been summoned for service.

Further Turkish attacks at Janina were repulsed by the Greeks and an artillery duel is progressing.

Mr. Asquith's hint of an appeal to the country, and Mr. Bonar Law's reply, have aroused much comment.

Ministerial s regard the statements as merely debating points.

A prediction is made that the next election will be fought on the franchise question.

The Franchise Bill will be considered in committee by the Commons in the last week of this month.

In all 11,000 drivers are affected by the taxi-cab strike which has now spread to Liverpool.

Herr von Bethmann Hollweg, Imperial Chancellor, represented the Emperor.

Sir Percy Scott's fire director has been adopted by the Admiralty for all Dreadnoughts in the navy.

An official estimate of the spoils of the Turco-Italian war amounts to £2,500,000, including £250,000 in cash.

Thibetans attacked Chinese troops at Hsiang Chang and gained a victory.

Three hundred Chinese were killed and six machine guns captured.

Mr. Holman was entertained at Fremantle by Mr. Scaddan. Sir Gerald Strickland was present at luncheon.

The Attorney-General said he had definitely decided to return to Australia in May next.

The candidates of all three parties addressed the final meeting at Blayney on Thursday.

In Blayney the first vote recorded was in favour of Mr. Withington.

It was recently hinted that Mr. Waddell favoured the third party.

Mr. Waddell denies that he has changed his position, and will deliver an address at Carcoar.

Early yesterday it became evident that Mr. Withington was more than holding his own.

Labour appeared to be doing distinctly better, and the Independents worse, than had been expected.

Eventually, however, Mr. Withington came first, Mr. Beeby second, and Mr. Johnston third.

The position on the South Coast at present is not such as to inspire confidence.

Miners demand to know whether the associated coal-owners endorse the Mount Kembla Company's action.

A deputation waited on Mr. Carmichael yesterday regarding the Russell case.

Mr. Carmichael said he could give no definite statement until he had Judge Scholes's report.

If he could do anything for industrial peace he would have no hesitation in acting promptly.

Several mines in the Maitland district will be idle on Monday, owing to an aggregate meeting being held.

The question of afternoon shifts will be the subject of discussion.

According to the president of the Employees' Federation, there is no need for more than eight hours from bank to bank.

Professor Baldwin Spencer arrived at Brisbane from the Northern Territory on Thursday.

For 12 months he has been on special commission from the Federal Government regarding the aborigines.

He was struck by the possibilities of the country, and also by its present emptiness.

Yesterday the annual meeting of the State (Shipping) Wages Board was held at Selborne-chambers.

A preliminary discussion took place regarding the dispute between the Merchant Guild and various shipping companies.

On the whole an optimistic feeling prevailed.

The Premier yesterday contrasted the general prosperity prevailing with the predictions of the Government's critics.

He said that no one was poorer as the result of Labour rule, and a good many people were better off.

Colonel Wallace is investigating the organisation of the engineering services of the Defence Department.

To bring this branch into line with the new defence policy would involve adopting a decentralisation policy.

Senator Pearce, Minister for Defence, announced Colonel Wallace's movements yesterday.

On Tuesday the Australasian Association for the Advancement of Science will meet in Melbourne.

Professor David will deliver the inaugural address, and Sir John Fuller will take the chair.

From 400 to 500 members are expected to attend.

His companion, who had left the spot for a moment, narrowly escaped sharing his fate.

Fierce gales were encountered by the steamer Swi... on her voyage from England to Australia.

The after framing was badly strained, and four of the frames fractured.

Repairs costing about £1600 are being carried out in Melbourne.

The United Irish League, Tasmania, cabled a protest against the appointment as Governor of Mr. Ellison Macartney.

The cable was sent to Mr. John Redmond. Protests were sent also to the Prime Minister and Mr. Lloyd George.

The Sydney Stock Exchange will resume operations next Monday, after an adjournment since December 24.

Sellers have been forced to throw away large quantities, for which no sale could be found.

The market for cornsacks was very excited yesterday, and a further advance of 3d was registered.

Wheat was unchanged yesterday at 3/6½ for spot parcels and 3/6½ for special delivery.

January-February-March shippers were on the basis of 3/6½ ex trucks Sydney.

The depression in the Sussex-street egg market still continues, owing to heavy supplies.

Potatoes were in steady demand yesterday, but holders were content with £6 a ton.

HUDSON'S EUMENTHOL TOOTH POWDER

SECURES SOUND WHITE TEETH.

This Powder is not only an Antiseptic and Germicide, but cleanses mechanically, owing to the evolution of free active oxygen when the powder is in contact with water or the oral fluids. It is the oxygen which, by neutralising the acid-producing organisms of decay, and dissolving mucho-tous deposits, whitens the teeth so wonderfully, and wards off decay as no other preparation for the Teeth can or will do. Scientists agree that a powder is superior to any liquid or paste for cleansing and preserving the Teeth. The Committee of the British Dental Association recommend powder as best for the teeth.

HUDSON'S EUMENTHOL TOOTH POWDER

WINTER FLOWERING SPENCER, SWEET PEA.

CHAPTER I.

TELLS OF THE OPENING OF A DOOR.

There was a patch of sunlight on the threshold, coming and going as the fleecy clouds swept across the afternoon sky. It made me think of those happy little bursts of laughter which a child will give. I was conscious of it as I finished reading the letter which had been handed to me only an hour ago.

"You should certainly return at once," the letter concluded, and by way of disagreement I muttered an oath. So far I had ordered my own affairs, taking advice of none, and if I had found strange places and come into queer company, what was that to anyone? I had asked no favours, and owed no man anything. It is a fool's game to let others guide your life for you; with the best intentions they are sure, sooner or later, to bring you into the shallows, may perchance make wreckage of you altogether. I drank the remains of the liquor in a tankard which stood on the rough table beside me, and stared out of the open door across the barrack yard.

In the covered way along the opposite wall a score or more of men were gaming and drinking, laughing or cursing as the cards or the dice fell in their favour or otherwise; while one burly fellow, whose liquor seemed to have gone to his head instead of his stomach, was straddling on a barrel set on end and roaring out a ribald ditty, first chanted, I should fancy, on a Paris boulevard. These were representative of a godless crew, these fellows, recruited from almost every capital in Europe, and their native land was probably the richer for having seen the last of them. So long as a man had the physique for the work, few questions were asked when he joined the King's Guard, and if he did that work satisfactorily, small notice was taken of anything else he might do. It was a company of broken-down gentlemen, spendthrifts, ne'er-do-wells, and criminals who had fled from justice; a company feared by every respectable citizen, and without its counterpart, I warrant, though the search began at Lisbon and ended at Petersburg. Oh, I sat in no harsh judgment on these fellows; how could I? I was of the King's Guard myself.

This letter, with its advice to return at once, raked up the ashes of a sordid story which shall not find repetition here. I had done with it, although I could not obliterate the marks it had left upon my character. Were you to make inquiry, you might hear a tale in Devonshire which would persuade you to have as little of my acquaintance as possible. Compounded by my relations, a heap of lies savoured with a modicum of truth, the tale might convince you that I was little short of a criminal. Well, when the crisis came I said no word in my defence, and I will not plead my cause now. Enough that there was a woman in the background, as there always is and will be to the end of time, and for her sake I was silent. Had she refused the sacrifice I should have remained in England, and should have lived a life which would not have been worth the chronicling; as it was I went under. Wandering abroad, I drifted into Saxe-Oldenburg to Dravstadt, the capital, and became Trooper Heselton, of the King's Guard. I was no hero, nor can I claim that I set my comrades any very exalted example.

It is well to be honest, and there is no temptation to be otherwise, for I care not a snap of the fingers for your praise or blame. You must take me as I am or not at all. I hated the smug people who had dealt out injustice to me, and had it been possible to revenge myself I should have done so. This satisfaction being out of my power, I just let myself go. It was easy in Dravstadt, and the company in which I found myself. Social instincts were at a discount, and primitive passions had their way. We of the Guard were looked upon as a set of hard-drinking, devil-may-care scoundrels, and to label a man in this fashion helps to make a scoundrel of him. There is always a tendency to live up to the world's estimate, or down to it, and most of us found the downward process easy enough.

You might also have heard in Devonshire that few men rode straighter than I; that for muscle I matched a famous local blacksmith who had whipped every stalwart yokel in the neighbourhood; and that I was credited with being absolutely fearless. I have accepted without denial the evil said of me; I will not deny these qualities. They had done me good service in Dravstadt. In the Guard might was the only master, and a well-directed blow was often the only argument possible. Such arguments had earned for me the respect of my fellows, and I had recently been promoted to second in command. If some jealousy were occasioned I fancy the men, as a body, would as soon have followed me into a charge as they would anyone.

The perusal of this letter had set me thinking of the past. Here was a sudden and unexpected link with the old country, and it would have been strange indeed if some regret had not touched me. "You should certainly return at once." The sentence sang in my ears like the refrain of an old song. I smelt the incense of a Devonshire lane in early summer, and heard the night roar of Piccadilly. I wasted no sentiment on my relations—they were not worth it—nor on the woman for whose sake I had kept silent. She had never been anything more to me than a friend I trusted, and she had played with me and deceived me for her own ends. Still, I could not help comparing what I had lost in England with what I had gained in Dravstadt, and this call to return was not to be lightly ignored.

I sat looking at the patch of sunlight flickering on the threshold; its laughter had a message for me, while the letter seemed to mark the day a special one in my existence, a day for starting a new enterprise, or a new life perchance. I was at cross roads, and must decide which way to take.

Suddenly there was a roar of laughter, mingled with oaths, in the yard. I saw several men in the covered way opposite leave their gambling and hurry in the direction of the gateway, which I could not see from my position. I did not move; it was not policy to interfere in a quarrel. A few blows would do no harm, would do no more than let out a little suppressed energy; even a broken limb could be mended in the barrack hospital. Then came a girl's cry, and slipping the letter into my pocket, I went out. Any woman who came into the barrack yard was a fool, and deserved little sympathy, but I must find out what was happening.

In the midst of a dozen men was a girl—some serving wench. She was struggling to escape from their embraces, endeavouring to keep rude hands from flinging back the hood which concealed her face, and her cry was one of indignation rather than one of fear.

"The toll is a kiss for every man who thinks you worth it," shouted a great German, and as he stooped to take the fee by force he received a very pretty smack across the cheek which brought a colour into his face that he had never managed to get there by blushing.

I laughed, the payment was so prompt and unexpected, but in another moment I saw that the affair was likely to take a serious turn. The girl's action, instead of touching the humour in her persecutors, had raised the devil in them. Far from laughing at their comrade's discomfiture, the fellows took it into their heads to resent the blow as an insult to them all, and were determined to have their way with the girl. Rough hands were laid on her, and in another moment she would have been helpless amongst them.

"Stand back!" I shouted, running across the yard and using my weight and shoulders to thrust the men aside. "The girl has given you an answer, and put her sign manual to it on Max's face. Leave her alone."

"She's our prize, and I'll have my kiss," said a Frenchman, with an oath, and to do him justice he did his best to make it no idle boast.

Discipline was not easily enforced in the Guard, and except on duty, the men showed small respect for an officer. I used the only argument which I knew would be effectual, and knocked the man down.

"Maybe there are some in Dravstadt who like your kisses; go to them," I said. "Is there anyone else who objects to the girl passing untouched? Now's his time to say so."

The Frenchman picked himself up and swore, but no one came within reach of my arm.

"You are a fool to come here," I said to the girl, "and the sooner you are out of it the better."

As I turned with her toward the gate, the trooper who sat on the upturned barrel, and who had not left the covered way, roared with laughter.

"The girl catches Heselton's fancy," he shouted, "and you have let him take her, you idiots. By all the saints, if I didn't prefer wine to women, I'd just step across myself and dispute possession with him."

Truth to tell, a dispute with him when he was sober was no light matter. I knew by experience, and though I had managed to get the best of the fight, I had carried the marks of it about with me for days. No one seemed disposed to take his place in such an undertaking, so I did not answer him.

"Thank you," said the girl as she walked beside me towards the gate.

"Why did you come?" I asked.

"I am new to Dravstadt. I thought I could reach the palace this way."

"The palace!"

Bitter experience had made me distrust all women, and I was very sure that serving maids in Dravstadt were as full of intrigue as a ripe orange is of juice, and would lie easily. But this girl puzzled me. I noted her feet as she walked beside me. There is much character in a foot. I always look at a woman's, and partly judge her that way. Though the girl's boots were somewhat cobbled affairs, rough and heavily made, and square in the toe, her ankles were trim, and as daintily turned as any man could wish to see. I had had no glimpse of her face; indeed, she had contrived to hold the hood of her cloak so closely about her in the barrack yard that it was certain Max, who had felt the weight of her hand, would not recognise her again if he met her in the street.

Of all the garments I know the hooded cloak worn by the women of the poorer sort in Dravstadt was the most hideous. It successfully concealed any beauty of line or limb its wearer might possess; Venus herself would have looked squat and ill-formed in it; and the hood, which projected from the head, was so full and loose that at the wearer's will it could be drawn down to hide the face altogether.

"Yes, the palace," she answered. "Does it seem wonderful that a great lady should have a serving maid like me?"

"Very wonderful," I returned, for in looking at me as she asked the question the hood partly slipped from her head, and I caught a glimpse of red lips and rounded chin. In an instant she had drawn the hood into its place again.

"Will you not show me how I can reach the palace?" she said.

We had passed out of the yard, and had turned into an alley between two high walls, the barrack on one side of us, the King's garden on the other.

"There is a small door I can open for you. I have the key."

"You must be a person of some importance to be entrusted with a key into the King's private garden."

"An officer in the Guard, that is all."

"It is something, is it not?" she asked. experienced just now. Women do not easily trust themselves with men of the Guard, and if your face is as beautiful as your ankle is trim, you might easily tempt these fellows beyond their powers of resistance. You will be wise in future not to mistake the barrack gate for an entrance to the palace."

"Not one of those brutes saw my face," she said indignantly, and then with a musical ripple of laughter she went on: "You saw more of it than any of them when this hood slipped just now, and you resisted temptation."

"I should not know you if I saw you again," I answered.

I thought there was a challenge in her tone, and I took her to be a coquette at heart. I expected her to fling back the hood; I warrant most women would have done so, but she did not.

"Besides, I have no great liking for women," I added a little contemptuously, and with some disappointment, too, perhaps.

"At least you prove that all the men of the Guard are not scoundrels. I have been told they are."

"I thought you said you were new to Dravstadt?"

"Oh, that is one of the first things a mistress tells her maid when she comes to the capital."

"This is the door," I said, fitting the key into the lock. "I have no right to open it for such as you, so a still tongue may save me from censure presently."

"I shall be dumb. An officer in the Guard might reasonably consider a serving maid fair quarry, especially when he had just rescued her from insult. She thanks you for your courtesy. If you will, you may kiss her hand."

I laughed at her impudence, but from the ample folds about her a hand was thrust out to me, white and shapely, with never a sign of toil in it, while one foot peeped from under that horrible cloak. The attitude was graceful, and a little imperious. A strange serving maid to have such a hand and foot.

I swept the hat from my head and raised her hand to my lips.

"I am only human; you must not tempt me too far," I said.

She laughed, and ran lightly along the garden path, not hesitating which way she should take. Evidently she knew the King's garden well.

I closed and locked the door.

"You should certainly return at once." The sentence was in my brain as I went slowly back to the barrack yard, but the call was not so strong as it had been an hour ago. I was suddenly aware that I wanted to remain in Dravstadt.

DE QUINCEY'S WRITINGS.

SOME NEW DISCOVERIES.

Dr. William E. A. Axon read a paper a few weeks ago before the Royal Society of Literature, London, on "The Canon of De Quincey's Writings with reference to some of his Unidentified Articles." After referring to the different editions of De Quincey's works, all of them incomplete, Dr. Axon turned to the main purpose of his paper, some new identifications. The earliest separate publication of De Quincey was a pamphlet occasioned by the effort made in 1818 by the Whigs, with Brougham as their candidate, to break down the electoral ascendancy of the Lowther family in Westmorland. Brougham was denounced by De Quincey as a parasite, a scribbler in reviews, a libeller, and those who listened to him were snobs and blackguards. The concluding passage of the pamphlet could be taken as a confession of faith of a sincere and convinced Tory of a hundred years ago.

An article which he thought showed the unmistakable madk of the Opium Eater, was "The Somnambulist," which appeared in "Knight's Quarterly" in 1824, and was a farcical story. The article on "Animal Magnetism," which appeared in "Tait's Magazine" in 1834, was certainly written by De Quincey, and aimed at giving English readers some fresh information on the subject of Mesmer. The unknown contributions to "Blackwood" had been identified for the first time by the late Mr. Blackwood. They comprised about 30 articles, and ranged from 1826 to 184 being for the most part on political subjects, and giving a further view of the author as a politician.

Whoever wished to understand De Quincey as a party politician and as a political economist would find rich material in these articles. He was sometimes perfervid in his denunciations but there was certainly historic value in the expression of the feelings of a highly-educated Tory on some of the great events from the period of Catholic Emancipation to that of the impending downfall of the Corn Laws De Quincey springing from a family of the shopkeeping and commercial classes, was yet an aristocrat to his finger-tips but unlike some aristocrats of his time, he had a sincere sympathy for the troubles of the poor and a deep sense of the sordid tragedy and deprivation of the many lives that were spent in a ceaseless and often fruitless struggle to keep the wolf outside the cottage doors. There was reason, he thought, to believe that further writings of De Quincey might yet come to light.

ANNANDALE SEAT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In your issue of 28th ult. under above heading, Mr. Whiting, president of the Annandale P.L.L., says he has no recollection of having resigned his membership. Permit me to say that there is no necessity for his resignation as member. The P.L.L. rules provide that a member must reside in the electorate, and Mr. Whiting being non-resident (having removed to Marrickville), forfeits his membership of the Annandale branch. Mr. Whiting resigned the office of president at the beginning of November last (the first Tuesday), and his resignation was not only accepted, but two gentlemen were nominated for the office (and accepted by Mr. Whiting), when a resolution was carried that a vice-president officiate until the annual elections, which take place on Tuesday next, January 7. I say most emphatically that the alleged deputation was not deputed by the Annandale League to wait upon Mr. Griffith, and the action of the gentlemen named by your paper as having waited on the Minister will be challenged by the Annandale branch at their next meeting, when they will have to answer some pertinent questions on the subject. The alleged deputation consisted of nine gentlemen, who appeared to be moved by personal prejudice, after a systematic canvass of the members of the Annandale P.L.L. Mr. Whiting sarcastically refers to my dual position as Labour candidate and secretary of the Master Farriers' Association. My position is just as consistent as Mr. Whiting's, who professes to be a Labour man, and is employed by a firm in the city, or any other Labour man who has to depend on the employer of labour for his living. I would like to point out to Mr. Whiting that I held my present position when I was selected by a 3 to 1 majority 12 months ago to carry Labour's banner in the forthcoming election, and was an employer of labour when I was the Labour candidate against Mr. Bruntnell, in 1910, when I put up the best fight in the Labour interest since Mr. Mahony's election 19 years ago. These alleged strong men could not be induced to take Annandale on, and, after sacrificing my business and money, and proving that, on the 1910 election figures, I can win easily under the new electoral boundaries, Mr. Griffith and others are prepared to take a risk and rob me of my just rights, and I intend to fight for justice to the bitter end.

I am, etc.,
G. M. DAVIDSON.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

AN OUTPOST OF EMPIRE.

In Australia the prospector in the north-west, or the dweller in the Never-Never, enjoys a lot of almost complete loneliness, yet it is questionable whether anywhere in Australia is so far removed from the walks of men as Central Africa. In Australia one can always count upon the horse or camel, if not the coach, to shorten distances. In places like Nyassa land shank's pony alone can take the owner through the narrow jungle paths, or in very favourable circumstances a litter carried by native bearers. Their nearest neighbour often three weeks' journey away from them; "rail head" six weeks; with mails at irregular and infrequent intervals; with the noble savage for their sole associate, some of the commissioners in the British African territories must surely be the loneliest men in the wide world. Yet that they bear their lot with cheerfulness, and even manage to enjoy it, is shown by such a book as "An African Year," by Cullen Gouldsbury.

Mr. Gouldsbury was stationed not far from Lake Tanganyika, and in his wife he had a most faithful partner in his joys and sorrows. This book he describes as simply the record of their everyday life. He divides it into chapters, each corresponding to a month, and in each he tells of the various little incidents which go to make up the works and days of the King's representative in the outposts of Empire. In Equatorial Africa the seasons are not divided into hot and cold, for it is always hot, but into wet and dry. During the rains the author and his wife remain at home at the official residence, and devote much labour and resource to keeping the water from coming through the roof; they also suffer at intervals from "Africitis," an acute, if never fatal, disease endemic in Central Africa, which corresponds to "the hump" elsewhere. In the dry seasons they travel round their wide dominions dispensing itinerant justice. Our sympathies go out to the author, but even more to Mrs. Gouldsbury, who sees only about four white women in the course of a year, and who in the most difficult circumstances displays an adaptability and a faculty of making the best of it little short of heroic.

It must not be supposed that this book stresses the hardships. Indeed, they are usually described as something exquisitely humorous, and Mr. Gouldsbury concerns himself principally with his everyday work. We are told how he settles the disputes of the natives, and how divorce is the principal matter in which the assistance of the law is invoked. Big game-shooting is described, and whatever be its shortcomings in other respects, Central Africa is paradise for the sportsman with elephant, lion, leopard, buffalo, rhinoceros, hippopotamus, and smaller fry too numerous to mention. We are told how the commissioner must continually be on his guard against caravans of Swahili smugglers, on their way from German East Africa to the Congo, who are objectionable for two reasons. They defraud the Customs revenue, and they are apt to spread the infection of the sleeping sickness.

Mr. Gouldsbury was stationed in an area where that scourge was endemic, and his account of the methods taken to extirpate it is interesting:—"The whole division is a huge quarantine ground. A line has been drawn across the northern portion of the map, and at each village along this line are stationed native messengers, whose duty it is to see that no one passes into or out of the area without a pass. Inside the area are some 60 villages, with a total population—men, women, and children—of, roughly, 12,000. There for the present they must remain—until either the repressive measures have been crowned with success, and the fly disappears or becomes beyond all manner of doubt incapable of transmitting infection, or until the disease spreads beyond the borders of the area, and further quarantine is useless. The former result cannot be expected for some years to come; the latter is vastly improbable, since in this country, at least, the disease makes but slow progress. So the official sits on his station and patrols his border, and the natives (long ago reconciled to the new conditions) cultivate peaceably, are born, and many die, and probably do not understand in the least why anyone should pity them. Certainly they do not speculate upon the future."

Periodically there is a general "round up" in each village, and every one is examined and his blood tested to see if there are germs. A consequence of the sleeping sickness is that Britain has lost much valuable trade by which Germany profits. Since the Glossina palpalis, the fly that carries the disease, is found near water, all water has so far as possible been put out of bounds. The British shores of Tanganyika and Nyassa, once the centre of an important inland shipping trade, are now deserted, and the fleet, the good ships Cecil Rhodes, Livingstone, Morning Star, and Good News, are rotting away. The Germans, however, whose views on the subject appear to be different, have no such scruples, and they have boats plying up and down, with excellent results to the pockets of the Fatherland.

Even in Equatorial Africa life is not without its social amenities. On Empire Day the great shooting match takes place at "the metropolis;" on this particular 24th of May it filled up rapidly, and almost reached its own record of population—17 white people in the town at once. This represents the white population of a district of 30,000 square miles, and every year they shoot for the Empire Rifle Cup as others are doing on the same day in England, and Australia, and in evey other part of the Empire, no matter how remote. Then there are occasional visits to a White Father's mission hidden away in the jungle, where they enjoy French cooking, such unusual dainties as the genuine pot au feu, and all manner of curious liqueurs which French ingenuity extracts from guavas and wild honey, also cultured conversation upon literary and artistic matters, more to be expected in a Paris salon than in darkest Africa. There are visits, besides, to the stations in German East Africa, and Mr. Gouldsbury draws interesting comparisons between the methods of colonisation of the two nations.

The German officer in the Colonial Service is an extremely good fellow, devoid of the stiffness and arrogance said to characterise his home-staying brother. But the typical Teutonic atmosphere remains. "Where we employ 20 civil police, he scatters Soudanese soldiers broadcast over the landscape. He shrouds his fighting men in unpleasing puttees, ponderous khaki uniforms, and unprepossessing neck-flaps to protect them from their own well beloved sun. On the other hand, he sees to it that every man of his black fighting force has an up-to-date rifle, and is taught to use it by constant practice on the ranges, with which every station is equipped; while by dint of unremitting route marches and incessant parades, he ensures that his army shall understand at least the rudimentary notions of automatic discipline and soldierly endurance." Everywhere is the German formalism and rigidity; everything is provided for by a multitude of regulations, and the light-hearted son of the soil has to make his conduct conform to all manner of bylaws. Mr. Gouldsbury contrasts this ironbound code of management with the more casual methods of the British, where more is left to the individual and less to the system. Which in the long run will prove most efficient? "At present we are in the ascendant. We have a reputation for being capable of intelligent and successful colonisation. Perhaps in the future it will appear that the sledge hammer policy is the better of the two, and the German Central African of the 21st century may find that his only chance of not being improved altogether off the face of the globe will be in attending Gymnasia and Real Schule, and embracing the principle of compulsory and universal military service." Altogether it is a most interesting book, which not only gives a picture of life at the outposts of civilisation, but also includes suggestive discussion of many Central African problems. (Published by Edward Arnold.)

THE LETTERS OF LORD BURGHERSH.

It is doubtful whether there are many people who could say exactly who and what Lord Burghersh was, yet in his day he occupied a position of some importance. He was the son of the Earl of Westmorland, entered the army in 1803 at the age of 19, fought in the Hanoverian campaign two years later, and was assistant adjutant-general in Sicily and Egypt. He went through the Peninsular war as aide-de-camp to Wellington, and was with the allies in their triumphant entry into Paris in 1814. He gradually rose higher in the service, and died a general, but it is as a diplomatist that he owns his principal title to fame. He was British Resident at Florence when Napoleon was imprisoned in Elba, and as the nearest British official Lord Burghersh was the channel through which correspondence relating to this illustrious captive passed. Later as Ambassador at Berlin he had opportunities of meeting distinguished people, and his musical gifts won him the entree into circles to which his official position alone would not have given him the key.

His letters have now been edited and published by his granddaughter, Mrs. Rachel Weigall, and while they do not contain anything of sensational importance they are interesting, especially to lovers of the minutiae of history, who like to know what goes on behind the scenes of diplomacy and la haute politique. There is an account of an interview with Napoleon, in which the latter indulges in some frank criticism of contemporary monarchs and matters, and makes no secret of his abortive design to invade England. "He says," to quote from the letter, "that it was sincerely his intention to have attempted it, which was only prevented by repeated disobedience of orders on the part of Admiral Villeneuve—in the first place by unnecessary waste of time in the West Indies; in the next place by going to Vigo and Cadiz instead of proceeding directly up the Channel to protect the flotilla in its passage across from Boulogne to the coast of Kent. He only required that his fleet should obtain the superiority in that part of the coast for one week, in order to obtain which he had despatched Villeneuve's fleet to the West Indies, thereby to draw away so great a portion of the British fleets in quest of him that there would not be a sufficient force to oppose him for that space of time upon his return." Luckily for England, she possessed a naval commander fully equal to the situation, and at Trafalgar Nelson toppled over this amiable design like a house of cards.

There is another little story characteristic of both its personages. "The Bourbons," he writes, "are behaving very foolishly in trying to lower the Duke of Wellington. I hear the Duc de Berri said Wellington could never be a great man because he is a parvenu. The Duke of Wellington told this story himself at a large dinner of Castlereagh's, so it must be true." One can imagine with what gusto the grim old aristocrat would relate it. Altogether, there is much in these pages to interest, and, while there is also a good deal of no particular importance Mrs. Weigall has done well to rescue the letters from oblivion. (John Murray; George Robertson.)

EUGENICS WISE AND OTHERWISE.

Eugenics is a science which perhaps more than any other should pray to be delivered from its friends. Some advanced spirits make its name the pretext for making men and women on much the same principles which guide the successful squatter or dairy farmer in improving his stock. Others would make matrimony a Government department, subject to the most rigid official supervision, and before a human being entered upon the blessed state he or she would have to provide certificates for the benefit of the State physician, the State historian, the State statistician, the State economist, and others whose name is legion. Indeed the true lover's knot would be tied with red tape.

As a matter of fact Eugenics is none of these things. It is the recognition of a very evident principle. It is a practical commentary on the laws of heredity and of environment. It aims at a superman, but knowing that there is no royal road to perfection tries rather to improve the race gradually than to recreate it at one fell swoop. The Eugenist by no means always takes upon himself the responsibility of depriving anyone of the right of parentage—for history has shown how often scientifically unsound parents have produced offspring whose works have been glorious if not their days. He aims merely at putting potential parents on the way to a proper conception of their duties in what is after all the most important function of mankind.

This is a long introduction, but it is practically the lesson enforced by Dr. G. W. Saleeby's "Woman and Womanhood." The author is a well-known writer upon medical-sociological subjects, and in this he has laid down precepts for the improvement of the race so far as the human female parent (to put it in its most bald and scientific way) is concerned. Dr. Saleeby thinks that a rational and systematic preparation for motherhood is half the problem Eugenists have to solve. The other half is the rational and systematic preparation for fatherhood, and for this hitherto prophets have appeared in plenty. Dr. Saleeby deals with the whole problem of feminine education, physical and mental, in an extremely sensible fashion. Some of his chapters might shock the early Victorian, but there is not a single one that to-day a child not only might read but should read. Indeed, the author has shown excessive delicacy in his explicit rejection of certain terms to which not the most prudish could take exception. (Published by Heinemann and Co.).

CARDINAL DE RICHELIEU.

A complete life of Richelieu, as Miss Eleanor C. Price observes in her monograph upon the famous Cardinal, "would mean the history of France for more than 50 years, and the history of Europe for more than 20." He is one of the most remarkable figures in the annals of his country, or, indeed, of any country. Statesman, ecclesiastic, patron of Art and Letters, arbiter elegantiarum, there were few interests in life which he did not touch, and still fewer in which he did not think himself supreme. He was lucky in that he was born at a time when there was peculiar scope for a man of personality and power in France; that he was much more than lucky is shown by the way in which he grasped the opportunity. Louis XIII. was a weak and somewhat futile individual; Richelieu adroitly managed him so that, while observing the semblance of submission to the Royal will, he actually exercised supreme authority. As Montesquieu remarked: "The Cardinal made Louis XIII. play the second part in the government of France, and the first part in that of Europe." He broke the power of the old feudal aristocracy, but he was no democrat. What he took from the noblesse he gave to the Crown, and whether or not he believed in the theory of the Divine right, he certainly believed that he was the divinely-appointed agent to build the throne on a securer foundation. His dying boast, "I have no enemies other than those of the State; I leave his Majesty exalted, and all his foes abased," was justified in the latter particular. Altogether his was a remarkable personality, and Miss Price has given us an excellent biography of one whose monument in the Sorbonne Peter the Great apostrophised thus: "Ah, mighty man, if thou wert still alive I would give thee one half of my kingdom to teach me to govern the other." (Published by Methuen and Co.)

WHAT TO EAT.

Science has a Pauline disregard for days and seasons, or else just at this moment we should judge the publishers (Edward Arnold) and the author (Major M'Cay) of "The Protein Element in Nutrition" guilty of something like malice prepense. But a glance at the very severe volume, which is one of the "International Medical Monographs," convinces us that those concerned were not having a joke at the expense of the Christmas turkey or the new year—what is it that ill-advised persons eat at the new year? Dr. Leonard Hill is the general editor of a really interesting and valuable series. It has been said that the invention of new diseases is one of the distinctive triumphs of modern times, and nearly all the diseases mentioned in this series are quite up to date, though a few of them, which are unfortunately quite genuine, are of the kind that we have always with us, and that seem to baffle both the physician and the physicist. Major M'Cay, who belongs to Calcutta, writes about the amount of meat diet required for successful nutrition; needless to say a very vexed question. There are those who believe in meat—and a great deal of it—three times a day, and the Major is himself a believer in a high protein rate. As against those who pin their faith to a handful of rice and a lettuce leaf he is able to draw upon an extensive experience of life in India, particularly among the prison population, and he decides that that sort of thing is a mistake. He is thus opposed incidentally to the eminent views of Dr. Chittenden. Indeed, perhaps "incidentally" is a wrong word, for he seems to have always Dr. Chittenden in his mind, and will have none of the latter's greatly reduced protein dietary. The meat-lover and the butcher may therefore be strongly recommended to his pages, and they will find there ample justification for their existence. Dr. M'Cay's argument is really a sound one. He says, in effect, that as we do not know precisely what the body wants it is better to give it too much than too little, and amongst the mysteries of nutrition he appositely quotes the production of beri-beri by feeding upon rice, deprived of certain of its outer layers. India gives a most useful practical study of this problem, inasmuch as there is a vast population to work on, and while some tribes get plenty of protein diet, others hardly ever see anything in the shape of meat. The author's observations lead him to the conclusion that the former are superior in every respect. The general conclusion he arrives at thus is that the views held by the older writers on nutrition are sounder than those of the younger generation of feeding experts. He is certainly able to bring forward plenty of evidence of the ill-effects of chronic underfeeding, and the evidence by reason of its source is of a novel and very interesting kind. We do not remember coming across a more readable book on its subject, and though we should not like to offend those who believe in no breakfast and an annual fast of 40 days, we must say that he seems to make out a very good case. The book is really an important contribution to our knowledge of body metabolism, and the author has evidently a full knowledge of the literature of the subject. One good point he makes is that protein in the process of digestion almost completely ceases to be "meat"—so that vegetarians may really eat as much turkey as they like with a clear conscience. By a very little casuistry, after reading Dr. M'Cay, they have it in their power to convince themselves that they have not eaten meat at all. For what is it that eats? Certainly not the stomach. In the last resort it is the body cells that eat, and by the time it reaches them the protein is protein no longer. We may add that for his part, although the author does not neglect the very complex chemistry of the proteids, he is quite intelligible to the layman, and his illustrations are very striking.

RECENT FICTION.

In "Mary in the Market" Mr. H. Maxwell plunges us at once into a sufficiently startling atmosphere. Miss Mary Drummond is retiring to bed in her sleeping compartment in the Transcontinental express, when a breathless fugitive suddenly bursts in, and remarking that he has just killed three victims, produces a wedding ring, puts it on Mary's finger, suggests that she should pass as his wife when they come to the frontier. He has everything ready from the marriage certificate to the passports, and Mary is partly persuaded, partly compelled to do as he asks. They cross the frontier in safety, and when she is asleep, her pseudo-husband disappears, leaving behind him a card and a signet ring, from which it appears that he is the "Marquis of Arden." However, Mary's adventures are only beginning. There is a railway smash, in which everyone is killed but herself, and she is carried off unconscious to her newly-acquired relations as the Marchioness of Arden. Altogether it is an embarrassing situation, and the subsequent steps by which the mystery is cleared up and the Marquis' somewhat extraordinary actions are explained are told in a brisk and vigorous manner. Incidentally we are introduced to a number of diverting characters, including an actor who had led his wife to believe that he was a journalist, and who on the stage wins her heart over again in utter ignorance of his true identity. Altogether it is an eminently readable book, though at times it makes rather high demands upon our credulity. (Published by John Long, Ltd.).

It is hard to imagine what novelists would do without the Balkan peninsula to fall back upon. Whenever they want a picturesque setting for a story, reasonably civilised and reasonably near Europe, but in a ferment of political intrigue and strife, all they have to do is to invent a State with a semi-Slavonic name and plant it somewhere in this agitated region. Then they can invent the most romantic tales of dynastic plots and warlike excursions and alarums, with no one to say them nay. Consequently in "Monsieur Carnifex," when Mr. Alexander Crawford introduces us to Thraela, with its capital Tsarnekov, where two factions are scheming for supremacy, he is on safe and popular ground. The Crown Prince has fallen in love with the beautiful Elizabeth Petrovic; the Prime Minister and Monsieur Carnifex, the rival statesman, though differing in all else, are agreed upon the advisability of getting her out of the way. She is put under the charge of a repulsive, earless man, to whom it has been hinted that her death would be by no means unacceptable. She has exciting chases in the mountains and dark doings in the town, hairbreadth escapes and adventures galore. Geoffrey Wynn, a young Englishman, appears on the scene, the pair fall desperately in love, and his bravery enables the rivals' politics to be confounded, and their knavish tricks to be frustrated. It is an excellent story, full of vigorous incident and graphic description, and never does it become merely sensational. (Blackwoods.)

While it may be difficult upon esthetic grounds to account for the remarkable popularity enjoyed by Miss Florence Barclay's books, there can be no doubt as to its existence. She has a faithful following who read with avidity all she writes, and sneer though we will at the sentimentality and somewhat pretentious moralising that characterises her work, she has caught the trick of tickling the palate of the public in a way that most novelists would be glad to imitate. "The Upas Tree," her latest book, possesses all the qualities which have won such success for its predecessors. It tells the story of a young literary man whose preoccupation in his work makes him blind to the ordinary duties of husband and father. The title of the book is, of course, symbolic, and stands for the baleful influence which selfishness exercises not only over the prime offender, but over all with whom he comes in contact. Then Miss Barclay, besides adorning a tale, points a moral into the bargain. The many admirers of the author will find that "The Upas Tree" will not disappoint the expectations they have formed of it. (Putnam's: George Robertson.)

"The Adventures of Billie Belshaw," by Mrs. George de Horne Vaizey, is the free and easy chronicle of a genial individual who, from his earliest years, possesses a sunny disposition, a penchant for practical joking, and a happy knack of endearing himself to all and sundry. Even his victims in the nursery and school find it impossible to resent his sallies, and when he reaches man's estate the members of the insurance office, where Billie earns his daily bread, keep a soft spot in their hearts for him. Finally, confident in the possession of £200 per annum, he woos and wins an heiress. The stern parent not unnaturally makes objections; but Billie's honeyed tongue and magnetic personality induces him, rather to his surprise, to lend the capital necessary for buying a partnership and laying the foundations of a future fortune. It is not an epoch-making novel, but quite an agreeable one. (Mills and Boon; G. Robertson.)

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

The holiday season in Melbourne has been graced by a gorgeous spectacular production of "Antony and Cleopatra." "The poet's dream, coupled with the painter's precision, are competing recollections," remarks the critic of one of the great dailies; and amidst the pageant "the sublime periods of the dramatist rang out with the startling suddenness of midnight bells." Even to read again those famous lines which are generally quoted is to stir the imagination as only the study of Shakespeare can, amongst all who have written for the English stage. The opinion is expressed that Mr. Oscar Asche's compression of the story puts it very fairly and clearly, both from the Roman and the Egyptian aspects. The actor's picture of Antony in the beginning "was entirely that of the exuberant successful soldier, who could not repulse a woman's wooing, and, with light heart, was able to fling tremendous national interests at her jewelled feet;" and later, as a hero ruined by love, Mr. Asche dealt most skilfully with the character, showing the real Antony "whose taints and honours waged equal with him." Miss Lily Brayton's Cleopatra dominated every scene in which she appeared, and it is probable that it startled the critics equally with the audience. The favourite actress appeared as "a beautiful, dark-skinned savage . . . fascinating in face and person, who made love like an amorous boa-constrictor." We read that Miss Brayton rose to great heights in the final scene, which she played in the grand manner. Mr. Frederick Worlock, as the cold and crafty Octavius Caesar, and Mr. Herbert Grimwood as Enobarbus, the sarcastic soldier and friend of Antony, are also well spoken of; and there were wonderful tableaux, beautifully painted by Mr. Joseph Harker. This fine production, which is not due in Sydney for a good many weeks yet, will be repeated in London by Mr. Asche, probably after he has revived "Kismet" there.

Mr. John Lemmone has received word from Mme. Melba as to her present and future movements. It will be remembered that in October the Australian diva reappeared in London at a concert at the Albert Hall, after which she toured the provinces with Ysaye (violinist), Backhaus (pianist), Edmund Burke (basso), and, in the big centres, the New Symphony Orchestra, under Landon Ronald. This occupied the star until just before Christmas, when she intended taking a flat in Paris for a month's holiday, varied by a second tour of Great Britain, lasting five weeks. In March Mme. Melba will give favourite scenes at the Paris Opera, which her prestige enables her to secure for that purpose; and later in the year she will tour the United States. The star proposes that Mr. Lemmone shall join her as before in America, but that eminent flautist is doubtful whether he can again leave his home and his business interests in order to face the trials and discomforts inseparable from constant travelling, even under the most luxurious conditions.

Another Australian lyric soprano was launched upon the operatic stage of Europe on October 30 last, when Miss Dorothy Margaret Henderson made her debut as Margherita in Gounod's "Faust" at the Teatro Communale, Piove (Venezia). The young singer was favourably received by a crowded house, and "Il Veneto," of Padua, praises the debutante as the possessor of a limpid voice of even timbre used with great effect. Miss Henderson was born in Sydney, but has been brought up in Brisbane by her parents, who ultimately took her to Milan with introductions to Signor Hazon, with the result that since the latter end of 1907 she has studied under Professor Paolo Guetta for a period of five years. Miss Henderson's voice has a range of two and a half octaves, and is said to be of beautiful quality.

Music-lovers who remember Marie Hall, that brilliant executive violinist, during her Sydney season, will recognise the truth and force of the following recent criticism from the London "Evening Standard" upon her playing of a Tchaikovsky concerto with the Queen's Hall Orchestra:—"Regarded as Tchaikovsky in miniature, Miss Marie Hall's playing of the violin concerto had all the chiselled and chaste grace of a cameo. The work has seldom been more faultlessly played, so far as notes and intonation were concerned; but Miss Hall's limpid tone and retiring methods have little in common with Tchaikovsky's frenetic personality. Executively, Miss Hall's aim never failed to hit the mark, while the Canzonetta was wholly delightful, but in parts of the first movement, and particularly in the whole of the third, there was not enough powder behind the shot."

Mr. Martin Lewis, the young actor who so vividly touches off the characteristics of the titled, selfish, exquisite in the last act of "Milestones," claims a slight link with Sydney through Mrs. Charles Arnold, who first encouraged him to go on the stage. His family lives exactly opposite "Coo-ee," Beckenham, Kent, where dwell Mrs. Arnold and her daughter Edna. Mrs. Arnold is the daughter of the late Dr. Morrison, of this city, and of Chicago, and had a brother on the press here. She began her stage career in Sydney, part of it embracing two years with the Bland Holt Company. Later on, after making a hit as Jeff Thursby in "Hans, the Boatman," she married the late Charles Arnold, played Cissy in "What Happened to Jones" all through the long run in London at the Strand Theatre, and was seen in the same vivacious character at the Palace Theatre here with the Arnold Company and George Willoughby in 1900. Little Edna was a great favourite as a tiny child in "The Empty Stocking" and "Editha's Burglar" in those days, since when she has contented herself in London with the amateur stage, and with study as a vocalist under Mr. John Crook, a London comic opera conductor, who filled the same position for a time in Australia. Mr. Martin Lewis takes a great interest in the Arnold family, and their suggestion meeting with the hearty support of his father, for once in a way the course of true stage-love ran smooth! Mr. Lewis, senr., founded the Betterton Dramatic Club, probably the finest amateur club that ever existed. During its first few years its ranks included George Alexander, Beerbohm Tree, and a dozen other young people who ultimately rose to eminence. Sir George Alexander was best man at the wedding of the elder Lewis, so that when his old friend brought round the palpitating stage-aspirant during an interval in "The Thief," the actor-manager promptly took him on, and next day, at 10 a.m., he began rehearsing as one of the students in "Old Heidelberg." Mr. Martin Lewis stayed quite a time at the St. James's Theatre, and on tour in "Old Heidelberg" played the delightful character of Prince Carl Heinrich—a part of 64 "sides" placed in his hands at 11 p.m., rehearsed 12 hours later, and successfully played the same afternoon. Altogether he stayed two years under Sir George's kindly guidance, and then played lead at the Oxford Music Hall in the morality sketch, "Everybody." Rejoining Sir George Alexander, he was cast for a capital part as Nigel Armine, in "Bella Donna." Mr. Julius Knight visited Bedford to see him in it, and engaged him for the same character under J. C. Williamson. "Bella Donna" is a play of tense, exciting interest, and Mr. Lewis is confident that our audiences will admire it and more especially as it is to be more elaborately staged than it was in London.

Miss Edith Kilminster, a Sydney pianist who was at one time musical director at the Brisbane Grammar School for Girls, has returned here after an absence of two years in Europe and America. She found London concert-goers far more appreciative of the best music, and also of complex modern compositions, than on her previous visit. Then, the attitude towards Richard Strauss was one of criticism; now it is one of homage. Music is also winning a place for itself at the best vaudeville theatres, where the visitor heard Elsie Hall applauded at the Coliseum for a brilliant concert piece as warmly as she would be in a more classic atmosphere. Miss Kilminster made a considerable stay in Germany, and at Wiesbaden, where she heard some beautiful orchestral music, she studied with Franz Mannstaedt. Early this year the traveller reached New York, and was surprised at the number of musical celebrities attracted not only to that vast city, but also to other American centres, by contracts involving high fees (dollars instead of shillings), and the proviso of four months' vacation in the Old World, which they reach within a week. The presence of so many artists of talent has created great audiences everywhere, whose musical taste is well cultivated. At the New Amsterdam Theatre Miss Kilminster was present at the Musicians' Club soiree, when the stage was arranged as a drawing room, the auditorium lights were put out, and the president (Mr. David Bispham, operatic baritone) brought forward the performers in turn informally, pefectly preserving the social atmosphere. "A privilege of no little value to music lovers is afforded by the Carnegie free libraries, which lend the scores of operas and other large works expensive to buy. If the work you require is not in, they will obtain it from another branch without delay. Speaking of opera, reminds me that I heard an Australian there in 'Mignon'—Miss Rosina Sydna. She sang fluently and with perfect intonation, and was well received. Among the celebrities I heard during this visit for the first time I may mention Kreisler, Mischa Elman, Harold Bauer, Fraulein Elly Hey (the most powerful pianist I know), Caruso, Scotti, Mme. Bella Alten, Mme. Schumann-Heink, Godowsky, and Ernesto Consolo. The latter is considered an authority on Bach, so I took some special lessons from him on that account, and feel that I benefited considerably. Mannstaedt and Consolo both advised me to begin playing in public again, and I mean to follow their advice."

Excellent Programmes

BEGINNING MONDAY, JANUARY 6th.

"WHEN WOMAN LOVES."

This is the story of a human tigress, brought up in the lap of nature, nurtured in hardship, taught from infancy to regard all things as the legitimate prey of any who were cunning enough or unscrupulous enough to win them. This tigress loved a man; the man loved another. Being a gently nurtured man, he chose for his affinity one from his own level in the social scale. And she loved him with all the passion of a pure young heart. So, it becomes a tale of two loves, the one fierce, desperate, seeking to sweep all before it, the other calm, confident, obedient to the dictates of civilisation, and trustful in the protection that civilisation is supposed to afford to those who are so. This drama exhibits strong situations in the play of human emotions. It is intense in its almost every aspect, and the moral amounts to a simplification of the old Eastern saying, that "good must prevail."

A few other items from the same programme:—"Mixed Sample Trunks," "Cook's Bid for Fame," and "Paying the Board Bill," a trio of excellent comedy. Also, "Williams' Weekly," an unusually big budget of local happenings, pictorially shown.

"THE EMERALD NECKLACE."

A necklace worth half a million is always bound to be a burning centre of attraction for about the same number of people. The necklace in this story was worth more than that. It was priceless. And out of the multitude that it attracted were two who deemed themselves, should might and opportunity prevail, to be the best entitled to its possession. These individuals were not troubled by any considerations of conscience. They believed in the principle that what is won becomes the property of the winner. But, fortunately for society and for the success of the story, this brace of bandits worked individually, one against the other. How they plotted and schemed, how the carefully-laid plans of one were upset by the thoughtful designs of the other, and how the purpose of both was ultimately achieved, and yet at the same time frustrated, makes a great dramatic story. There is a plenitude of exciting scenes in this drama. There are motor-car races, railway train races, all kinds of races, between these two thieves, each trying to beat the other. It is altogether a most novel and interesting series of pictures.

The A. B. Co. have some fine comicality in this programme in "His Auto's Maiden Trip." "Hubby Does the Cooking" is another hilarity, which for merit in point of mirthmaking, is run close by "Alkali Ike's Pants," and "Absent-minded Mr. Brown."

Colonial Theatre.

"THE REDSKIN RAIDERS."

The genius of the Red Indian is for cunning—low cunning usually—futile cunning often, but successful cunning, as a general rule. In the early days of the settlement of the North-west of America, when broad-minded, open-hearted whites were endeavouring to populate the huge areas as yet unoccupied by industrious humanity, the Indians were enabled by their cunning, which was usually closely associated with cowardice, to inflict much hardship on these pioneers of white civilisation and much fiendish cruelty on all of these early settlers who fell into their hands. The film drama of "The Redskin Raiders" points the moral that to defeat cunning without a force numerous enough to smash the enemy that is using it, it is necessary to fight with cunning. This drama tells of the raiding of a settler's home, of the abduction of that settler's wife, of the horrible verdict of the tribe that she is to become the victim of the chieftain. But it also tells of how by strategy, that was neither duplicity nor cowardice, the husband of the captured woman, with the assistance of an intrepid trapper, was able to overcome the cunning of his Redskin foes, and to rescue the life partner who had gone into the wilderness with him.

The balance of this programme is invigorating and healthy. "What's the Joke" is a big bunch of laughs; "Rube's Mistake" is a fine Lubin comedy, and the A.B. drama "My Baby" and the "Gaumont Graphic" are other items on a big programme.

Empress Theatre.

"PATRIOTISM."

When the war in the Balkans loomed blackly as a large possibility a month or two ago, several of the principal film picture producers of the world sent out special operators to get what pictures they could secure. Most of these men went to the scene of the strife knowing that they carried their lives in their hands. Some of them succeeded in getting most fascinating pictures. Some of them stayed there, as many thousands of the unfortunate combatants had to stay. The operators of the Cines Co. were amongst the fortunate few who escaped shooting, hanging, or extinction by any other unpleasant method. They succeeded in getting a splendid series of pictures, from the very beginning of the campaign. These pictures have been incorporated in the great film drama, "Patriotism." They constitute the best series of war pictures yet shown in this country, and they are connected by a vivid love story, and garbed, so to speak, in the actual picturesque scenery of the Balkans, in the midst of which the scenes portrayed were actually enacted.

Polidor's friends will be glad to hear of his resurrection in this fine programme. The A.B. Co. is represented by a very clever comedy, "The Club Man and the Crook." "Into the Genuine," a strong Selig drama is another excellent item, and there is the usual variety of film in the other departments.

Doan's Backache Kidney Pills relieve quickly the aches, and pains, and weakness of a bad back. They cure all kidney ills, cure urinary troubles, too frequent urinary discharges, retention of the urine, and all dangerous disorders of the kidneys and bladder.

If you fail to help the kidneys in time, Diabetes, Dropsy, Bright's Disease are sure to follow. Doan's Backache Kidney Pills are endorsed by friends and neighbours, by people you know. Sydney people's word such as we publish below, proves conclusively that this remedy cures to stay cured. What Doan's Backache Kidney Pills have done for others they will do for you.

HOME TESTIMONY.

ELIZABETH-ST.

Mr. Joseph Abrahams, of 495 Elizabeth-street, Sydney, says:—"I have been suffering for over forty years from kidney disease. I have had dreadful attacks, and have had to stay in bed for a fortnight at a time. I suffered intense agony, and spent hundreds of pounds on doctors and medicines, but obtained no relief whatever. A friend of mine advised me to take Doan's Backache Kidney Pills, and I got some and commenced to use them, carefully following the directions. I did not have much faith in them, having tried so many remedies without success. However, Doan's Backache Kidney Pills proved the exception; they cured me. I cannot say enough in praise of these wonderful Pills. I hope many will benefit by my experience, and give Doan's Backache Kidney Pills a trial. Should any sufferer call on me I shall be pleased to give fuller particulars of my thorough cure."

Two years later Mr. Abrahams says:—"Doan's Backache Kidney Pills cured me of backache and kidney trouble over two years ago, and I have been well ever since. Before I took Doan's Backache Kidney Pills I was a terrible sufferer with my back, but now I am absolutely free of every ache and pain."

MARRICKVILLE.

Mrs. W. J. H. Richards, 16 Cook-road, Marrickville, says:—"For about seven years I was a martyr to kidney trouble, and only those who have suffered in this way have any idea what I went through. My back used to often ache so much that it felt like breaking, and every movement was positive torture. When the pains were very severe it was impossible for me to stoop, and I was almost crippled. Other symptoms of kidney trouble were dropsical swellings in my legs and ankles, and disordered secretions. During the time I suffered I was treated by doctors and others, but they failed to do me any good. About six months ago Doan's Backache Kidney Pills were brought under my notice, so I made up my mind to give them a fair trial. After using the first bottle I realised I had at last got a medicine that was benefiting me. Thus encouraged, I continued taking the pills until I was quite cured, using in all six bottles. As I have had no return of my old complaint since the cure was effected, I can strongly recommend Doan's Backache Kidney Pills as a splendid remedy for all kidney ills."

GLEBE.

Mr. M. J. Grace, of 102 Darling-street, Glebe, Sydney, late Farrier-Sergeant of the 1st Regiment Australian Bushmen, wrote from Klip Drift, South Africa, March 1, 1901:—"I am very pleased to state that we have your famous Doan's Backache Kidney Pills in the midst of our regiment. I was very much troubled in the early part of the campaign with pains all over me, especially in the back. You see, I was always trekking about in bad weather, and sleeping on the damp ground, and one would want an iron constitution to withstand the inroads on the system. Many mornings I have tried to get up, but failed until I obtained assistance. My agony was often so bad that I have felt inclined to rush into the zone of the enemy's fire, and put an end to my sufferings. All the military doctors who treated me failed to do me any good. One day a comrade gave me three bottles of Doan's Backache Kidney Pills, and told me to try them. The first bottle eased me greatly; the third bottle completed the cure."

Nine years later Mr. Grace says:—"I am still quite free of kidney trouble, and have been ever since Doan's Backache Kidney Pills cured me ten years ago."

Doan's Backache Kidney Pills are sold by all Chemists and Storekeepers at 2/9 per bottle (six bottles 15/3), or will be posted on receipt of price by Foster-McClellan Co., 76 Pitt-street, Sydney.

Another Liberal Seat Given Away—Mr. Asquith Undisturbed—An Unreported Speech—Leg Legislation—Mr. Roosevelt At Home.

WESTMINSTER, Nov. 29.

The chucking away of another safe seat illustrates afresh the exceptional difficulty under which the Liberal party labours. At the December election of 1910 Mr. Lansbury, standing as a Socialist, was adopted by the local Liberals, and won the seat by a substantial majority. On the principle that a man may do what he likes with his own, he suddenly resolved to offer himself for re-election as a suffragist. His brief Parliamentary career has not endeared him to any section of his fellow-members. He quarrelled with the Labour party, gave no allegiance to the Ministry, and bearded the Speaker in his chair. As far as his constituency is concerned, he made himself so unpopular that the executive of the local Liberal Association passed and circulated a resolution advising their friends not to support him at the poll. The result was inevitable. His former majority of 863 has been transformed into a minority of 751, and the Opposition press are ablaze with headlines proclaiming "Great Unionist Victory." The militant suffragists share this exultation, since by a side blow they have been able to damage a Government they detest. The result is, of course, devoid of political significance. All the same, there is a seat lost, and the Ministerial majority is reduced by two on a division.

A Government of whatsoever political complexion, fighting a by-election, towards the close of its second year's tenure of office, is at a disadvantage under the influence of the relapse of popular enthusiasm that placed it in power. That is bad enough of itself. For the present Ministry there is the additional handicap of three-cornered contest engineered by Labour candidates, who, to serve their private ends, cheerily risk the loss of a seat to the party to whom they owe their political and social privileges. The effect might be regarded as disheartening, disposing worried Ministers to throw up the sponge and retire from a struggle in which their most dangerous foes are those of their own household. No trace of such disposition is to be found in what, delivered the other day, is generally conceded to have been the Prime Minister's best platform speech. It distinctly heartened his own party temporarily depressed by the snap-division and consequent interruption of public business. It spread corresponding disappointment through the camp of the enemy by disposing of the last vestige of hope that obstruction in the House of Commons and misrepresentations systematically dinned into the ears of constituencies would force the Government to withdraw its hand from the plough before its appointed work is accomplished.

In the public interest, it was a pity that proceedings at the dinner to Sir Edward Grey, given on Tuesday night by the political committee of the Reform Club, were necessarily private. The Foreign Secretary delivered an important speech, which, had it been reported, would have had tranquillising effect upon the state of feeling at home and throughout the Continent. In the circumstances, all that may properly be said is that, whilst recognising the gravity of the situation, Sir Edward was able to take a sanguine view of its final development. He found substantial reason for this in the fact that the great Powers still remain at unity in council, making common effort to prevent expansion of the area of war. The state of things in the House of Commons throughout dinnertime was reflected on this social gathering at the Reform Club. Originally fixed for 8 o'clock, the dinner, to the despair of the chef, was postponed for half an hour, the House meanwhile being engaged upon a series of divisions, which ran up to the round dozen, and occupied two hours and a quarter.

Of the Political Committee of the Reform Club, who were the hosts of the occasion, some eight or ten are members of the House of Commons. These, distraught between desire to remain and hear the Foreign Secretary's speech and apprehension of what might follow upon their absence from a division, had rather a bad time. It is evidence of the strained feeling existing between parties in the House of Commons just now that the Opposition refused to pair with Ministerialists. This is taking a leaf out of the book of the Irish members, who, observing a custom established in the stormy days of Parnell's predominance, refuse to pair. One by one the M.P.s at the Reform Club dinner silently stole away, till at 11 o'clock, when the party broke up, Sir Edward Grey was the only one remaining. By that time the performance at the House was over, and by the mechanical process of walking round the lobbies seven clauses had been added in committee to the Home Rule Bill.

After the fierce fight for the Presidency, Mr. Roosevelt has retired to a condition of obscurity in strong contrast with the blaze of notoriety through which he lived during the preceding four months. In this country it is generally taken for granted that with his defeat his career is closed, and that little more will be heard of him. The last mail brings me a letter from Washington in which the writer, intimately acquainted equally with Mr. Roosevelt's temperament and the trend of public opinion in the United States, takes quite a different view of things. He believes that when four years hence there is another struggle for the Presidential chair Mr. Roosevelt will be brought forward as a candidate for a reunited Republican party, and will win.

During a visit to Washington during the first term of Mr. Roosevelt's Presidency I was privileged to see a good deal of him in private. Sitting at his hospitable table at the White House with a small company, including the French Minister at Washington (one of the greatest living authorities on Shakespeare) and a much-travelled American, of whom it was not quite determined by his friends whether he more intimately knew Abe Lincoln or was more fondly conversant with Cicero, the Rough Rider in whom foreign nations early came to recognise a statesman of highest rank, disclosed the scholar versed alike in ancient and modern literature. In its variety, grasp of subject, out of the way knowledge, and its evidence of marvellous memory, Mr. Roosevelt's table talk reminded me more of Mr. Gladstone's than of any man I know. The mystery was how and when the President of the United States found time for the voluminous, multifarious reading that proved an appreciative portion of his daily life. I gathered that the secret lay in using up odd 10 minutes and quarters of an hour, with occasional awakening at 3 o'clock in the morning to find a book fortuitously by his bedside.

Conversation turning upon the condition of things in Cuba, at the moment profoundly disturbed, the travelled American contributed a charming reminiscence. Thirty years ago, visiting San Domingo in official capacity, he was taken in hand by a newly-appointed native Minister, who undertook to show him round. Coming to the courtway of a prominent building, the guide pointed to a doorway, and remarked as complacently as if he were indicating the name of a street, "That is where our last Emperor was shot." In the course of his sojourn in the island the American came upon an aged man held in high esteem by the community because he had been witness of a quite exceptional number of revolutions, and lived to tell the tale. "How many have you seen?" the visitor asked. "Forty-two," the patriarch promptly replied. It appears that when a boy the old man had seen Louis XVI. and Marie Antoinette carried to the guillotine. Emigrating to San Domingo the tale of revolutions rapidly ran up till they exceeded forty.

AMONG THE PYGMIES OF PAPUA AND ELSEWHERE.

(BY BEATRICE GRIMSHAW.)

[ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.]

IV.

There was a Woman.

"Why does he want to kill anyone at present?" I asked.

Then came out the old story. There was a woman, and she was young and pretty, and the sorcerer's brother wanted to marry her, and had saved up enough to buy her from her parents, who were very willing indeed to have her marry into a family of such consequence. But—again the old story—there was Another, who hadn't any goods to buy a bride, but was young and handsome, and had a 'way with him.' (Has not the hopeless detrimental always a 'way with him' all the world over?) And the girl, as a matter of course, liked the man who had nothing. But her parents were angry, and wanted her to marry the sorcerer's brother. She would not, and there was an elopement into the bush, so the parents had to make the best of a bad bargain, and take what they could get for the girl, which was not much.

The family settled down into content before long, but not so the sorcerer's brother. (You must remember that the girl was fair, according to Papuan canons, and that the victorious rival lived in the same village.) Still, he said nothing in public, and made no threats; only he talked to his brother, and some of the goods that were to have purchased the bride went over to the sorcerer's possession. . . . And one night, not very long after, there was screaming and wailing, and hurrying about, in the house of the happy bride. And in the morning the bridegroom lay upon his mats, swollen, and blue, and dead. . . .

The sun was almost overhead now; the heat was scorching. The sorcerer, slowly chewing and slowly dropping scarlet from his lips, stepped back into the shadow of his house. He moved like a shadow himself; you could see, in the feline smoothness of his gait, in the catlike poise of his head and shoulders, that this was a secret man; a creature of night-wandering excursions, a slinking thing of evil. Still, he was handsome, in his Papuan way, and he certainly possessed that elusive gift known as personality. His wife, a young and good-looking girl, came out of the house while we stood there, and glanced from him to us, and back again, to see what the stranger whites thought of her man. It was clear that she took considerable pride in him.

Yet she must have waked, time and again, alone on her mat in the silent house, with the stars peering in beneath the gabled roof, and known that her husband was out in the dusk of the moonless night with his snake in its bamboo upon his breast, and his bag of charms and poisons slung over his shoulder, sowing death. And surely the skeleton in the closet, so famous in European story, was never half so trying an inmate to a house as the Papuan sorcerer's snake in a pot.

"There are strange things about these sorcerers—things one cannot explain," said the nun, as we walked homeward through a little strip of welcome shade. "A little while ago a boy was taken by an alligator, and his father was searching about in terrible distress, trying to find the body in the bed of the stream. It was high tide then, mademoiselle, and no one could see anything—we all tried, but the water was thick with mud and very deep. So the poor father dived and searched, but it was all in vain, and he could not find his boy. And all the time there were three sorcerers standing by the stream, and they said nothing, but they looked at one another. And by and by one of them pointed, and said: 'You lose your time; do not look there; it is there that he is.' But no one could see, and they took no notice. So the sorcerers laughed, and they looked at one another—I saw them, mademoiselle—and said nothing more, until the water went down, and then, where they had said, but not where anyone would have thought to look, there was the body found."

Geology and Botany.

What is meeker in the white man's country than a gentle geologist? What is milder and milkier than a botanist? "Instead of which," when you come to Papua, they are sorcerers, and, but for the Government, would kill you as soon as look at you. But they really do know something about botany, and something about geology, too; at least, they know where to look for certain stones, and what properties they have. As for botany, they can tell the name (native) of every plant, tree, or flower, that grows in the teeming bush of Mekeo, and can tell the use of it, too. Some, according to the Linnaeuses of Mekeo, are good to make your yam crop grow when planted with the vegetables. Some will bring down rain. Some will keep the spirits of your ancestors from biting you as you sleep (there seems to be no special plant told off to keep the local flea from biting you when you are awake, which is surely a serious omission). There are plants that will certainly make the girl you admire fall in love with you (to save a rush of inquirers into the "Herald" office, I hasten to confess that I do not know what they are). Others will bring misfortune to your enemies, if secretly planted near their houses. One, if you tie it to your bow, will give you an infallible aim in shooting; one will give you luck in finding game. Quite a fair proportion, if properly used, will rid you of the people you dislike after the simple and effective fashion of the Borgias—to whom the New Guinea native could have taught a thing or two.

As regards geology, there are stones of various kinds and shapes, and crystals of quartz, like the ends broken off glass lustres, that will do almost anything you want, according to the New Guinea sorcerer-scientist. You can make war with them, or bring about peace; you can cause snakes to bite any person who has annoyed you, or incite alligators to catch him by the leg as he swims across a stream. Some of them you can charm into your enemy's body, to cause fatal diseases. Others, like the ring of the genie in Eastern fables, will bring to your heel devils of various kinds, ready to undertake any work you may suggest; and if you are a Mekeo sorcerer, you are sure to have a singularly devilish imagination of your own, so that suitable commissions will not be found wanting.

In addition to these accomplishments, the older sorcerers know as much about the human body and its anatomy as any medical student who has been made free of the dissecting-room—and for the same reason. When they were young there were ways of cutting up and dividing the meat for the table that every well educated sorcerer learned; there were interesting things you could do with pieces of human beings, in the way of really high sorcery, which things, unfortunately, an interfering Government has put its heavy foot upon. . . . . Climb up a cocoanut palm in the Mekeo plain (if you can, which, of course, you cannot), and you shall, or should, see blue hills not so very far away from you, where the Government has not been able to set its determined foot yet. The stone-age Papua is always looking round the corner wherever you may travel about the island continent—unless you have gone round the corner and got right into it.

The white magician, whom I met a few days earlier, was a curious character in his own way, if not quite so creepily interesting as the black sorcerer of the sorcerers' town. I saw him first in his own house, which was one of the best in the village; he was sitting cross-legged on the verandah, and was delighted to welcome visitors. Aki is a sociable old man, and he is, in addition, what most New Guinea natives are not, passionately interested in the white men's ways, and intelligently anxious to know how everything is made or done.

He had a huge string bag over his shoulder, and when asked brought it out to display the contents. Aki has the soul of a collector, and has managed, under astonishing difficulties, to make something like a museum of curiosities for himself. The bag contained hundreds of objects—cassowaries' claws, lizards' tails, seeds of many sorts, cartridge cases, carved bones, tin matchboxes, feather ornaments, an outfit for painting the face, a two-bladed penknife, strings of beads, pigs and dogs' teeth, a broken stylograph pen, nuts from the bush, a piece of pink soap (regarded as a charm), a safetypin, a locket of carved shell . . . . anything and everything, native and foreign. You were required, if you enjoyed the privilege of seeing the museum, to contribute to the exhibits. I gave a hatpin and a small gilt tin box, both of which were very well received.

Aki said that he would show me his house, and that he would say prayers for me, as he liked what I had given. The nun looked shocked.

"It is his own prayers he means," she said. "He prays constantly to his gods; he has a great many of them—you can hear him praying in his house as you pass by. He uses charms, too; but I do not think he does any harm to anyone."

Aki, it seemed, would work charms and spells to any amount, but only for harmless purposes, such as keeping off the rain on a particular day, ensuring showers for the yams at the right time, or curing a native lady or gentleman who might be suffering from an iron three-legged pot in the stomach, introduced there through black magic, by some other native lady or gentleman. This white sorcerer, like the others, was a botanist, but his botanical studies took a useful form. He was always on the lookout to secure seeds or cuttings from distant parts of the country, or from the white man's stores, and to make them grow about his place, apparently through pure scientific ardour, for a useless plant seemed just as much a treasure to him as any other.

A NATIVE VILLAGE.

Aki interested me much; it was plain that in him one saw one of the "supermen" of the Papuans. He had intelligence enough for any 10 ordinary natives; his curiosity to find out how things were made was quite un-Papuan; and his mind seemed so far ahead of the other minds of his race that he had even developed something like the conjugal feeling of the whites. He was a widower—re-married, it is true, but a widower who had never ceased to regret his first wife, dead now some years, and to speak of her with a longing to rejoin her, sometime, somewhere. At her death he had ceased to cut his hair, and wore it in a curious tail (much eked out with odds and ends of fibre), tied up at the back of his head. He often regretted that the art of photography had not reached Mekeo at the time of his wife's death. "I could have had a picture of her to hang on the wall," he said, "and when I looked at it I should have remembered her face; now I forget it, and I do not wish to do so."

The white magician has been very kind to the fathers and sisters, and his sons and daughters are all promising converts. Aki himself, with a cunning desire to make the best of both worlds, declines to abandon his heathenism until he is on his deathbed, when, he says, he will certainly become a Christian.

"One touch of nature . . . ." Among the most fashionable "additions" for white women's wear this present year are the little roll curls that one may see advertised in ladies' papers. They are sold in pairs, and are joined across the forehead by a thin band, concealed under the hair or hat. . . . Aki, who is not so young or so handsome as he used to be, and who does not like becoming passe, any more than a fading society belle, has two cunning roll curls made of frizzy Papuan hair, which are connected across his forehead, under his head-band, with a narrow strap of fibre, and serve to cover up his bald temple, except when he takes his head-band off to show the mourning tail he wears for his wife.

A Cemetery Town.

But of all strange things that I saw in the strange country of Mekeo, the cemetery town was the most remarkable.

At first sight it was much like any other Papuan town, only larger—it has six hundred inhabitants. The main street was, as usual, extremely wide; sandy, glaring, and overrun with pigs, dogs, and children, all rolling about in the red-hot dust. Men and women were sitting on the verandahs, sociably eating sweet potatoes, sago, and cocoanut, out of black carved wooden bowls, with the aid of cassowary bone forks; the "ibitoes," or unmarried youths, were skulking about in the background, picking up what they could, unseen. It looked like a populous place, but certainly the six hundred did not show up clearly, considering that it was near sundown, and everyone was back from the garden and the chase.

Where were the rest? In the graveyard! The town had not had an epidemic; on the contrary, it was in a very healthy state—but none the less, a very large proportion of its people were among the tombs, and would be there for an indefinite time.

I went to see. The town has three cemeteries, each very large, and all protected by pig fences of wattled sticks, with stiles here and there. There must surely be someone—some two or three people—who act as boundary riders for the cemeteries, else they would never be kept in repair. I climbed over the stile, and there, apparently, was another town—straggling, ill-built, but a town or village all the same, with people eating their evening meal, men and women moving about, brown-roofed, rough-looking little houses, some of them a roof, and nothing more. . . .

"Look here," said my guide, beckoning me under a roof so low that I had to stoop almost to the ground.

Inside was brown dusk, with the sunset light sifting in through the rustling leaves of the thatch. A formless heap, covered with bark cloth, lay upon the ground. It stirred as we came in, and a woman raised her head from the earth. She was yellow-pale; her eyes were like deep wells, with a spark of smoky fire, somewhere at the bottom; her body was a crate of bones.

"That is a widow," the nun told me. "They make the widows lie on their husbands' graves like this, just sheltered by a roof, all the time of mourning. They must never be seen out in daylight, and they have to live on what is brought to them by relatives. This poor creature cries nearly all the time."

The woman was moaning and clinging to the sister's blue robe. I never saw a face more wretched.

"How long has she to stay here?"

"Until she 'takes black'—puts on the black paint you have seen them wear. That may be a year or two. Poor things; they are very unhappy, shut up so long," said the gentle Sister, caressing the dirty, pitiful skeleton in the bark wrapper.

"Are there many widows?"

"Oh, very many; I will show you some more."

The next widow was something of a change. She was young, fat, and well-looking; she was not lying on her husband's grave, with her head hidden under a mat, but peeping coyly out from under the grave-house roof; and may I never see a widow again if she was not looking towards the lodge that covered the tomb of a young wife who had died some months before, and that also, of course, sheltered the more or less disconsolate widower doing his time in the cemetery.

Y.M.C.A.

During 1912 there were held 14 different Bible groups at the Sydney Y.M.C.A. They held 278 sessions, with an average attendance of seven men to a circle. The training classes for church workers had 31 sessions, with an average attendance of 17.

The Sunday afternoon meeting held 52 meetings, with an average attendance of 113. The total attendance at all religious meetings was 13,748.

The Bible Study Department of the Sydney Y.M.C.A. will be considerably enlarged this year, and special courses will be put in to meet the needs of different groups of men. The text book plan of study will be used throughout.

The receipts from membership subscriptions in the Sydney Y.M.C.A. show an excess of £110 for 1912 over 1911.

THE CASE OF MARS.

(BY W.G.P.)

In the current "Science Progress" Mr. J. S. Worthington apparently concludes the gospel of the planet Mars as it is indubitably believed at Flagstaff. This, of course, is the observatory that Lowell has made famous—and it is so beautifully equipped that even the hardened sceptic sometimes hesitates to reject its results. But it must be confessed that Mars is an unsolved riddle. Roughly, it is now almost just what we shall become in a few million years, supposing the Flagstaff people are anywhere near right in their estimate of its temperature. That is to say that all its tropical oceans have dried up, leaving about five-sevenths of the area arid desert—the smaller gravitational attraction greatly assisting the escape of water vapour—so that according to the theory it is only in the colder regions of the poles that water can last for any length of time. That is the crux of the problem, and to solve it the Martians in their old age, not to say their dotage, constructed enormous systems of pipe-lines, the so-called canals, which spread over the planet in regular geometrical lines, roughly following the meridians, as being the shortest distance from pole to equator. Mars is a planet without mountains; indeed, it probably never had any, and the engineering difficulties of the huge task were thus considerably diminished. It is not quite satisfactorily explained how the water is got, so to speak, up-hill over the planet; but that is regarded as a strong evidence for human, or perhaps we should say Martian, agency. The Martians must have powers of pumping far beyond anything that we have conceived. Waiving that point, however, the fact remains that in the spring the polar snows begin to melt, and gradually vegetation, which is (to Flagstaff) obviously a green buck-wheat crop, begins to spread along the aforesaid geometrical lines, expanding outwards at places to oases of thousands of miles in extent. The intelligence of the Martians is further manifested by the fact that they make this annual irrigation extend over the equator and down the other side. This is certainly a remarkable achievement, and it is a pity it can only be seen at Flagstaff, and even there only at fleeting moments that really defy the celestial photographer. The subject is not one on which we can dogmatise. Mars is in a much more advanced stage of planetary evolution than ourselves, and its scientific men, if it has any, must, or ought to, be much more skilful than our own. Assuming that they are, Mr. Worthington writes a very interesting paper, but he overlooks one or two rather important points. We have no means of measuring the temperature of Mars, and for all we actually know it may vary between something like earth temperatures and that of frozen carbon dioxide. There is certainly some evidence for the higher temperature, but it is quite indirect and inconclusive. In the second place the canals themselves seem to be largely a matter of imagination. Very learned persons have explained them away as a subjective hallucination. No doubt, however, the most learned persons are often quite wrong; but usually when a scientific fact is determined it can be verified by other observers. In this case it has not been so. Some people think they can see the "canals," and most people are sure that they can't. We here perceive an obviously divided duty. A definite statement of fact outweighs a great deal of negation, but we cannot help taking the negation into account. Flagstaff entirely fails to do so. It may be right. It has magnificent instruments that show Mars about five times the apparent diameter of the moon, brilliantly lighted, and showing well-defined patches of colour. During a few moments the amazing network of very fine lines will now and then appear. These are the alleged canals. On the whole, Mars is certainly much like the earth in chemical constitution, but no really reliable evidence of the presence of water vapour can be obtained—except at Flagstaff. This obviously constitutes another difficulty. It is further doubtful whether, on general grounds, Mars is able to retain an atmosphere. An atmosphere is always tending to fly off into space, and the less the gravitational power of the planet the sooner it loses its air and water vapour. A satellite is thus almost immediately starved out, and a small planet is relatively soon in a bad way. Conversely, the sun can retain an atmosphere largely composed of the lightest gas, hydrogen, the velocity of escape there being something over three hundred miles a second—to which the average hydrogen molecule nothing like attains. The critical velocity for our own earth is only about seven miles a second, and therefore only traces of the lighter gases remain in our atmosphere, traces no doubt arising from the casual production of helium, hydrogen, and the like, from day to day. On Mars a gas molecule with a velocity of about three miles would easily get away into space, and it is not easy, therefore, to see how Mars can have any sufficient atmosphere to sustain life. On the other hand, however, it must be admitted that the demands of body metabolism, the price of the work of an organism, must be very much less than in our case. Considering the different conditions, it is barely possible that there may be enough air left for the Martians to breathe—but the Flagstaff people assume this as a fact. With regard to temperatures, the argument roughly is that, though only about half the heat we get from the sun reaches Mars, yet, owing to the absence of a dense atmosphere, most of it reaches the surface, so that actually the "earth" surface of Mars should not be much colder than our own. The reasoning here is rather specious, and can only be accepted when some definite temperature measurements become possible. The mere fact that the so-called "snow" on the Martian poles has been widely regarded as frozen carbon dioxide shows how large is the room for difference of opinion as to the vital question of temperature. The Flagstaff observers assume altogether too much. The writer of the article referred to, after remarking that the "snow-caps" are smallest in summer, says that this in itself is an indication that these caps are water; but they may obviously equally well be any other substance, solid at low temperatures, and liquefying as the temperature rises. Moreover, nothing at all can be gathered from the fact that the resulting fluid is "exactly the colour of the water," for a hundred substances would satisfy that condition. There is a certain naive honesty about Professor Lowell, for he admits that, supposing there is melting snow at the poles, he could not get it down to the green patches he supposes to be vegetation by any known agency. Something superhuman must be at work, but no doubt that makes the problem of life on Mars all the more attractive for many people. But the cautious observer will doubt if even Mr. Shaw's superman could construct pipe-lines three thousand miles long, and then pump up the supply. It must be said that Lowell goes a long way to vindicate Martian intelligence. He shows, no doubt fairly accurately, that water boils on Mars at about half our own boiling point, and argues from this, quite rightly, that in its passage through open canals it must have evaporated long before reaching the tropics, a journey occupying about three weeks. The only possible inference is that the pipe-lines are deeply buried—or perhaps artificially refrigerated. Really, the credulity of science is sometimes more impossible than the credulity of superstition.

The war correspondents (according to Reuter) are beginning to leave Constantinople on their return home, which is not surprising, seeing that what with the censor and the cholera they are much worse off than they would be between the devil and the deep blue sea. Several of them have been already shot at in the Chatalja lines, while one—the representative of the "Frankfurter Zeitung"—has died of cholera at San Stefano, the first victim of his class in this war. This was Dr. Bumiller, who began his career by going to East Africa in the service of Major von Wissmann. The same fell disease also attacked Captain Pietsch, of the "Vossische Zeitung," a nephew of that Ludwig Pietsch who for 40 years was the most prominent figure in the journalistic world of Berlin, and a writer of such descriptive power that the present Kaiser conferred upon him the honorary title of "Professor."

REAL ESTATE.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

"The quietest week of the year" was the report received from the real estate market yesterday.

General business is almost at a standstill. No indoor sales this week, and, with the exception of a few holiday subdivisions at the beaches and on the mountains, the outdoor sales have also been suspended. The holiday subdivision sales have been fairly successful. In one or two instances good prices were realised, and the allotments sold freely, but it was not so in every instance. In fact, more than one holiday sale fell quite flat, and resulted in a frost. There was the usual demand for land at Cronulla. The number of visitors to this popular surf resort this year has far exceeded all expectations. Although there are a great number of additonal accommodation houses, and more furnished cottages are available, yet accommodation has been booked up to Easter, and as one of the leading auctioneers remarked, there is not room for another person. The heavy traffic on the holidays was handled safely, but the tram accommodation was hardly equal to the demand.

The land sales at Cronulla on the holidays were all successful. There is a bright prospect for the sales which are to come, and of which a number have already been announced.

As an instance of how the demand for real estate is increasing at Cronulla, the following sales this week reported by Mr. C. Monro, of the local property exchange, will form interesting reading:—Two blocks, with water frontage to Gunnamatta Bay, £1450; two lots, Roker-street, £1000; two lots, Pacific View Estate, £295; one acre block, Waratah-street, £850; one block, Lucas-street, £120 one block, Kurnell-road, £100; five-acre block, Miranda, £257.

But Cronulla is not the only district where people bought land in the vicinity of the ocean beaches. In fact, so determined are the people to get to the ocean for week-ends, that as the land adjoining the beaches near the city becomes occupied and prices rise above the means of the working classes the public is content to go far out to secure its object. The holiday sales afford evidence of this fact. On Boxing Day Mr. H. F. Cotterell reported a very good attendance of buyers at the Bulli Park Beach estate sale at Bulli, when 107 lots were listed. Sixty-nine lots were sold at prices ranging from 40/ to 14/ per foot, the total being £3460. Bidding was brisk.

And not only were the people content to go south as far as Bulli, but on the northern coast-line Messrs. Raine and Horne passed Manly, Narrabeen, Newport on Boxing Day, and held a sale right out at Barranjoey where 35 lots were sold at from 5/ to 20 per foot. On a previous holiday this firm sold 90 ocean beach lots of the same estate in as many minutes. At both these sales there was a big attendance.

The beach at Brighton-le-Sands attracted a good deal of attention on Boxing Day as far as picnickers were concerned, but at the sale of the Sunset Estate Mr. Arthur Blackwood could not muster many buyers, yet he sold water frontages at £2/10/ and other lots at from 14/ to 22/ per foot. In all 25 lots were sold for £1740.

One effect this spreading of the people over the long-distance beaches is having, is the relieving of the congestion which existed 12 months ago at Manly and Freshwater. But even at the present time there are few vacant houses in Manly.

But the popularity of the beaches has not in any way detracted from the value of a mountain home. In fact, this year the mountains as holiday resorts have more than held their own, with previous years and sales which have taken place and inquiries for sales that are to come, indicate the desire on the part of the people to secure a mountain block, for after all the strong sea-air with all its invigorating properties, becomes in time overpowering for a great many people, who are glad to change to the soft air on the mountain tops. Most of the sales in the mountains during the holidays proved successful. A good deal of land changed hands and the prices obtained indicated the progress such places as Wentworth Falls, Katoomba, and Blackheath were making.

SUBDIVISION SALES.
A COMPARISON.

Although the subdivision sales are keeping up well, and land in any good position is selling freely at fair prices, yet it cannot be said that anything like a boom has existed during the last few years. In fact, when a comparison is made with the subdivision sales which were held in the seventies and the eighties, it is clear that values to-day are not even as high as they were in those days, when people rushed madly after land, and when the auctioneers ran special trains from Sydney and distributed free tickets; when the liquor flowed freely and quite a picnic and luncheon were held on the ground; when the people became excited and bid ridiculous prices for land which could not be reached except by a specially hired vehicle. They were prices which no auctioneer to-day could obtain for a lot of the land, even though the city has advanced in a remarkable degree within the quarter of a century which has intervened.

Mr. J. Y. Mills, who with his partner, the late Mr. Pile, conducted a great many large sales in the boom period, tells some interesting stories of what was done with real estate in the seventies and eighties. It was Mr. Mills who named that thriving industrial centre, Auburn, and at the same time presented the site upon which the local railway station was built. Mr. Mills named the district Auburn after Goldsmith's "Auburn, loveliest village of the plain." He and his partner, in order to establish industrial works there to bring the people about, sold the 30 acres of land where the Clyde engineering works stand to Messrs. Hudson Bros. at £30 per acre. Mr. Mills then laid out a township at the side and back of the works and named it New Glasgow, and sold land as high as £5 foot. At Harris Park land was bought from the late Sir Wigram Allen for £2500, was subdivided, and realised over £20,000. Elizabeth Farm, at Parramatta, was purchased by the late Mr. Septimus Stephen for £50,000, was then subdivided, and realised over £100,000. Eleven years after the railway was opened to Parramatta a grant of 60 acres, now half the township of Auburn, was put up in the rooms by Messrs. Richardson and Wrench, and passed in without a bid; but that afternoon an hotelkeeper named William M'Millan, in business in Sussex-street, looking for bargains, strolled into the auctioneers, and inquired if any bargains were available. He was shown this land, and purchased it at £1 per acre. Some years later a Mr. Webb gave £30 per acre for it, and £60 for a portion. To-day that land forms part of a very prosperous township.

In the early seventies land on the main road at Bondi Junction sold for £2 10s per foot. In the same decade Mr. Mills bought land at Queenscliff, Manly, at £16 per acre. He and his partner built the first footbridge over the lagoon, subdivided the land, which realised from 18s to £2 per foot. In the eighties they went out to Newport and held the first outdoor sale in that township, when land sold at £2 per foot. The firm got their buyers to the ground from Sydney by the steamer Roseville.

As an instance of how sales were conducted in those days Mr. Mills tells a story of having to conduct a land sale at Goulburn. It was the first of the kind, and Mr. Goodchap, then Chief Railway Commissioner, guaranteed to take the people up there, a distance of 130 miles, and bring them back the same day; and in those days the facilities of the railways were small when compared with to-day. The special train got there in good time to hold the sale in the afternoon, and the people returned to the city in the evening, so that about 15 hours out of the 24 were spent in the train; but it was a free ride, the train was crowded, and the land sold well.

When people went to a land sale in the boom period they always looked for a free ticket, a free luncheon, and a brass band. They seemed to look upon it as a right that the travelling facilities should be free; but on one occasion Messrs. Mills and Pile had a sale arranged at the Denham Court estate at Campbelltown. In order to secure to prospective buyers a seat in the special train it was decided to charge 2s 6d, and to refund the money to the buyers; but one man absolutely refused to attend the sale unless he got a free ticket for the train. He said he was a prospective buyer, but objected to pay his fare on the train. He was given a ticket on chance, and to the astonishment of the auctioneers, who had trusted to his bona-fides, he purchased £1200 worth of land.

Messrs. Henry F. Halloran and Co., in their annual report for the year 1912, state that business right through has been consistently good, there having been no slackening during the winter months, as is usually the case. This firm did not place many new estates on the market during the year, preferring to have a season of cleaning up with their many estates, and they have proceeded with the development on an extensive scale of country properties for farming purposes, including wheat lands in the wheat belt, orchards, at Bountiful Batlow and dairy farms at Ferodale, in the Lower Hunter. The sales for the year total £76,828, which comprises the following:—

County lands and farm properties ..	£28,357
Suburban and seaside allotments ..	£33,876
City and suburban investments ..	£14,575

The closing months of the year have been characterised by a tight money market, but this, while no doubt restricting enterprise in some directions, does not appear to have made any difference in the demand for desirable allotments in the suburbs, at the seaside, and on the mountains, though in the country there appears to be a disposition to wait until money is a little easier, though where easy terms are given so that the purchaser does not need to have recourse to borrowing fair business is still being written. The results of the spring sales so far clearly show that the Sydney public has not lost confidence in the general prosperity of the State, the feeling in most quarters being that it is likely to continue for many years.

Mr. C. H. Crammond had a remarkably good year. He disposed of properties of the total value of £154,544. The complete list of sales, which is published below, includes some big items in the city, and a very fine lot of suburban properties, mostly in the Petersham and Marrickville districts. One property in George-street, city, realised £48,000. A block of land at Manly brought £5500, a house and grounds at Burwood £4500, and a house and grounds at Petersham £2300.

NOTES.

In 1843 a schoolmaster named Robert Dunlop purchased a block of land, having about 140ft frontage to King-street, Newtown, where the Methodist Church now stands. He paid £70 for the block, which to-day is worth £150 per foot.

"Cotway," Gundagai district, comprising 5214 acres, freehold, c.p. and c.l., has just changed hands through the direct agency of Winchcombe, Carson, Ltd., Mr. C. G. Weston, late of Bunarba North, Moree, being the purchaser. This firm also sold direct Rockvale, Cumnock, comprising 1007 acres freehold, to Messrs. Mayne Bros.; and, in conjunction with Dalgety and Co., Ltd., Touchwood, Wellington, 2330 acres, c.p. and c.l., to Mr. V. A. Syme, of Melbourne. Also Yerra Yerra, Forbes, in conjunction with Messrs. Edward Weaver and Co., Forbes, comprising 4381 acres freehold, c.p. and c.l., to Mr. Robert Rice.

The sales for this afternoon are few in number. There is to be one at Narrabeen, when Twight's old orchard of 28 lots, close to Collaroy Beach, will be offered by Messrs. Raine and Horne. These are elevated building sites overlooking the ocean. The terms are easy.

Another sale to-day will be at Katoomba, when the Hilltop estate will be submitted by Messrs. E. S. Miller and Co. These are choice building sites in a good position.

Portion of the famous Cronulla is to come under the hammer to-day, when Mr. C. H. Crammond will offer the Giddings estate, which is in a picked position in the district. It is on the tram line, and is three minutes from the beaches.

The indoor sales will be resumed next week, when Messrs. Richardson and Wrench will open the year with a sale in their rooms on Friday morning.

The first annual meeting of shareholders of Cooper's Bellevue Hill-Bondi Estate, Ltd., was held at the registered offices, 109 Pitt-street, Sydney, on Monday, December 30. A large number of shareholders was present. Mr. C. A. Jacques was in the chair. The annual report and balance-sheet were adopted. Mr. A. B. Davies was re-elected as a director, and the board, having decided to increase the number of directors from three to four, Mr. Arthur Rickard was elected to fill the additional seat.

During the early months of the year a large number of subdivision sales will take place each Saturday.

Next Saturday Messrs. Richardson and Wrench will offer some splendid land at Undercliffe, right alongside the tram terminus. There are 15 good building allotments, each with a road and river frontage. Also a very fine subdivision at Cronulla.

On the same day Messrs. Hardie and Gorman will offer part of O'Brien's Beach Estate at Bondi.

Messrs. Goyder Bros. will next Saturday conduct a sale at Hazelbrook. The land is right at the station, and comprises beautifully sheltered residential and other blocks.

Mr. R. T. Forsyth will, in conjunction with Mr. R. B. Paterson, hold an auction sale of the Kowloon Estate, Valley Heights, next Saturday. This estate is right at the railway station, and comprises business and residential sites, and includes a bungalow residence and a stone cottage.

Messrs. Mobbs and Co. will next Saturday offer 600 level building lots at North Granville, near the Rosehill Racecourse. This is a subdivision for workmen's homes, with city water and gas.

The Surfside Estate at Wollongong, comprising 27 fine allotments, right at the surfing beach and the park, will be offered next Saturday. Messrs. O'Donnell and Stumbles are the auctioneers.

There is a big list of sales announced for the following Saturday, and week by week the list is increasing. In fact, Saturday sales are being announced for quite a number of leading suburbs right up to Easter.

Messrs. G. W. Holdship and Craig have arranged a sale at Leura on Saturday, 18th instant, when 12 choice residential sites, occupying some of the most desirable positions in this popular mountain resort, will be offered. A new cottage is also to be submitted. It has a frontage to the Mall.

Georgia Estate, Katoomba and Leura: The whole of the estate, amounting to 18 lots, was disposed of in quick time at prices from 35/ per foot to 8/ per foot; total sales, £851/8/. The sales were in each case successful, though the Sunrise Estate was hampered by wet weather, but the bidding was good, and results eminently satisfactory, proving that there is a greatly increased demand this year for land on the mountains, the values in all cases being higher than obtained for similar land last year.

DAY LABOUR SYSTEM.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The Minister for Public Instruction (Mr. Carmichael), at Tarana, in the Blayney district, is reported in the "Sydney Morning Herald" to have made this statement:—"The machinery for the construction of Public works had been reorganised with a view to eliminating for the benefit of the State the contractors' profits. The enormous amount of effort required for this had not been generally recognised, nor time allowed for properly gauging its results. From its very commencement the whole scheme had been attacked with a persistent bitterness and animosity difficult to understand. When the completed results were announced, he was convinced that the public would come to recognise that the departure was fully warranted."

In reply to this, I would like t point out what the Government is doing in order to try to bring about what the Minister has stated, viz., elimination for the benefit of the state of the contractors' profits. I have made several visits of inspection of the building in course of construction in Bridge-street, city, as offices for the Public Instruction Department, and I find there both workmanship and material that no contractor would be allowed to put into any public contract. If I were to say no more, but only make this bald statement, I shall be called names, and the public will be told that I was always a bitter opponent of the day-labour system, and that I hold a brief for the contractors. But I intend to give a few details of what I saw there, and what is open to anyone to see who has a practical eye. A very large number of the stones are wanting in thickness on their beds, which entails a lot of extra work for the setter, who has to pack up with spawls to make a bed for the stone that is wanting in thickness. The same applies to the back of these stones, which are backed up on the inside with brickwork. This also means extra work for the bricklayer, who has to cut bricks to fill up the want in the stones. The reveals of the windows are not straight, and before anything can be fitted into them it will be necessary to put a mason on to straighten them, but the most conspicuous thing of all is in a small doorway facing Young-street. The mason who worked the stone in one of the jambs was either given one that was too small, or else he worked it too small himself, with the result a thin piece has had to be worked and planted in. This would not be so noticeable only that the piece planted in is a different colour to the original. These are a few things I saw from the road, and I have no doubt if I had gone on to the building and made a thorough inspection of all that is being done, I could find a great deal more than one can see from the road. There did not appear to be many men working on the building, nevertheless there are about four foremen, and if their wages are added to the cost, and giving all the bad workmanship and shoddy material in, I fail to see how the department is going to save to the State the contractors' profits, as the cost of supervision will amount to a great deal more than the profits that would be likely to accrue to a contractor, and notwithstanding that the State is only getting shoddy work.

With reference to the joinery works taken over from the Railway Commissioners as a going concern. I am given to understand the method they adopt in making up a tender for any work done for the department is to allow the top price for all material and labour and then add 33 per cent. to enable them to show a profit on all they do, and this is how the Government hopes to hoodwink the general taxpayer into believing they are saving them the contractors' profits. I venture to say that if ever daylight is let into this pet scheme of the first Labour Government, and they get to know the cost and character of the work they have got for their money they will be astounded. I am, etc.,

J. FALLICK.

THE CHURCHES.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION.

Speaking at a meeting held in London a few weeks ago on the value of religious education, Lord Hugh Cecil, M.P., said of the two sets of critics—secularists and undenominationalists—of the Church system of education the latter were the worse antagonists. They favoured the teaching being limited almost to moral education, with vague statements about theism and a future state, and the effect on the minds of those receiving it was to produce not evangelical Nonconformity, but what was called liberal Christianity, or, to use a more expressive phrase, reduced Christianity, which had become a very important and dominant school of religious thought.

It was this that made the religious education of the national schools so dear to church people. What was meant by the charge that the Church taught dogma in the schools was that the Church teaching was unduly theological, and such as was required to bring the children up as theologians. This was not only untrue, but the converse of the truth. The aim of the distinctive teaching was to bring the children up as members of society with something definite in their religious life, as against a mere knowledge of theoolgical propositions. They insisted upon that now because they were satisfied that according to their own Church views this was the true system, corresponding to the divine reality of the universe, and because any less definite system, mere inculcation of isolated propositions in morality or theology, would not produce that impression on the futre life of the children which it was the essential purpose of religious education to produce.

The Church system of teaching was more than instruction; it brought the children into certain definite influences, accustomed them to a certain way of life, and made them familiar with definite worship. Whilst this had an effect that was permanent and living, the undenominational system was barren, transitory, and ineffective. If the rich members of the Church cared so little for the religious teaching in their schools that they were not prepared to make some sacrifice in order to keep such schools as St. Peter's—one of the few left in London where the old system of religious instruction was given without hindrance—then the time would appear to have arrived when they might say they were at the end of Christianity playing the part of moderator between the rich and the poor.

The Archbishop of Sydney yesterday evening inducted the Rev. Edward Lampard, B.A., formerly rector of St. Michaels, Wollongong, to All Saints' Church, Parramatta North. The Rev. John Doan, late rector at All Saints', Parramatta, has been appointed to Holy Trinity, Sydney.

The Rev. W. L. Langley, rector of St. Stephen's, Newtown, has been appointed chaplain to the Archbishop, in the place of Archdeacon D'Arcy Irvine, who has resigned.

The foundation-stone of the Roseville Church of England building will be laid this afternoon by the Archbishop of Sydney, Dr. Wright. The building in course of erection is of an attractive appearance, and will hold 240 people.

To commemorate the first Christian service held in Australia, the Church of England Men's Society will hold an open-air service in Macquarie-place, on Sunday, the 26th inst. The site will be as near as possible to the original site of the first service. The Archbishop and the Dean of Newcastle will deliver addresses. A procession, composed of the combined choirs of the Sydney Churches under the leadership of Mr. Joseph Massey, the Cathedral organist, a number of clergy and members of the C.E.M.S., and others, will leave St. Andrew's Cathedral at 3 p.m., and will proceed by way of George-street, Martin-place, Pitt-street, and Bridge-street, to Macquarie-place.

Mr. F. H. Molesworth, the newly-appointed organising secretary to the C.E.M.S., is expected in Sydney from England on March 13.

The Rev. T. J. Redhead, formerly of Victoria, and for some time assistant to Canon Carver at Wagga, was entertained by a large gathering of citizens on Thursday night prior to his departure from Wagga for the Young district to take up organising work. He was presented with a public testimonial, signed by members of all creeds and classes and a gold watch and chain, and a purse of sovereigns. The speakers emphasised the great influence Mr. Redhead exercised among the young men. In the course of his response the guest said he prefegred to work among young men. He said that at his ordination at Ballarat Dean Parker exhorted them "for God's sake, be natural." That advice had such an impression on himself and those ordained with him that they determined to go on a new line in connection with church work.

The Church of England at Glendon, near Singleton, was crowded on New Year's Eve, when a presentation was made to the Rev. Robert Schmiter on the eve of his departure to a parish in the Gosford district. At the church at Belford Mr. Schmitzer received a presentation from the Womans' Guild.

Miss Barber, an Australian missionary in the Far East, has passed successfully her second language examination, and is now engaged in mission work in the Foochow district. The Rev. W. P. Hubbard is making good progress in Canton with his study of Chinese.

The Rev. G. E. and Mrs. Brown, who were recently in Sydney, where Mr. Brown made an appeal on behalf of the work among the Moslem people, have arrived at Hyderabad.

The application of Miss Plumb, a qualified nurse, has been accepted for training for the mission field.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, who have been in charge of the aborigines' mission at Roper River, Northern Territory for some time, returned during last month, and it is expected that the Rev. H. E. Warren and a layman, Mr. Vizard, will go to this station in February and March. Plans are being made to extend the operations of the mission, and in this the two new missionaries named will be engaged.

The Archbishop of Sydney, Dr. Wright, considers the diocese ought very soon to provide its theological college with a new chapel. "The old chapel has many associations," he writes in the "Diocesan Magazine," "and in particular is a memorial to Bishop Broughton. But a similar Broughton memorial chapel ought to replace it. Apart from its architectural defects which endanger its stability, this chapel is so constructed and situated that the perpetual din of passing trams makes addresses almost inaudible, and renders the building quite unsuited for quiet and undistracted devotion.

The Roman Catholic Archbishop, Dr. Kelly, will, to-morrow week, bless the foundation-stone of the new chapel for the Sisters of St. Joseph, Mount-street, North Sydney, which is to be erected to the memory of the late Mother Mary of the Cross (McKillop) foundress and first Mother General of the Sisters of St. Joseph of the Sacred Heart, who died on August 8, 1909.

Mother Mary was born in Melbourne in the year 1842; therefore the congregation of the Sisters of St. Joseph, a purely Australian order, was also founded by an Australian. The work was begun in poverty, for the first school was opened in a stable in the town of Penola, South Australia, in the year 1866. From that hour Mother Mary devoted her life to the work of education, and, thanks to her indefatigible zeal, the institute spread rapidly, for under her fostering care schools have been founded not only throughout the length and breadth of New South Wales, but also in South Australia, Victoria, Western Australia, Queensland, New Zealand, New Norcia, and Southern Cross. The chapel will also serve to mark the golden jubilee of the foundation of the institute which has dispensed many blessings throughout Australia.

The annual Christmas tree in aid of St. Matthew's Roman Catholic Church, Jamberoo, was held in the local School of Arts on New Year's Eve, and was largely attended. The takings were about £60.

The proceeds of the bazaar in aid of the Nyngan Convent building fund, which concluded on Wednesday night, will amount to about £200.

Archbishop Kelly presided at the "Te Deum" ceremonies at St. Mary's Cathedral on Sunday last. He will administer private confirmation after the 11 o'clock Mass at the Cathedral to-morrow.

The Sacred Congregation of Propaganda has presented to the Pope the result of the latest general census of the Catholic population all over the world, which shows that the number of Catholics is now 236 millions.

German papers report a remarkable crusade for total abstinence waged by a Franciscan priest, Father Elpidius. Within a few months he has brought thousands into the "Kreuzbund," or "League of the Cross." More than ten thousand men in Silesia have pledged themselves to total abstinence.

The Rev. Thomas Hill, M.A., of the Bexley Presbyterian Church, is retiring owing to failing health.

Mr. H. R. S. Innes, student, has been appointed assistant to the Rev. James Hendry, of Coonabarabran.

The Rev. John Calder, who recently arrived from Edinburgh, has received a unanimous call to the Cootamundra Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. David Allan, of Casino, who for many years acted as clerk of the presbytery, first for the Clarence Presbytery, which included the Richmond, and latterly for the Richmond Presbytery, will in future reside in Sydney.

The Rev. A. C. Nelson, the new pastor of the West Maitland Congregational Church, will be publicly welcomed this evening, and to-morrow will be inducted by the Rev. J. C. Kirby, of South Australia, his former pastor.

The foundation-stone of the new Congregational Church at Katoomba will be set in position this afternoon by Sir Philip Sydney Jones, M.D., and Mr. R. W. Hardie.

The Rev. E. W. Weymouth will be inducted at the Congregational Church, Vaucluse, to-morrow.

The Rev. E. W. Hogben has resigned the pastorate of the Congregational churches in the Sutherland district, to take effect at the end of March.

The Congregational Home Mission superintendent is visiting the Copeland and Manning River district during the greater part of this month.

The Rev. P. J. Stephen, of the Central Methodist Mission, proposes leaving for his annual holiday on Tuesday.

The Revs. A. R. Edgar, A. M'Callum, and J. H. Cain have all decided to continue their work with the Melbourne Central Mission. An evangelists' training institute on the lines of the Sydney institute is to be started.

At the close of the summer session of the Croydon Park Methodist Girls' Guild, Mrs. Scharkie, wife of the Rev. John Scharkie, was presented with a silver flower stand in appreciation of her efforts in establishing the guild and promoting its interests.

Mr. J. Dyball, who has been a local preacher at Yass for 36 years, was presented with an adjustable easy chair and hymn book from the members of the Methodist churches in the circuit.

The Open-air Gospel Mission held special services at Manly on Boxing Day. Meetings were conducted during the afternoon at two centres—the reserve, South Steyne, and at Blue Fish. The Rev. W. Michael Smith conducted the meeting at Blue Fish, and Mr. G. E. Ardill at the reserve. There were large audiences at each place. At night a very large gathering assembled at the fountain, near the ferry wharf, and another meeting was held.

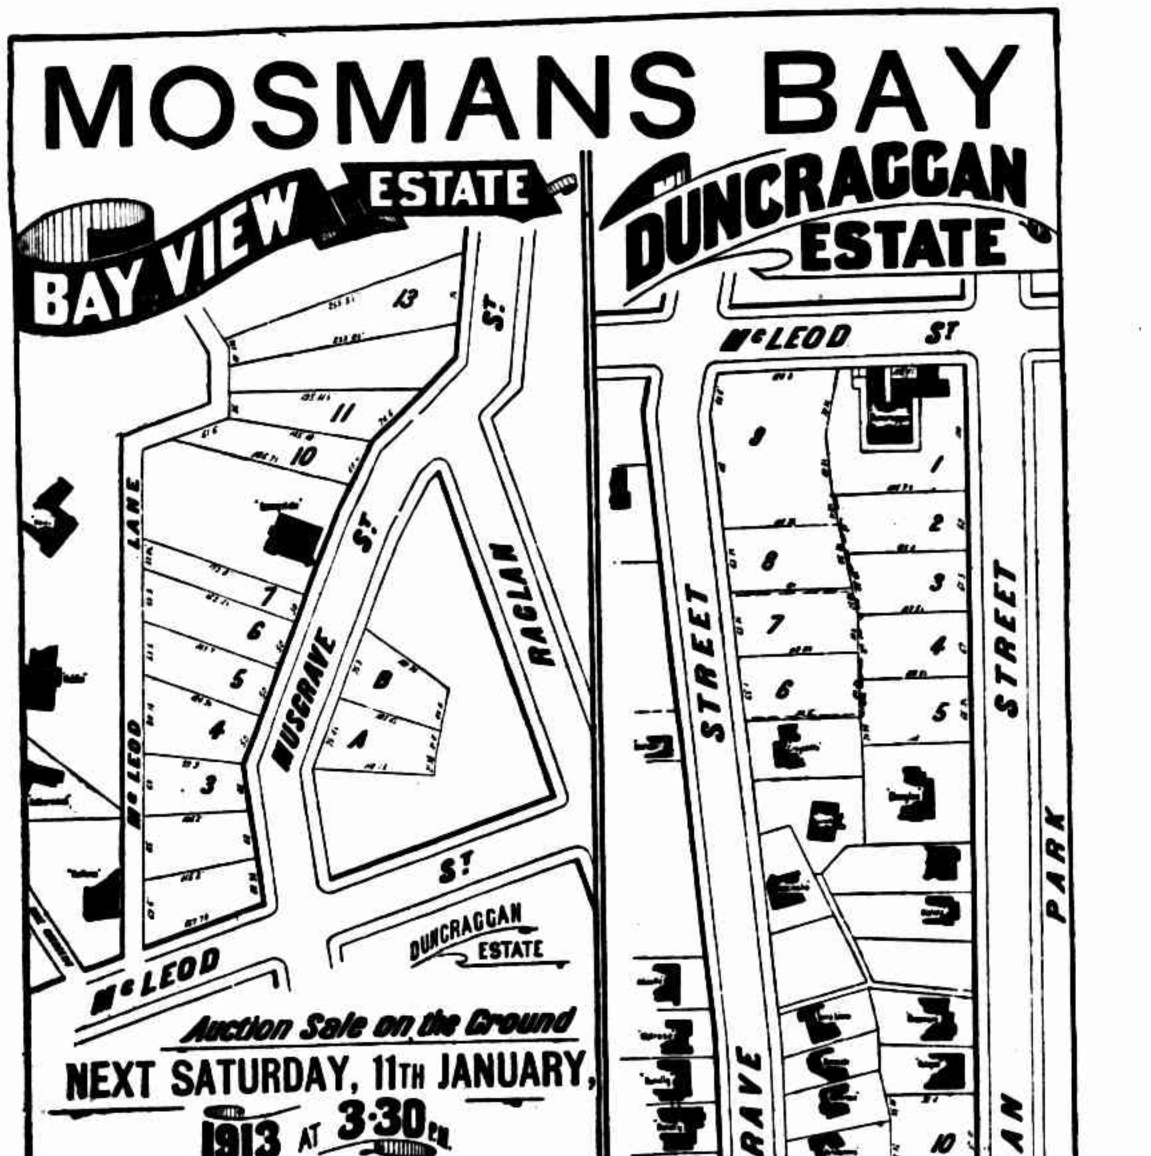

Special seaside services for children are being conducted at Manly during the summer season each Monday to Thursday inclusive. The Rev. W. M. Smith, M.A., is the missioner, and is much encouraged by the evident interest of the children.

The universal week of prayer will commence to-morrow, Sunday. The topics suggested are "Thanksgiving and Humiliation," "The Church Universal," "Nations and their Rulers," "Foreign Missions," "Home Mission and the Jews." This will be the 46th occasion upon which similar services have been held in various countries.

"A Minister's Christmas Offering" is the title of rather a lengthy address written by the eminent geologist and scientist, the Rev. W. B. Clarke, and presented to the people of Castle Hill and Ducal in the year 1840. From a beautiful country parish in Dorsetshire, he came to Australia and became incumbent of what was called a corner of the great southern land. At each place services were held on Christmas Day; but Mr. Clarke invited every member of his flock to hear his message on Christmas Day, and had this address printed and circulated. It is bold and very definite in thought and exposition, and full of valuable teaching, Archdeacon Gunther has just presented it, with other phamphlets, to the Mitchell Library.

The programme at the Sydney Mission to Seamen, which began on December 20, followed by a concert, both provided and presided over by the Ladies' Committee, was well sustained throughout the week, and closed with a picnic and concert on New Year's Day. The more important items were the Christmas tree, which the ladies of the Mission Workers' Guild provided, and the fish pond on New Year's Eve, which members of the Harbour Light Guild helped to supply and arrange. The services in the chapel were well attended, and the many expressions of appreciation show how heartily our sailor visitors have enjoyed the hospitality.

The Business of the Government Savings Bank of N.S.W. has been removed from all Post Offices.—Advt.

NATURAL DEATH.

Death by disease is not natural. Natural death should come at the close of life's day, and be as painless and as welcome as sleep.

When death is the result of disease, something abnormal and malignant has triumphed over life. Specific germs have, perhaps, obtained a lodgment within us, and have increased and multiplied after the manner of their kind, until the body, no longer able to endure the pressure of the invading host, perforce succumbs.

A frequent cause of unnatural death is the retention in the system of uric and biliary poisons—waste matter which would be duly expelled from the body by natural channels if the eliminating organs worked freely and healthily. The presence of these waste poisons in our bodies causes us to suffer from—

RHEUMATISM,	SCIATICA,	SICK HEADACHE,
GOUT,	BLOOD DISORDERS,	GENERAL DEBILITY,
NEURALGIA,	ANAEMIA,	GRAVEL,
LUMBAGO,	INDIGESTION,	STONE,
BACKACHE,	BILIOUSNESS,	BLADDER TROUBLES.
	JAUNDICE,

The failure of the kidneys and liver adequately to perform the tasks allotted to them by Nature is the principal cause of the retention in the system of uric and biliary poisons. Consequently, anyone suffering from any of the disorders named should seek, at once, the aid of that invaluable medicine—

WARNER'S SAFE CURE

FOR THE

KIDNEYS AND LIVER.

Warner's Safe Cure exercises a restorative and stimulating influence upon the kidneys and liver and, by establishing a vigorous and healthy action of those vital organs, naturally aids the removal from the system of the causative poisons.

It is thirty years ago since Warner's Safe Cure was first introduced into Australia, and its virtue is now so well known in numberless households that it is easy for anyone to be assured of the value of the medicine merely by making inquiries of friends.

Warner's Safe Cure is issued in the original form at 5s. per bottle, and in the "Concentrated" non-alcoholic form at 2s. 6d. per bottle. Any chemist or storekeeper can supply either kind.

A descriptive pamphlet, containing accounts of many remarkable cures, will be sent, post free, on application to H. H. Warner and Co., Limited, Australasian Branch, Melbourne.

HONGKONG: LIFE IN THE EAST.

Hongkong is an island, and Victoria is settled or situated on its inner side, facing the mainland of China and the town of Kowloon, which is about a quarter of an hour's journey over the water. How bald this description sounds when at first sight Hongkong reminds the spectator very vividly of Naples, its Bay and Vesuvius, to look on which, according to the adage, was sufficient joy for a lifetime. It is the weird collection of sampans or Chinese boats that soon dispels this idea, for they are congregated along the shores of the island and in the harbour in myriads. On these flat and dirty-looking craft, with dingy semi-circular awnings at the stern, the Chinese live year in and year out a strange floating existence. And in the harbour of Hongkong are apparently gathered all the ships of the world. Here are steamers from England, Vladivostock, Odessa, San Francisco, Hamburg, Perth, Calcutta, Brazil, Capetown, and goodness knows where. The harbour measures ten square miles, and more than 28,000 vessels of over 12,000,000 tons enter the port annually. Hongkong is a free port, opium being the only taxed article, and the yearly exports are computed at 27 million dollars, and the imports at 235 million dollars. Hongkong harbour, with all these visiting ships, passenger and cargo, riding at anchor, is extremely interesting, but the chief object of the visitor is to get ashore. Small launches ply from the steamers to the piers and wharfs abutting on Connaught-road.

The banks and the shipping offices, and offices of the merchants, surprise you by their appearance of stability. The buildings in Des Voeux-road and in Connaught-road, which run parallel to the harbour, are substantially erected, and are arched and pillared above the pavement in a most attractive way. That is, as you walk along the street you are protected from sun or rain by the verandahs, or balconies of the business offices overhead, these balconies being supported upon immense pillars with arched openings, which form a sort of arcade below. Most of the buildings are white, and many are built of granite. Queen's-road, parallel to the other two already mentioned, and behind them is distinctly Chinese in character. Here are the shops, some of them not much to look at, low-ceilinged little oblongs, but full of treasures, silk as fine as a cobweb, embroideries, silver, carved ivories as delicate as the lace, lacquer from Japan, brasswork, bronzes, green jade, porcelain, carved furniture, etc. The silver shops are perhaps the most fascinating, for Chinese silver is notoriously good, but the prices are high, and try as you will to bargain they will scarcely come down a dollar. The silver merchants are wily and perhaps, after all, the stuff is worth it, so if you want it, you hand over the proper money, and walk away with the goods.

How thrilling and enjoyable is the ride in the tram from the regions down by the harbour—up, up to the peak, which apparently is rising straight above you. It is a little affair this tram, run on the wire-rope plan, for just when you leave the bottom a similar tram starts from the top, hauling, as it were, on the rope which drags you up. But you have no time to think how it is done. You just sit there and make ejaculations of joy and delight like a child when first it mounts a rocking-horse, or like a small boy at a circus. There is nothing circuitous about the tram's route—it goes straight up the hillside of the terminus 1300ft above, with a few switchback-like undulations on the way, which give an added zest to the delicious journey. To sit in this noiseless peak car and mount higher and still more high, to be on a level with the swaying palm tops, the roofs of beautiful houses, one minute, and to see them recede in the distance far below the next, soon to be on a level with the road, which wound like a narrow ribbon up above a few moments ago, and now spreads to right and left of you; to feel the air cool, and fresh, and reviving, blowing about your cheeks—these are delightful enough surely. And then the views, though you must crane your neck back to see them! The wonderful tropical vegetation, with the red hibiscus everywhere in the foreground, the splendid two-storied houses, and down below these the town of Victoria, and the blue harbour waters of Hongkong, with great steamers, ocean liners, yachts, launches, etc., and, nestling along the shores, a countless conglomeration of junks and sampans. The air at the Peak is said to be 10 degrees cooler than in Victoria, or Hongkong, as it is usually called, and the difference is certainly wonderful. The rarity of the atmosphere affects the ears of many people, and for a time they are afflicted with "singing in the head," which, however, passes away very soon with most, though with some the air seems to rush through the ears quite painfully every time they go up in the Peak tram. There is a good hotel, called the Peak Hotel, at the tram terminus, and here and in charming homes many Hongkong folk like to stay for the summer months, as the journey down only occupies six minutes, and is thought nothing of by the men (though their wives think twice or thrice before they go "down to town" in the hot weather).

From the Peak Hotel you go in "chairs," carried by a couple of coolies, one fore, the other aft, up to Signal Hill, 1823 feet above the sea, to look upon the finest view perhaps in all the world. That view from the signal station beggars description. It seems like sacrilege to attempt it, and words could not convey much, after all, just go there and see it. The spectator stands on the highest point of this fascinating island of Hongkong and looks down upon its wooded slopes, upon the terraced city of Victoria at the base, and upon the blue waters of one of the finest natural harbours in the world. Opposite Victoria rise the barren-looking reddish hills of Kowloon, the mainland of China, and dotted about here and there and everywhere are islands of all shapes and sizes, great and small, surrounded as is the way of islands by water, but such water, so deeply, gloriously blue, that the panorama spread out before you, once seen, can never be forgotten. The peak has a horrid habit of shrouding itself in white vapour, the valleys below are mist-hidden at such times, and the harbour is dull and foggy, then visitors with perhaps only a day or two in Hongkong see little or nothing, and they are loathe to believe that this unsurpassed view which the residents talk about (but never boast about, strange to say) is anything but a myth.

"Fragrant streams" is the meaning of the Chinese name Hongkong. In winter, from November to April or May, it is a delightful place, the climate invigorating and never too cold. There are plenty of dances then, everybody indulges in walking exercise along the lovely roads, which go down and up, round and round the island (it is ten miles long and only 3½ wide), tennis, polo, and other games are played. Polo is played in summer, too, on a fine and picturesquely-situated ground past Causeway Bay.

Happy Valley, where the cemetery and the racecourse lie in strange juxtaposition amongst almost encircling hills, is an enchantingly beautiful place. The cemetery is enclosed by a wall, and only a road divides it from the racecourse, there motors whizz all day long and half the night, for motoring roads are scarce in hilly Hongkong, and "round the racecourse" (which means, of course, "past the cemetery") is a favourite spin. The universal green level of the oval, with its white fences and white grand stand and pavilions, set against the background of hills and undulations, where many fine houses are to be seen, is the playground of the colony. Baseball, football, cricket, bowls, tennis, hockey, and golf are played here. But it is when the gymkhanas are held that the racecourse looks at its best, for the ladies come out in their pretty frocks to decorate the already pretty scene.

The graves are thick in the Happy Valley Cemetery, different sections being set apart for different nationalities, but the mortality among the people of Hongkong is not now nearly as great as it was. Indeed, Hongkong—once known as the grave of the East, and considered to be a veritable death-trap—is now a very healthy place. In old days the sanitation was very bad, and when the island was first inhabited by English people and they settled on the other side of the island, deaths occurred with startling frequency. Stanley, the scene of the earliest occupation, is nine miles from Victoria, and the military graveyard there is the saddest spot on the island. Exiles from home in the old days soon found a last resting-place when ordered off to Hongkong.

When the English first came to Hongkong there was scarcely a leaf in the whole place, any trees there were had been cut down by the Chinese long before. Thousands of pounds were spent by the Government in planting trees and palms, and the result is wonderful. But the mosquitoes and the sandflies are there in hordes, and they are simply savage in their attacks. They love the newcomers, and will not let them alone for an instant. Mosquito curtains are of little avail to keep them out, and some people have "mosquito houses" erected in their bedrooms. These are of fine netting, the same as used in Australia on windows and doors to keep the flies out. But emerge from the mosquito house, and the mosquitoes will pounce on you. They are so quiet, no hum, no noise, but the blisters are out upon you, and the poison is there to your sorrow, pain, and annoyance. The sand flies are worse, because there seems to be absolutely no getting away from them. Some ladies, new to the place, take pillow-slips about with them to put their feet and ankles in as a protection against the mosquitoes in their friends' verandahs, so I've been told. And they are to be commended for their wisdom and forethought. The "pillow-slip" should be of leather, though, to be of any use. Vicious, spiteful, venomous, persevering, and elusive—the gods defend us from their onslaughts.

THE BLUE MOUNTAINS.

SOME LESS-KNOWN RESORTS.

(BY G.C.P.)

No, they never pall upon you. Wearied out—or in your egotism thinking yourself so—with the wear and tear of things, you come to them year after year, to be met by the same homely welcome at their hands, and to learn yet something more of their secrets.

To one who really tries to cultivate an acquaintance with our glorious western mountains, they seem to assume the air of a living thing. Fechner went so far as to construct a theory of what he called an "earth soul," ascribing a sentient quality to the planet-home of the human race—a theory which so great a philosopher as the late Professor William James did not disdain to discuss soberly. Philosophy aside, the mountains stand to the mountain-lover as a living, breathing friend. Affectionate imagination invests them with an air of vague personality, and the mental imputation is not all delusion.

It is the province of a friend to have reserves that are one by one removed, for the pleasure and benefit only of those who prove deserving. In this respect our mountains fill the rôle completely. Folk who simply "do" them see them not at all. To whirl in a motor car to Wentworth Falls, to Govett's Leap, or Echo Point, may be to take the line of superficial comfort, but it leaves a whole vast array of beautiful and meaning revelations completely out of view.

Nor are the mountains known when one has seen the show places around Katoomba and Leura, or descended the National Pass to emerge at the Valley of the Waters, or penetrated below Govett's Leap to the nether depths of Rodriguez Pass, and out by the Grand Canyon. To have done any one of these is to have created a memory for life. But to have done all of them, and many more besides, is to have still fallen short of having learned the mountains' secret. They are all in the line of the grand and the magnificent, and the grand and the magnificent have their place in thought and life. But they do not make up the whole of either. In the orchestra one does not want to hear for ever the blare and fanfare of horn and trumpet, and the crash of cymbal and tympani. When these have passed the gentle song of flute and oboe fall with a soothing welcome on the ear.

It is precisely so with our glorious mountains of the west. Wonderful Katoomba and romantic Leura, the rugged environs of Blackheath and Wentworth Falls, not forgetting the older and more distant Mount Victoria, with its background at the picturesque Mount York—these touch the level of the magnificent. But in many a hundred sylvan glades and quiet gullies the eye will find a restful charm, and in many a hidden waterfall and glancing cascade the hearing ear will hear the quiet serenade of flute and oboe. As far eastward as Wentworth Falls, with its glorious National Pass, the greater prophets in the realm of mountain scenery speak out their sonorous messages. But at this point the minor prophets, in correspondingly greater number, take up their burden, which, beginning at Lawson and reaching to the last mountain station at Glenbrook, never really palls or fails. After having outlived football or polo, one takes kindly to golf, or even bowls. It is the place of golf and bowls that is metaphorically supplied by the two last-named places, with more than half a dozen others thrown in.

To these come the folk of middle age; men and women wearied by burden-bearing overmuch; convalescents, maybe; quiet family folk in search of a backwater of retirement. Considerately brief walks bring them by rustic pathways to many a fairylike retreat. Certainly when one reads on a notice board of "thirteen beautiful waterfalls within walking distance," he feels that arithmetic has been pressed to do its best, and concludes that there has been a businesslike segregation of the several links of a single waterfall chain. Still there is much everywhere to be seen and enjoyed.

Committing yourself to the lure of a valley on the south side of the railway line at Lawson, you come ere long to the Adelina and Junction falls. At the latter are two beautiful falls, side by side, the result of the clamorous meeting of two hurrying streams. Down amid a wilderness of wattle and gigantic Christmas bush, the friendly path leads to where the silence is broken only by the singing of the falls or the call of an occasional bush bird, invisible among the greenery. Near by is another liquid duet, made up of the Federal and Cataract falls, the former terminating in a deep crystal pool, and the latter made up of a sliding fall terminating in a sheer drop.

On the other side of the line is Dante's Glen, by no means ill-named; and from this the Empire Pass beguiles the wanderer finally to Frederica Falls, past endless varieties of moss and fern. Along with the Junction Falls, Dante's Glen boasts of a unique effect. Here in the summer nights fireflies glide and glow worms shed their weird radiance. The play is one of the rare, fantastic secrets of the mountains, transporting one to a momentary fairyland.

Roaming Sydneywards from Lawson, one comes upon Sydney Rock, a pile by the roadside, commanding on a clear day a view extending to the distant city, and taking in a wide sweep of country between. A centipede in the distance evolves into a train, struggling up the long ascent and rounding many a tortuous curve.

A walk of under a mile, and a sharp turn to the left, lead to Lyre Bird's Glen, with lovely ferns on the hillside and a pretty waterfall. The Horseshoe Falls also present a remarkable curve in amphitheatre design, with a curious overhanging rock, tricked out with ironstone stalactites depending from its fantastic roof.

On the way a gate opens to the left beside a creek. The further bank of the creek has been decorated by beautiful rockeries, and an avenue and shrubberies border the inner roadway. It is the entrance to the Hall Sanatorium, whose red-tiled roof makes a picturesque effect against a background furnished by the beautifully wooded ridge. The story of the sanatorium is not without its touch of deeper beauty. Many years ago a gentleman came from England to Australia, in hope of victory over the dreadful disease of tuberculosis. His quest proved successful, and in his gratitude, and as a kind of tribute to the climate that saved him, he provided the beautiful "home" that bears his name as a refuge for battlers against the same foe whose means are insufficient for such provision on their own account. Such, at any rate, was the story as told me by a German orchardist and dairyman of the neighbourhood, who appears to have quite "struck oil" in the pursuit of his dual industry, judging by his air of manifest content.

So one might ramble on, and tell of many a point of interest in this lesser realm. Near by is Hazelbrook, with its pretty Terrace Falls. Woodford is a pretty mountain village, abounding in picturesque vales and dells. At Faulconbridge is the grave of Sir Henry Parkes, within its quiet enclosure on the south side of the line, quite near the station. Springwood is an ideal rural village, full of quaintly beautiful effects. Its distinguishing feature is in the charming forest fringing its every side.

Truly for the seeing eye and the heart alert our mountains hold their ever-waiting secret and their ever-abiding charm.

SKIN TROUBLE ON NECK AND HEAD.

Grantham-street, West Kogarah, Sydney, N.S.W.—"I have suffered for ten months with a skin disease, which broke out around my neck and head, and also on the upper part of my lower limbs and on the back of my hips. The complaint first broke out as a pimple, and in less than a fortnight there were sores all over me. I tried several different remedies, but made no sign of getting better. Some of my friends told me of the Cuticura Remedies, and I got both the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. Before having used them one week the itchiness had disappeared, and I was enabled to have a peaceful sleep.

"Before that I could not sleep of a night, because every time I moved I would stretch the skin round the sores, and then I would lie on my side for three weeks because the pain used to be too great when I would attempt to lie on my back. It was almost the same with my neck and head until I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I can truthfully say that they have cured my skin disease." (Signed) F. E. Breakspear, November, 5, 1911

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, a sample of each, with 32-page Skin Book, will be mailed free on application to H. Spence and Co., Dept. M., Sydney, N.S.W.—Advt.

THE DESPATCH BOAT.

(BY W.B.B.)

"Red light on the port bow, sir!"

The hoarse voice of the look-out crouched on the steep, slippery foc'sle sounds thick and indistinct through the heavy, drifting mist and flying spray of the wild North Sea.

The look-out's cry is taken up by the second officer, who, leaning over the bridge rail, endeavours to pierce the darkness ahead, his eyes sore and smarting with the driving sleet that cuts like whipcords across his face.

"Flamborough Head on the port bow," he shouts to the commander, and the latter, putting his hands funnel-wise to his mouth so that he may be heard above the whistling wind and the roar of the sea, yells to the quartermaster "Easy starboard," and like a faint echo comes the answering cry of the helmsman, "Easy starboard 'tis, sir."

Immediately the vessel slews away to windward, while across the tossing black waters come faint, intermittent flashes of red light, just visible through the murky gloom.

The boat is a cruiser-scout of the latest type, tearing through the seas at some 30 knots an hour. Her mission is a dangerous and difficult one, for she is carrying despatches from the Admiral of the First Division of the Blue Fleet in the English Channel, to the Commander of the Second Division, somewhere above the Firth of Forth. To do this successfully she must slip through the Red Fleet cruising in the vicinity of the Wash, where, also, a big flotilla of destroyers is waiting to pounce upon and intercept any vessel that may have the temerity to try to effect a junction between the enemy's fleets.

With open throttles and every pound of steam her engineers can get out of her, the despatch boat rushes through the darkness, the waves breaking over her high, narrow bows in boiling cascades. She carries no lights, and only the faint glimmer of the binnacle lamps throws a dull gleam on the compass-card. Like a dusky ghost she flits along, tossing and rolling, one moment hidden in the trough of the sea, the next poised on the crest of a huge wave, the propellers racing furiously till it seems as if the vibration must tear the frail craft to pieces.

On the tiny, quivering bridge two officers, clad in thick woollen overalls—known as lammy suits—cling to the shaking handrails, never for a moment daring to withdraw their eyes from the inky blackness ahead, knowing that any moment the flash of a searchlight may betray them and deliver them up to the enemy.

On her sea-washed decks men in shining oilskins lie at full length by the torpedo tubes, while forward, under the shadow of their grim, black machine guns, the crews crouch in silence.

As the vessel falls away to windward, the Whitby light is seen far away to port, until a thick bank of mist completely blots it out. Suddenly from out of the darkness there comes a flash of light, followed by a thunderous roar. The sound has hardly died away, when another tongue of flame belches forth, and then another, and another, till the whole sea appears to be lit up with a red glare and the air is filled with the thunder of guns. Searchlights flash hither and thither, sweeping the horizon with their dazzling rays. The despatch boat has been discovered, and the Great Game begins.

At a hoarse word of command, followed by the shrill whistle of the bos'n's pipe, the men spring to their machine guns, while the torpedo tubes amidships are swung round, ready to launch their steel missiles.

There is an atmosphere of grim earnestness about the whole affair, which, somehow, seems little suggestive of mimic warfare. Although the shots are harmless and the torpedoes have only "dummy heads," those on board the dispatch boat are still playing with life and death, for the slightest mistake, a single error of judgment or a second's loss of nerve, and the frail craft may go to the bottom—cut in half by one of the attacking ships unable to see her through the darkness.

One thing only can save the little vessel from capture, and that is her speed. Down below, half-naked men heap coal on the ever-hungry furnaces, looking like gnomes in some fiery inferno. The engineroom is a medley of whirring steel, with here and there a man clinging to the slippery rails, pouring oil in the flashing cranks as they fly round. To the uninitiated it seems like a pandemonium, with the rattles of the rakes and shovels, the clang of the furnace-doors, the roar of the machinery, and the hissing of steam from the escape pipes.

Suddenly, on the starboard bow, a black mass towers above the dispatch boat. There is a sharp order, the sound of a solitary shot, and then the spiteful cough of the quick-firers, followed by the low hiss of the torpedo tube as it ejects its terrible weapon, announces that the battle has begun.

And so the fight goes on, the boom of heavy guns mingling with the rattle of the lighter weapons, and always the dispatch boat tearing onward, endeavouring by every means that skilful seamanship may dare to escape from the clutches of the enemy. Gradually the sounds of firing grow fainter and the flashes of the guns less vivid; then there comes to the sorely-tried crew the belief that they may yet escape.

In the east a faint glimmer of light begins to appear, heralding the approach of another day. One hour more—less perhaps—and they will be out of danger, and the Admiral's dispatches will be delivered.

As dawn slowly breaks, and those on the bridge search the horizon for signs of friend or foe, a dull grey hull is seen approaching. If she proves to be one of the Blue Fleet they are safe; if not, then all hopes of getting through the enemy's lines are gone.

As the stranger draws nearer a little flag flutters to the masthead, and "breaks." As it does so a cheer goes up from the hard-pressed dispatch boat, for the vessel ahead is the flagship of the Blue Second Division.

Half an hour later and the precious documents are safe on board, and the brave boat, with her weary crew, makes for Leith, where they may enjoy a few hours ashore.

Such is the every-day work of a scout, and it may interest many to learn something about these wonderful little vessels. As a matter of fact, it is rather difficult to say exactly where the destroyer ends and the scout begins, the latter being, strictly speaking, an evolution of the former. It is safe, however, to regard the Crusader class, which are oil-burners, as belonging to this species of scout-destroyer. Two of these craft, the Swift (which was really an experimental vessel) launched, in 1907, made the remarkable speed of 36 knots. The Tarter, another of the same type, has actually done 38 knots on service.

The evolution of these craft presents one of the most interesting stages in the development of modern naval warfare. Originally the torpedo boat was merely a swift launch provided with a spar or outrigger, to which was attached a package of explosives, the manipulation of which was nearly as dangerous to the occupants of the launch as to the vessel attacked. The introduction of the automobile torpedo, however, demonstrated the necessity of constructing boats specially adapted to this phase of warfare, and, in 1873 the Norwegian Government ordered from Messrs Thornycroft the first real torpedo boat, a craft displacing 17½ tons, and having a speed of 15 knots.

In 1877 the first British torpedo boat was launched, the Lightning, having a displacement of 27 tons and a speed of 19 knots. But no sooner was the British Government to recognise the value of these craft that in 1885 Russia had 115 torpedo boats, France 50, and Great Britain only 19.

The torpedo-boat destroyer was the outcome of the great naval manoeuvres of 1885, and the first two—built in 1885-6—had a displacement of 260 tons, and engines of 1200-h.p. But it was not till 1890 that really satisfactory craft of this type were constructed, for it took some time before the difficulties of combining tremendous engine-power with limited space and fuel capacity could be overcome.

The reciprocating engine did a great deal to remove these obstacles, and then came the turbine which permitted of a larger type of boat being built. The growth of the destroyer may be gathered from the following figures:—1895, Viper, 312 tons; 1900, Cobra, 400 tons; 1902, Velox, 440 tons; 1903, Eden, 540 tons; 1906, Mohawk, 765 tons; 1908, Amazon, 880 tons; 1909, Swift, 1825 tons.

Lastly came the oil-burners, which at present constitute the first destroyer flotilla in England, and now we await the coming of the motor destroyer.

It will thus be seen that the destroyer and the scout have, like other specialised craft, gradually developed from small beginnings. At the present time they represent the highest form of engineering skill, wherein the maximum of engine-power has been crowded into the minimum of space.

EYE OR EAR?

PICTURE SHOW OR PLAY?

(BY LOIS.)

While we discuss, intermittently, the moral and social effect of the picture show, new films are produced more and more rapidly, and "palaces" to display them increase in size and number everywhere. New and improved picture theatres are continually opened in every large town in England and on the Continent, and Capetown, striking a new note, has just floated a picture palace ship in Netherlands Harbour, in order that an audience may at the same time enjoy the show and a sea breeze. Newspapers, which once spoke of the cinematograph as if its film were as slight in its influence as in its substance, now devote occasional columns to notes upon its production, and the business increases in importance. A film that will please the public eye is worth a small fortune, and money is not spared to produce it. By permission of the master of the Badminton hounds, a fox hunt will this season be followed by an army of men carrying cameras and by a fleet of motor cars, so that all the world may see how hundreds of brave Englishmen need the help of a pack of hounds, when they go out to kill a little fox. A company of film makers is now disturbing the quiet of the picturesque peak country in Derbyshire, in order to get the right background for Dick Turpin's escapades, while another is giving its attention solely to the British Navy, and so producing a succession of pictures of unfailing interest.

But the mission of the cinematograph film is not only to amuse. Like a scientific teacher, it began by attracting the interest, and absorbing the attention of its pupils, with fairy tales and simple facts, but already it is preparing to lead its children out of the kindergarten into the wider world where science and art may be depicted by its dainty fingers. It may be, it must be, that ere long history, geography, art, and even religion will be held forth in its unerring grasp, and shown with faithful portrayal of every lineament.

Experts have just inspected in London a film which has excited strong interest. Called "From Manger to Cross," it was taken in the Holy Land, at a cost of something like £20,000, so that scenes from the life of Christ might be reproduced with what may be supposed to represent the real background. It begins in a stable in Bethlehem, and ends on Calvary. No cinematograph reproduction has ever excited so much comment as this one. The council of the Protestant Alliance declares that it is a "deplorable travesty." eight bishops express strong disapproval, while at the same time a large body of divines not only think highly of it and its influence, but also undertake to send their congregations to see it. "From Manger to Cross" will probably bring the picture show nearer than any other film to a rigid censorship in England, and if produced here may do the same for us.

Meantime, whether censored by law, or left to the generally fair and always unmistakable censorship of public opinion, the cinematograph will increase its power. Like the other inventions which have altered the outlook of man, and have made the twentieth century, still in its youth, a century of wonders, it came unheralded, almost unrecognised. When Edward Muybridge, working in solitude, an Englishman, in Chicago, formulated a scheme for photographing a trotting horse, in order that a bet might be fairly won and lost, he saw but dimly the tremendous development that would follow his success. But while he worked at the moving film and the falling shutter, public opinion, unseen, unfelt, almost unnoted, was demanding the increasing gratification of the eye. The dramatists of mediæval England and those who followed them for centuries wrote for the ear alone. Any barn could supply a stage, a label or a chair could suggest a tree, and dresses might be utterly incongruous. Slowly, but with increasing persistence, the eye set forth its claim. Lady Macbeth no longer walked in a hooped skirt. The scene-painter was born, and tried to produce something that suggested an appropriate background. The property room became an important part of a theatre, and the costume-maker began her serious work. The eye, at first surprised to find its gratification so delightful, demanded more and more, and since two human senses can seldom, at the same time, be equally satisfied, the ear, neglected, discouraged, withdrew from the struggle for supremacy. A modern play may have no plot at all, no wit worth remembering, no speech worth hearing. But it must display the latest device in scenery on a well-managed stage; it must, in short, dazzle the ever-greedy eye if it is to become popular.

The problem play for some years of the last century arrested the demand for spectacular display, and diverted the public eye by appealing to the moral or immoral sense of the community. Bernard Shaw and Galsworthy still rely on the educated ear, and offer little to the eye; but such plays as theirs are the exceptions which prove the rule, for they need to be heralded by columns of special criticism to attract a special audience, and they never have the "run" which a show composed of scenery, tinsel, legs, and ballads can always command.

Into this world, where the insatiable eye is ruler, the picture show comes with an assured welcome. Its scene shifts with the speed of thought, its problems are solved without discussion, no waiting wearies, no dry speech tires. What more can the conquering eye desire?

Meantime, from the midst of those who love and serve the stage, a voice is heard demanding that the setting of a play shall receive less consideration, and that the actor and his work shall have their due. The exponent of this opinion, Gordon Craig, son of Ellen Terry, is now in Moscow, where he is arranging to produce there, and later in London and elsewhere, dramas with a minimum of scenery, plays which will rely for their attraction upon the spoken word alone. If his scheme succeeds, the golden days of the dramatists may dawn again, and eye and ear, more completely dissevered, may retreat, the one to a glorious picture show, the other to the calm reserve of dignified speech. Thus, by a natural and unavoidable division, the cinematograph, instead of superseding the drama, may establish it in an unrivalled position, and restore to it its ancient glory.

A SCOTTISH ROMANCE.

WILL FOUND IN A SCRAP BOOK.

Judgment was given recently in the Dumfries Sheriff's Court in an extraordinary succession case in which, 18 years after the death of her father, James M'Kimm, who resided at Hardgate, Kirkcudbrightshire his daughter, Margaret M'Kimm, brought forward a holograph will dated May 22, 1894, which she stated that she discovered in a scrap book containing newspaper cuttings of poems that had been published by her father. She sought to set aside a former will of April 2, 1894, under which the estate had been administered by trustees. In the former will the estate was divided among M'Kimm's children, but the alleged new will, which was written on the back of one of the poems, purported to leave everything to the pursuer. Sheriff Campion, in his decision, declared the holograph will of May 22, 1894, to be M'Kimm's last will and testament. Referring to the question of genuineness, the sheriff said the holograph will had all the outward signs of having been written years ago, and the paper was of a similar nature and apparently of similar age to what Mr. M'Kimm was in the habit of using years ago. The circumstances were that Mr. M'Kimm, being dissatisfied with his previous will, had intended to go to Annan to get a new will drawn up by his agent, but was induced to go to a farm sale by a neighbour, who said: "Maw, you have a grand head for writing things. Write a will with your own hands." That evening he handed his daughter the scrap book, in which he had been writing saying she would find something inside the book that would keep her all right when he was gone, and she took him to mean that she would find comfort in reading the book afterwards. Next morning he was taken ill, and died a week later. It was not until October, 1910, that she in any way minutely examined the book, when the cover came to pieces, and the new will was discovered. This will, said the sheriff, was only what was to be expected, as the pursuer lived with and attended her father till his death, and she was not capable of executing such a fabrication as must be implied if the holograph will was falsated.

SOCIAL.

[All contributions and accounts of weddings or other social entertainments intended for the "Social" column in Saturday's issue should reach this office not later than Friday morning, and be fully endorsed.]

We should count ourselves a most favoured people to have been blessed with such perfect weather during the Christmas and New Year holiday season, which passed off so successfully. Although it is midsummer the holidays were not too hot or trying, which proved most enjoyable. The seaside resorts were largely patronised, and the pleasures of surf-bathing indulged in by thousands and thousands, whilst the races at Randwick and the Highland gathering at Moore Park also proved great attractions for a multitude of holiday-makers. The theatres and all places of amusement have been crowded during the week, and the people have apparently enjoyed themselves all through the festive season. We hope the New Year, thus ushered in so happily, may prove, through cloud and sunshine, to be full of blessings and prosperity for all.

On New Year's morning H.M.S. Drake left Sydney "homeward bound," and her departure was witnessed by hundreds of friends, who saw the flagship steaming out of the Heads with many feelings of regret. His Excellency the Admiral and Lady King Hall were on board, going as far as Hobart, where they intend spending the summer months. The Admiral will transfer his flag there to H.M.S. Cambrian, where it will fly until the arrival of the new flagship H.M.S. Australia. While in Hobart Sir George and Lady King-Hall will occupy the residence of Lady Lewis, which they have rented for the season.

Sydney will soon be comparatively deserted by members of the social world, many of whom have already left town, or propose doing so within the next week or two, for although the weather has not been so very hot, the sea breezes have been very strong and trying. Sir William and Lady Cullen are in Hobart, whither Sir Edmund and Lady Barton proceed on Wednesday next. Mrs. Arthur Allen, Mrs. Consett Stephen, Mrs. Rothe, and many others are at Bowral or Burradoo. The mountain districts are also full of visitors, and next week the Archbishop and Mrs. Wright will spend a few days at one of the mountain resorts, where the weather has been delightfully cool during the past week. New Zealand is also attracting many visitors, and the boats going across to the Dominion are just now crowded with passengers, many of whom are going over to camp and fish on Lake Taupo, or a walking tour on Mount Cooke; others again are going to see the many beautiful and weird places of interest, both in the North and South Islands.

Sir Charles and Lady Mackellar returned to Sydney on Thursday last by the R.M.S. Orsova, after spending an enjoyable year in Europe. Sir Charles has travelled much during his absence, and visited Holland, Germany, France, Spain, and Italy, and also went up the Nile as far as the Assouan Dam.

Among the passengers by the Orient R.M.S. Orsova on Thursday were Mrs. and the Misses Garvan, who are returning to Sydney after a two years' sojourn in Great Britain and Ireland and on the Continent.

The pretty little church of St. Mark's, Darling Point, was filled with guests and spectators on Tuesday afternoon, December 31, 1912, to witness the marriage of Frederick Cecil Robinson, R.N., Staff Surgeon, H.M.S. Sealark, only son of the late Dr. Robinson and Mrs. Robinson, Blackburn, Lancashire, England, with Grace Plunkett Acheson, only child of the late Mr. Robert Hugh Brabazon Acheson and Mrs. Acheson, Wollerang, Darling Point, and only grandchild of the late Mr. W. E. Plunkett, Under-Secretary for Justice. The ceremony was solemnised by the Rev. Willoughby Flower, assisted by the Rev. Thomas Ravenshaw, R.N., H.M.S. Penguin. The church was beautifully decorated with Shasta daisies and marguerites, intermixed with greenery, an arch over the chancel steps being ornamented with posies of daisies and a true-lover's knot formed of broad white ribbon. Between each pillar, on either side of the church, were large pots of tall palms, surrounded at the base with white agapanthus lilies and greenery, and each pew-end was decorated with a bunch of daisies. The bride, who was given away by her mother, wore cream satin, with an overdress of Brussels lace, looped up with sprays of orange blossom, the court train having been previously worn by her mother when presented to the late King Edward. It was covered with chiffon and embroidered with bunches of arum lilies. Her plain tulle veil was arranged over a small all-round wreath of orange blossoms, and she carried a sheaf of lilies and roses, which, with diamond and pearl earrings and a diamond ring, were gifts from the bridegroom. There were two bridesmaids in attendance, Miss Sibyl Gordon and Miss Daisy Ewan, who were dressed alike in cream cachemire de soie, with lace coats and sashes of cerise velvet, fastened with paste buckles, and their cream lace hats were trimmed with cerise plumes. The bridegroom presented Miss Gordon with a cameo ring, and Miss Ewan with a coral and pearl pendant, and both carried bouquets of cerise-coloured dahlias. Lieut. Knowles, R.N., was best man, and Lieut. Peart, R.N., the groomsman, both being officers of H.M.S. Sealark. After the ceremony the bells rang out a merry peal, and a reception was held by the bride's mother, at her residence, Wollerang, Darling Point, where Miss Plunkett, the bride's aunt, assisted in receiving the guests, and the bride and bridegroom were heartily congratulated by their many friends. The wedding breakfast was served in a marquee erected on the lower lawn, gaily decorated with flags and flowers, and a band played during the afternoon. Amongst the guests were the Archbishop of Sydney and Mrs. Wright, Sir Francis Suttor and Miss Suttor, Sir Albert Gould and Miss Gould, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Willoughby-Flower and the Misses Flower, Captain Glennie, R.N., and the officers of H.M.S. Kelly, of the Lands Department, Crown lands agent for Narrabri, N.S.W., and of Mrs. Kelly, Gladstone-avenue, Mosman.

The death of Mr. Monypenny, leaving his great work incomplete, has its parallels in the past. A striking case is that of Macaulay, who did not live to write that history of the reign of Queen Anne which should have been his most fascinating volume. Sir James Mackintosh's History of the Revolution of 1688 was a fragment, posthumously published, and not fully corrected, and the same remark applies to Fox's History of James II. Among novelists may be cited the cases of Stevenson with "Weir of Hermiston," and Dickens with "Edwin Drood."

AUSTRALIAN TIMBERS.

COMMERCIAL POSSIBILITIES.

ADVOCATED IN LONDON.

Sir George Reid (High Commissioner for Australia) presided over a meeting of the Colonial Section of the Royal Society of Arts in London recently, at which a paper was read on "The Hardwood Timbers of New South Wales," by Professor W. H. Warren, Dean of Faculty of Science, and Challis Professor of Engineering of the University of Sydney. Among those present were the Hon. Thomas Mackenzie (High Commissioner for New Zealand), Sir Newton Moore (Agent-General for Western Australia), Sir Thomas Robinson (Agent-General for Queensland), the Hon. Sir Charles Fremantle, Sir George Birdwood, Mr. Munro-Ferguson, M.P., Professor Percy Groom, Mr. Byron Brenan, and Mr. L. J. Hurley (Commercial Agent for the New South Wales Government).

Professor Warren's paper described the strength, elasticity, and other properties of New South Wales timber. The forests of the vast continent of Australia were for the most part of the eucalyptus species, and were generally known as hardwoods. The average height to which eucalyptus attained in New South Wales was about 100ft, with a stem of from 2ft to 4ft in diameter. In some jungle districts they had been known to reach a height of 200ft, and 150ft was not an uncommon height for more than one species to attain. But these heights sank into insignificance when compared with those of some allied species indigenous to Victoria, Tasmania, and Western Australia. The Tasmanian blue gum reached a height of 300ft. The strength and durability of timber depended to a large extent upon the locality in which the trees were grown. Granite country did not produce good timber in any part of Australia. Hardwood timber grown in swampy, low-lying ground was generally defective in tenacity as compared with the same timber grown at higher elevations. With the aid of lantern views and diagrams he described the properties of New South Wales hardwood timber, and the different tests which had been carried out.

In the course of the discussion which followed, Sir Newton Moore said he fully realised how essential it was that they should have some knowledge of the physical characteristics of the commercial timbers of Western Australia, and tests had been carried out. These proved conclusively that Western Australia possessed, with New South Wales, some of the best commercial timber of the world. They had 90,000,000 acres covered with timber, and 20,000,000 acres covered with commercial timber.

Sir Thomas Robinson regretted that the people on that side of the world knew so little about the beautiful timber of Australia. If they did there would be a great demand for some of this timber, which they were cutting so much to waste, for the making of furniture.

Professor Groom said that Professor Warren had put before them the most comprehensive piece of research ever undertaken in timbers. His experiments had a very wide commercial and even Imperial importance, because they touched very closely on the trade of the Empire. (Hear, hear.) Everybody would agree that it would be preferable for England to purchase these Imperial timbers, and he had no hesitation in saying that many of the foreign timbers could be efficiently replaced by colonial timber. What was to prevent that? Tariff reform alone would not prevent it. Many people said that it was impossible to introduce a new and unknown timber in that country. The whole difficulty was ignorance, and to remove this bar to free interchange they must diffuse a knowledge of the subject. He did not think such a work as had been carried out by Professor Warren should be left to private effort, and he suggested that steps should be taken to form an Imperial timber bureau, which should undertake the business of investigating and reporting on the subject in various countries, and of giving advice to commercial inquirers. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. L. J. Hurley also spoke of the commercial value of the New South Wales timber.

Mr. Munro-Ferguson, M.P., described the devastation which had taken place in the timber forests of Canada and the United States, and said it would be of interest to know what had been done in Australia in the direction of forming a forestry department.

A BUSHIE'S POLITICS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—May I, a resident in the bush, ask for a small portion of your valuable space in order to place my views on the present political situation before my brother "Bushies" through the medium of your columns. We are, Sir, living in critical times, and the present position is extremely interesting, not only to the extreme partisan, but to the "wobbler." It is, of course, the latter who determines the fate of most elections, and this is particularly the case when the parties are so evenly balanced. The term "wobbler" may be a misnomer, and possibly "sport" would be a better title, as he generally votes on the principle of "giving the other side a chance." For instance, last election he evidently said to himself, "These Liberals haven't put much money into my pocket. We'll give the Labour party a show, and if their promises are any good we shall soon all be happy and wealthy, and 'Sunny New South' will be a pattern to the world." The question now arises, have those promises been fulfilled? The voter who is of opinion that they have will naturally vote for the Labour party to be returned for a further term, but what of the man who is disappointed with the result, and who has been made to realise that the "frying pan" of the city man with the policy of centralisation, middlemen, and big squatters had been even better than the "fire" of Trades Hall tyranny.

Such a man may, at any rate in some few constituencies, cast his vote for the nominee of the "country party," so called probably because it is engineered and guided from Sydney. This party seems to have several ends in view—the establishment of a small party to hold the balance of power, and thus force the hand of whatever Government is elected to give the farmer or settler all he wants and "all will be peace and joy." This, though no doubt comforting to the heart of the unsophisticated "man on the land," can never come to pass, although at first glance the idea appears attractive and feasible, but in actual practice if the country party proposed any scheme which appeared too much "country party" and not enough "State" the said combination would soon resemble a "last year's straw hat in the whirls of Niagara." A third party can only accomplish its aims by alliance with one of the two great political forces. That being so, the two questions naturally arise, why have a third party at all? and, if not, which side shall we support?

Let those voters who have definite and reasonable desires on land questions band themselves together, and bind their chosen candidate to forward those desires. It will probably be found that the platform of the Liberal party will suit the man on the land, or indeed any non-member of a trades-union, better than the Labour party with its distinctly "class" legislation, for legislation to suit the demands of organised labour is just as much "class" as if in the interests of the capitalist.

Amongst the reasonable desires of the "man on the land" the following are probably the most pressing:—

First and foremost.—Freehold tenure.

Second.—Decentralisation, to forward which all differential railway rates giving preference to Sydney should be abolished.

Third.—Encouraging closer settlement by cutting up suitable land, and throwing open gold and pasturage reserves wherever practicable, and connecting same with the railway system, of course on an economic basis, never losing sight of the fact that by these means alone can the defence of Australia be placed on a sound footing.

Fourth.—Easier terms to a person taking up land in a rabbit, prickly pear, or blackberry infested area, if necessary giving a short lease quite free from rent, subject to clearing conditions, with the option of lease or purchase at its expiration.

Fifth.—The Government to assist the farmer (through the Department of Agriculture) in organising systems of co-operation for marketing goods, etc., always remembering that the prosperity of the "man on the land" is the only possible means of helping towards the realisation of our national motto, "Advance, Australia."

I am, etc.,

Dec. 31. BOWMAN BUSHIE.

IF A WOMAN HAS A FACE UNFIT FOR PUBLICATION.

If a woman feels that her face is not fit for publication she can wear a veil, but there's no way by which a fat woman can conceal the fact that she has entered the heavy weight division. It is impossible for her to forget it. She is unpleasantly reminded of it every time she moves. Her peace of mind decreases as her fat increases. She feels embarrassed unless she is standing near the Central Railway Station, the Town Hall, or some equally large bulky body. The only wonder is that any woman is nowadays content to put up with the humiliation and inconvenience of excessive avoirdupois, when such a simple, certain, pleasant, and inexpensive remedy as "Formettes," the Fat Reducer, may be obtained from almost any chemist or draper. "Formettes" are a proven, unfailing, tried, tested, and acknowledged remedy for reducing fatness. They are pleasant herbal little tablets that permanently remove excess fat without dieting or exercising, and without causing wrinkling or sagging of the skin. They strengthen the system, allow you to eat how much and whatever you like, and are a certain cure for heart troubles, indigestion, shortness of breath, dyspepsia, heartburn, sick headache, and innumerable other complaints from which overweight men and women suffer. "It was the end of December, 1911, that I caught cold and was laid up with pleurisy, which became very serious. The doctor thought it advisable to consult with another physician regarding my illness. For three days MY TEMPERATURE WAS 104 DEGREES. MY LIFE WAS DESPAIRED OF, BUT IT WAS THROUGH TAKING THE DOCTOR'S ADVICE THAT I AM IN THE LAND OF THE LIVING TO-DAY. HE ADVISED MY WIFE TO GET CLEMENTS TONIC FOR ME. 'THERE WAS LIFE IN THAT MEDICINE.' I am convinced that when he said 'Life in Clements Tonic,' they were THE TRUEST WORDS HE EVER UTTERED. I am sure that I would have been in my last resting-place only for that grand medicine. My wife paid 2/3 for the small bottles, and had she paid £40 she would have had good value for the money. I have seen a lot of testimonials about CLEMENTS TONIC in books and papers, but what I find fault with is THAT EVERY WRITER HAS UTTERLY FAILED TO GIVE THE PROPER VALUE OF THAT MEDICINE. You may use this as you think fit.

"I would like to express my thanks for the fortunate chance I got on board the Orient steamer en route to England some time ago that I was recommended a bottle of Clements Tonic. I was completely run down and suffered by nervous prostration, being troubled with insomnia and nervous headache. After taking one bottle I slept soundly, and soon got stronger. I had tried various medicines and spent much money with doctors, but all to no purpose. One bottle put me right, and was worth its weight in gold. I recommend this medicine very strongly.

THE MOPOKE.

In natural history if an error gets a start it may be overtaken and corrected again and again, but it will come up still in unexpected places with all the assurance of an established scientific truth which has never been in question. An example of this is to be found in connection with the popular fallacy regarding the bird responsible for the weird night call which we translate as "morepork" or "mopoke." The confusion of one bird with another in this respect has been dispelled persistently by men who are in a position to write and speak with authority—and with equal, if not more virile, persistency the popular error is perpetuated. With the majority of people the mopoke is believed to be identical with the Podargus, or Tawny Frogmouth, whereas the well-known nocturnal cry is produced by the Boobook owl (Ninox boobook, Lath.). The much larger bird, the Podargus strigoides (Lath.), or Frogmouth, is an entirely different creature both in order and habit, as well as in appearance. As that distinguished authority, Mr. Robert Hall, points out, the call of the Frogmouth "is feeble and unattractive," and may be expressed by the words "Oom, oom, oom," which are repeated a number of times. The Boobook owl sleeps and nests in hollow limbs or holes of trees; the Frogmouth sleeps and nests in the open. The latter affords one of the most striking and perfect examples of protective coloration to be met with in the kingdom of the wild, where the selective principle finds such scope for exercising its sway. Like all the nocturnal birds it has silky delicate plumage, which ensures practically noiseless flight; whereas in the day it is enabled to mimic the end of a broken grey limb with such fidelity that it is invisible to any but the keen, trained eye of the experienced naturalist and observer.

The Frogmouth roosts on a limb which slopes upwards and outwards, with another limb branching just above it. There is a twofold purpose in the selection of this position. In the first place it gives covering and allows of the instinctive imposture being effectively carried out, while at the same time affording shelter from the swoop of an eagle or other bird of prey which might be soaring above, and from its lofty outlook detect the sleeper in the fork. Lying lengthwise on a grey box or dead, broken limb (it is usually the latter), and flattened on the serpentine-like curves adjusting themselves harmoniously to the surface of its surroundings, the bird is so much a part of them that not one person, or even one wild creature, in a thousand would discover the presence of the bird. In mimicking the limb on which it rests the Frogmouth is, of course, aided materially by its colour. The plumage is generally tawny, with inconspicuous streaks on a background of drab; the colour harmonises perfectly with the bark of a grey box tree, or a dead limb of almost any kind. The birds nest in a fork, building a rather crude structure, which is barely capable of holding the white eggs. The nest is so shallow that the eggs will fall out on the slightest disturbance of the few green leaves and branches of which it is composed. One well-known Victorian observer states that he has often seen the eggs roll out even on the sitting bird being disturbed. The same authority (quoted by Mr. Robert Hall) says that he has commonly heard the note of this bird in the daytime during the breeding season but generally it is to be heard just after sundown. The Frogmouth and the Boobook owl (the true "mopoke") have nothing whatever in common excepting that they are both of nocturnal habit. The latter sleeps and nests in hollows, and is not therefore called upon to practise the art of mimicry. In form and colour it is a much prettier creature than the larger species. It is the diminutive size of the Boobook indeed which is so largely responsible for the popular notion that it is not the "mopoke." In the shaded solitude of the deep coastal valleys, or the mountains, where on cloudy days there is very little difference between noon and twilight, the call of the boobook may also be heard between sunrise and sunset. It was through being able to trace the source of a day call that the writer first located and established the identity of the boobook with the "mopoke." At first it seemed incredible that so small a bird could produce such a weird, penetrating, and far-carrying note. The fact is that the rounded little owl, all mouth and eyes and downy feathers, does not "look the part." To practically everyone it seems to be far more feasible that the note would be produced by the frogmouth. Furthermore, the latter is often seen in the daytime, about towns as well as in the bush, attraction being drawn to its presence by the fussy attacks of other small birds, such as the black and white fly catcher and the ubiquitous lunulated honey-eater. The boobook, on the other hand, is rarely seen anywhere. Hiding in hollows in the daytime, it is much less likely to be disturbed than the Frogmouth. The greater bird is, in short, seen occasionally where the boobook is merely heard at night, and so we have all the necessary combinations of conditions which make for error. The dominant colour of the owl is rufous, but the under surface of the extremely long wings (longer, in fact, than those of the Frogmouth) has a mottling of yellow-whitish spots, with streaks of the same colour on the breast, and a white circle around the eyes.

The call of the bird is deceptive. It has something of a ventriloquial effect, but is not nearly so powerful as we are apt to imagine. It has to be remembered that the note is usually heard at a time when the bush is enveloped in the silence of the night; and a suggestive thing is this: When heard early in the evening the call is not distinct or resounding; later, and especially towards morning, when the air is clear, and the silence of the bush is intense enough to be felt, the cry becomes wonderfully full and distinct. Under such conditions it will, moreover, carry for long distances. But it is a defect in auricularity which accounts for the cry being translated as "morepork" or "mopoke." Neither of these words gives anything like a true reproduction of the call. The blacks, with the unerring ear for bush sounds, which is characteristic of wild life, got far nearer to the birds articulation than we do. They interpreted the note as "boobook," and if one listens intently at night, that is precisely what it amounts to.

Although of extremely shy habits, and terrified by the presence of man, this bird, which seems to belong so essentially and primarily to the lonely landscape of the greater part of the Australian Continent, is brave to the last degree in defence of its young. Usually they appear to nest well out of reach in settled country. Their habits vary with their surroundings, as is commonly the case with the denizens of the bush. In isolated areas, where the intrusion of man is rare, they nest quite low down in any available hollow. Occasionally we have found them within a few feet of the ground, having an entrance provided to the hole of a dead tree by a rotted knot-hole in the side. No nest is built, the eggs being laid on the decayed matter inside the hole or limb selected for the purpose. Last summer the writer found a mopoke sitting on one egg and two little fluffy balls, which turned out to be young ones. The devoted mother was clearly paralysed with fear, yet she made no attempt to escape. The upper part of the tree was hollow, and she could have easily made her escape by that way. At first she did make a move up the hollow; but that was only while the terror of the surprise was in possession of her faculties. After apparently reconsidering the matter she returned and desperately sought to protect her brood. It is perhaps unnecessary to add that nothing was removed but what proved to be an addled egg. Some years ago we made an effort to domesticate two young ones. Every evening, while we had them, one old bird appeared near by and kept on repeatedly uttering its weird call; but seemingly (or it may have been merely the suggestion of circumstances) in a more melancholy key than usual. As the young ones languished we restored them to their parents, and after that they were not heard again near the homestead. These night birds are to be placed in the category of the useful, as they prey chiefly on insects. The boobook owl subsists mainly on locusts and other neuropters, Mr. Hall says, and they are thus well deserving of protection.

THE WHEAT CROP.

IN THE RIVERINA DISTRICTS.

XXI.

The Wagga district is our largest wheat centre. While the immediate Wagga district was officially estimated to have had about 80,000 acres under wheat, taking in Junee, Coolamon, Ganmain, The Rock, Yerong Creek, Uranquinty, Marrar, and Lockhart, of all of which districts Wagga may be considered the main commercial centre, the total area amounts to some 385,000 acres.

The average last year was a little over 12 bushels. Locally it is variously estimated by those in touch with the industry that there will be a slightly higher average this year, or it will be about the same as the previous season. We think, however, that this is an optimistic forecast, and do not expect the whole district to average more than about 10½ bushels. There is the usual tendency to bear overmuch in mind the good returns being secured in the beginning of the season, when the farmers are naturally stripping their best paddocks, and to overlook the presence of the large percentage of poor crops, which undoubtedly exist, especially on the western side of the main southern railway line. The latter is certainly a line of demarcation in this instance, although there are good crops to be found on the western side, and for that matter in every locality, where the land has been fallowed and worked.

The season is later on the eastern side, and in a year of a dry spring this has made all the difference. Right out to Germanton there will be a heavy average unless the untoward intervenes, for the bulk of the crop is very good. At Mangoplah, Big Springs, and Book Book good averages are being obtained, although some of the crops are very dirty, especially on Big Springs. There has been great development within the last year or two in this part of the district, notably at Mangoplah, where there are now 52 settlers. Fifty of these obtained their holdings under the provisions of the Closer Settlement Act, and with their families must represent a large number of people. Previously this estate was worked on the share system, and the share-farmers had the preference when it was brought under the Act through the efforts of Mr H. R. M'Williams, of Wagga, who has made a specialty of the working of this Act with remarkable success. Altogether 16,800 acres were taken up for closer settlement, and this year 8000 acres were under wheat. It was confidently reckoned that there will be an average yield of 24 bushels. It will be a high figure, but certainly the crops were looking splendid, and there appeared to be no tail-end. As in other localities on the late side, the rain came in time, and the fall after June was ample to produce good crops. Mangoplah is a beautiful estate, equal for wheat-growing, we should think, to any in the district. It is all softly undulating country. The soil varies, comprising chocolate, red, and whitish grey types. Different opinions exist as to which is the best, but all of it appears to be well suited to wheat-growing. It is held that the white-grey soil will stand the longest cropping, but that the darker soil does better in a dry season.

At the time of our visit harvesting was in full swing, and the farmers who had crops in were well pleased with their prospects. Coming in their first year, such a season gives the settler a splendid start, and almost guarantees, with ordinary fortune, his future. In the case of those who were not previously sharefarming on the estate, they came in too late to have any crop this year; but in the case of Messrs. Creasy Bros. they have wasted no time in preparing for next season. These are five brothers, who hail from Virginia, America, and it is interesting to note that they have a fair area of land under tobacco. They consider the country is ideal for this crop, which, they contend, does not require a lot of water. While not professing to know much about this crop, we have always understood that it wanted a good rainfall or other water provision, and would not have selected the Wagga district for its culture. It will be interesting, therefore, to see how the crop turns out, and whether the faith of these Americans, hailing from one of the most famous tobacco-growing States in the world, is supported by practical trial. Messrs. Creasy have also a large area under maize, over 200 acres, and it was looking well. Although they had only been on their farm four months, all this crop was growing, while there were 800 acres turned up to fallow for next year's wheat crop. An engine had been used to do the ploughing. The Americans would seem to be maintaining the national attitude of making things "hum," and they deserve a full measure of success.

The main crop on Mangoplah and throughout the Wagga country is Federation, while Zealand is sown for hay. Dart's Imperial and Bunyip, Yandilla King, Comeback, Marshall's No. 3, and other well-known varieties are also grown. Firbank is also a very popular wheat for hay. It is strongly recommended by the authorities. This year the late sowing, rendered largely compulsory by the dry weather, has just suited this variety, as it is wheat that should not be sown earlier than June.

While the crops on the eastern side of the district will give a fair average, there are some very poor crops in the west. On the Gobbagombalin settlement area, for example, the crops in the main are very poor indeed. They are short, with a heavy flag, but very light heads, and many of them will not go more than two or three bags. The average will probably not be more than about seven bushels to the acre, although there are a few decent crops. The grain is also a poor sample, and altogether the farmers' returns will not be much. The dry spring was fatal to the majority of the crops. At one period they looked very promising, but the want of half an inch of rain at the right time sent them off rapidly. A great deal of the best-looking crops was also cut for hay, when the dry spell set in, and this proved a wise course. While it is a great pity that the settlers should have had such a bad return, it is fortunate that they should have enjoyed three decent seasons previously, and should not be crippled. Furthermore, the experience of this year will probably bring home the necessity for fallowing the land. It is safe to say that there was no necessity for the present result if good farming methods were the rule. As it is, six-bag crops are being harvested on fallowed land, and the conditions of the district simply demand that steps should be taken to conserve the moisture and maintain the fertility of the soil.

Wagga is a great wheat district, and generally the farmers are considered amongst our best. Yet, as we have pointed out in other years, there is really but a small percentage of the wheat paddocks fallowed and properly worked. Along the railway line from Junee to Wagga the landscape is calculated to give a wrong impression in this direction, for there is a fine expanse of land under fallow, and, it may be added, the crops in the same part are almost invariably amongst the best to be seen. But travelling out in the district there is not the proportion of bare fallow to be seen that there should be. In this connection it is interesting to note some remarks by Mr. H. Ross, of the Department of Agriculture. Mr. Ross has had a practical experience of the Wagga district, having till some months ago held the position of agricultural inspector and instructor in Riverina. He recently judged the growing crop and allied competitions promoted by the Murrumbidgee P. and A. Association, including a competition for the best 100 acres of wheat for grain on fallowed land. He points out that only 8 of the 16 who entered could compete, because the remainder had not 100 acres of wheat on fallowed land. He writes: "This is astonishing when all that has been said and written with regard to fallowing is taken into consideration. It appears that 50 per cent. of the best wheat farms in the most up-to-date wheat district in the State, one may say the cream of our farmers, with large holdings, have each not 100 acres of crop on fallowed land."

We are glad to see these remarks. They come as a concrete example of actual conditions. In themselves they illustrate why, in our annual reports on the wheat crops, we have continually dwelt upon the necessity for better methods of culture amongst our farmers. It would be foolish to remain content with the idea that our methods are generally improving, because here and there men are found who are following the right lines. Mr. Ross's actual experience at Wagga goes far to explain the poor wheat averages that rule in this country. For it must be remembered that Wagga is really one of our most progressive farming centres. Mr. Ross also says in his report (and he is dealing with a picked lot of crops, not the ordinary run): "Viewing the crops inspected collectively, it cannot be said that, with few exceptions, the best methods have been employed in either cultivation methods, selection of seed, treatment of seed against bunt, or eradication of disease."

Such a statement is surely sufficient to impress growers with the necessity for adopting the best methods referred to by Mr. Ross, and amplified by him in the same report. It is a report that will repay careful study by the wheatgrower.

In regard to the crop competitions referred to, the prizes for the best growing crop and the best 100 acres of wheat on fallowed land were both won by Mr. E. Field, Gobbagombalin, a farmer whose unusual success has been previously referred to in the "Herald." In both cases Messrs. Lees Bros., Mangoplah, were the runners-up. The prize for the best crop of hay was won by Mr. W. J. Dennis, Harefield.

THE WOOL TRADE.

AN EXCELLENT OUTLOOK.

On Monday next auction sales of wool will be resumed in the Sydney market, after a brief holiday recess. Large catalogues were submitted during the week prior to the Christmas holidays, and most owners who were anxious to realise had an opportunity of securing catalogue space. The tone on two or three days was rather disappointing, and values were generally weaker. Large offerings in Brisbane were followed up by large offerings in Sydney, and a slight setback followed. The selling season has been a rapid and a most successful one; woolgrowers enjoying the full benefit of the supply position from the very opening of the weekly selling season. No opportunity was lost of informing the consuming side of the trade of the supply prospects from the very moment that the position became at all clear; consequently, all sections of buyers could come into the market with their eyes open to all the reliable information that could be afforded at the seat of wool production. Considerable misrepresentation was indulged in by a section of the trade, and financial press in England, and wool-consumers as well as the financial houses were asked to disregard information supplied from this side. Fortunately, more credence was given to the estimates made in Australia than to the absurd "tarra diddles," published in London; with the result that consumers were able to avoid making commitments that could not afterwards be executed to profit. Trade has been too good, and is prospectively too good for any forward selling tops or yarn below the equivalent of current raw wool values. What with that pleasing feature of the manufacturing side of trade, and the fact that a material shortage in Australian wool production this season seemed inevitable six months ago, there was no opportunity for the usual "bear" movement to get under way at Bradford during the first three or four months of the Australian weekly season. Anyone acting on the wise-owl advice of "wait and see" simply had the prospect of seeing opportunities slip by most of the time. The slight lull during the week ended December 21 was the only tinge of solace that came from the opening of the sales in Sydney on September 9; and, judging by the quantity available to clear up the clip in Sydney, Melbourne, and Brisbane, there are very few crumbs of comfort left for the gentlemen who seem to think that the ends of the consumers are best served by outbursts of the veriest moonshine.

Yorkshire was bamboozled into imagining that a plethora of wool was simply waiting to be mopped up 12 months ago; and then when the London sales were postponed, it was apparent that there was barely enough wool to go round for pressing requirements. The position to-day is even more self-evident. In a private cable this week from London the net quantity expected to be available for the first series, the list for which closes on Monday next, is 130,000 bales, as compared with 180,000 bales for the corresponding series last year, and 198,000 bales for the January-February, 1910, series. A number of clips formerly consigned to London for realisation have been already offered this season in Australian centres, and more will follow in the course of the next three to four weeks. Several New Zealand lots have been catalogued in the Dominion this season; so what with the tumbling off in quantity in London in November-December last, and the light supply in view for the sales opening on the 14th inst., there is very little room for pessimism or a presence at quantities being ample for requirements.

With regard to available supplies in Sydney, Melbourne, and Brisbane, they are very moderate to light. About 140,000 bales are likely to be catalogued by the close of the weekly series in Sydney; about 56,000 bales in Victoria, by June 30; and instead of some 50,000 bales being available in Brisbane, as appears to have been expected in some quarters for the next sales in February, reports from the northern State indicate that the offerings will total some 18,000 to 20,000 bales. However, there is no better key to fit the lock of the supply position at the present time than that turned out from the smithy of wool receipts in Sydney and Victoria. Up to yesterday there was a shade of wool arrivals in Sydney of practically 115,000 bales; and up to last Saturday of 120,000 bales in Victoria; a total decrease from July 1, 1912, of 235,000 bales, the average weight of which is materially less than last year.

Under all the circumstances it can be seen that there has been full justification for the optimism taken from the commencement of the current statistical wool year; and those buyers who have had the greatest faith in the position can review the situation with considerable satisfaction. Messrs. Wens and Co., writing, Rheims, November 16, said at that time:—"Thanks to the sound position of the wool trade on the fears of a collapse of values, which might have seemed justified by the Balkan War, have been removed. The increasing eagerness displayed on all raw wool markets goes to prove that manufacturers are well booked with orders, and that actual and large requirements have to be covered. A very large turnover in tops has been registered for nearly five months, so that stocks in French and German combing mills are reduced to 17 million kilos, as against 24 million kilos a year ago. Besides, it must not be overlooked that a general big shortage is expected especially so in Australia, and that, on the other hand, the world consumption is steadily increasing. All these factors illustrate the confident feeling that prevails in the wool department."

Under all the circumstances, growers whose wools have yet to be offered have good ground to be satisfied with the outlook. The offerings will be moderate in quantity next week, and the catalogues attractive. A strong demand is expected, with values well up to the best rates of the season. Rates current for the principal descriptions of the staple may be given as follows:—

INTERSTATE MARKETS.

There has been very little business reported from Melbourne. Auctions will not be resumed till the 13th instant, and about two weeks will suffice to close the weekly series. The first interstate sales in the New Year will be the annual offerings in Tasmania. On Wednesday next about 11,000 bales will be catalogued in Hobart, and on Friday next about 8000 bales in Launceston. February 4 is the date fixed for the opening of the next series in Brisbane. The offerings and sales in the principal Commonwealth centres compare with the corresponding period last season as follows:—

SYDNEY WOOL RECEIPTS.

Wool arrivals by rail during the week have been on a fair scale; but very light by boat, bringing the aggregate decrease for the season to date up to a shade within 115,000 bales. The quantities for the week by rail and boat, with totals for the season, compared to the corresponding period last year, are as follows:

FAIR OFFERINGS NEXT WEEK.

Nine catalogues will be submitted in the Sydney market next week, when the offerings on the four selling days will aggregate about 38,000 bales. A number of large clips will be included in the catalogues; but the offerings for the most part will comprise moderate-sized consignments, together with the wools from the late shearing districts, most of which are now to hand. Regarding this season's reduced production and the compensating improvement in values, Dalgety and Company, Ltd., say:—"It is satisfactory, in view of the decrease in production, to find that the average value for the 52,617 bales wool sold by us in the Sydney market from July 1 to December 31, is £14 is 11d per bale, an increase of £1 17s 9d per bale as compared with the returns obtained for the wool sold by us in the corresponding time in the previous season."

WENZ AND CO.'S REPORTS.

Messrs. Wenz and Co., writing Rheims, November 16 last, said with reference to tops that during the previous fortnight a good volume of business had been done at slightly enhanced values for current Australian merinos and all River Plate merino descriptions, all other qualities stiffening. Their five chief conditioning houses registered in October 7,483,000 kilos of tops, against 5,627,000 in October, 1911. The total for the 10 months, 1912 (63,400,000), showed an increase of 7,024,000 kilos, as compared with the same period of 1911 (56,376,000). Noils were selling fairly well at previous rates. The combing mills continued to be insufficiently occupied.

HAWKESBURY SHOW.

RICHMOND—The annual show of the Hawkesbury District Agricultural Association is usually held in May; but this year the date was fixed for next month, so as to get ahead of the Royal Show, in order to retain exhibits of draught stock, which leave the district in large numbers owing to the Sydney sales following the Royal Show. However, it has now been postponed until immediately after the Royal Show, to April 10, 11, and 12, owing to the dry spell. With an ordinary season the previous dates would have been adhered to.

NORTH COAST EGG-LAYING COMPETITION.

The manager of the Grafton Experiment Farm reports that the weather conditions for December were altogether favourable to egg production. The rainfall was low—07 points spread over eight days—and the temperatures have varied from 58deg. Fah. minimum to 106deg. Fah. maximum. L. J. O. Smith's pen has recorded a total of 102 eggs for the month, and again takes the monthly prize. There is a pronounced drop between that score and the next best (Sanders) of 127. The average for the month is slightly over 100 eggs per pen. The following are the results of the competition from July 1:—

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

"F. H. Cornish," Brewarrina.—There are various methods of getting rid of black ants. One plan is to mix flowers of sulphur ½lb and potash 4oz; set in an earthen vessel over the fire till dissolved. Then beat to a powder, infuse a little of the powder in water and sprinkle in places infested by the ants. Another way is to mix a cupful of sugar with half a cupful of water; bring to the boil, and add a tablespoonful of powdered borax; boil until well mixed. This honey-like mixture is spread in suitable places, and will attract the ants in thousands; they go back to their haunts and die. A few leaves of green wormwood scattered about will drive ants away.

"Yes, Sir! I can absolutely Guarantee this Suit."

Your tailor—every good tailor—who handles Vicars' Australian Tweeds will give you his positive assurance of service with every suit made from these All Wool Fabrics.

From long experience, he knows that a Suit properly made from them will retain its shape, its colour, and its style.

It will give you service to the last thread.

VICARS' AUSTRALIAN TWEEDS

are all pure Australian Wool; scoured and cleaned to the last degree; woven by Australians, with up-to-date machinery; dyed in fast colours, and shrunken scientifically.

There are no imported Tweeds to compare with Vicars' Australian Tweeds—no fabrics made of better materials, nor more perfectly woven and finished.

They are manufactured and designed in our own mills by Australians for the Australian Trade. They come in just the right weight for every season, because our experts understand Australian Climatic conditions, and the requirements of a fabric to suit those conditions.

The purity of the Wool used, and the excellence of the cleansing, weaving, and dyeing make them ideally sanitary. They are quite free from filling of any kind, and act as a protection by their non-conductive properties.

You can distinguish Vicars' Australian Tweeds from "others" by the "Waratah" marked on every yard of cloth. Ask your tailor to show you the latest designs.

OVER FORTY THOUSAND POUNDS.

COOPER'S BELLEVUE HILL-BONDI ESTATE.

These figures are more eloquent of the unique value of this property than any descriptions we may give, or of any arguments we can adduce. £37,000 worth was sold outright at the auction a week or two back.

This Estate is one of the most perfectly situated in Sydney—it is at once accessible, select, healthy, and picturesque. The Bellevue Hill Tram goes right to the Estate, which is thoughtfully planned, and good roads are made.

THE TRAM EXTENSION TO BONDI BEACH

from the existing Bellevue Hill Terminus, which has been passed by Parliament, will travel right through the estate, and the new line may be expected to run very shortly.

The View from the Estate is Superb, and all the Lots get the full benefit of it, those remaining being in splendid positions, overlooking the Ocean, Bondi Beach, Sydney Harbour, Rose Bay Links, etc.

THIS ESTATE IS NEARLY SOLD OUT.

A Few Fine Lots are still to be obtained from 70/ foot, upwards, but prompt action is necessary to secure them. Terms: 5 per cent. deposit, and balance extended over Five Years. Title will be Torrens.

STEADILY RISING LAND VALUES.

It would not be correct to say RAPIDLY rising values in connection with the Estate we have offered at Bankstown, as the increase is a sure and steady one—the result of increasing population and prosperity generally. The value of all the land we have sold in the district must be to-day thousands of pounds more than we have received for it and we have sold over £10,000 worth on the public's own valuation.

CONDELL PARK ESTATE

HABERFIELD OFFERS PHYSICAL AND FINANCIAL PROFIT.
"Sydney's Garden Suburb."

We use two phrases which appeal most forcibly to any alert man. Personal, physical profit includes the matter of your family's health. And this health and benefit come rightly before wealth. But to be able to combine with this desirable feature the element of "financial" profit, makes the proposition irresistible.

And this is just what Haberfield offers you. Every element which can impart an air of HOME has been ingeniously embodied in the planning of Haberfield. The dweller in this fine suburb feels that he turns his homeward steps towards a healthy, attractive, and desirable place. He leaves behind him the congestion and oppressive, dust-laden atmosphere of the city, to enter his home district, where health, relief, and purity of air and house are of a paramount importance.

The streets are wide, and lined with ornamental shade trees. Large open spaces, and the gardens surrounding the homes add to the beautifying and purifying of the suburb. Each house is of artistic exterior design each differing from the others. They are all sound, well ventilated, and weather-proof. The interiors are embellished with appropriate regard to the individual design.

It is easy to own a Haberfield Home. If you have only Fifty Pounds to pay as deposit we can deal with you at HABERFIELD. Our Easy Terms of Repayment on a 5 per cent. basis will astonish you. In most cases the repayments are practically less than the property is worth on a rental basis. The balance of purchase money is payable as rent. You arrive at absolute ownership in the smoothest and easiest way. You never feel the strain.

Visit Haberfield to-day. It is an instructive and profitable experience. You see just what scientific planning and artistic design can do to transform a dull, uninteresting district into a veritable garden suburb.

Cottages are available from £780 to £1575, and comparison of any price with the Cottage offered thereat will emphasise strongly the building economy of the HABERFIELD SYSTEM OF CONSTRUCTION. You can buy outright or under the extraordinary liberal provisions above referred to. The Cottages are ready for immediate purchase, or we will design and build to order, embodying every feature required by the purchaser within the scope of the purchase money.

LOOKING BACKWARD.

If there is a proud man in Sydney to-day it is surely W. F. KAY.

Looking back over the events of the year just closed, there is a calm satisfaction in noting that all previous records have been broken, and the march of the "Farm Centre" has been one of almost uninterrupted success.

Truly labour is sweet when one delights in one's work, and the weeks slip by like days, with the result that success is only a natural consequence.

But there is an aspect apart from the gain of £ s d, the sentimental side, which brings as much peaceful sleep as a big bank balance.

Think of the families who are enjoying good homes and prosperous farms through the instrumentality of this office, which they would not have secured by any other means. Some have invested the savings of a lifetime, others have come from distant lands across the sea, leaving behind them what the earth holds most dear, seeking a new Eldorado wherein to set up a home for their loved ones.

When these people, after their first harvest, send messages of grateful friendship by card, letter, or even telegrams, wishing us a Happy New Year at the office, I feel I would not exchange places with the Premier, and you would feel the same if you were here.

This only makes me determined to press forward and make more friends in 1913, and the staff are imbued with the same enthusiasm.

Come and let us be acquainted, I will gain a little, you will gain a lot.

EXCELLENCE.

On the river bank is a 5-h.p. Engine, with Pump, Saw Bench, Chaff-cutter, and Corn Cracker.

Many people think this the finest property in the country, and my judgment is that they are not far wrong. There is a probability you will say the same when you see it. Title Freehold. Price £12/10/ per acre. £3000 can remain at 5 per cent.

Over £300 has been spent during the last 12 months in an irrigation plant, only 10 minutes' walk from Station, 19 miles from Sydney, £1800; £1000 deposit, and balance at 4 per cent.
I strongly recommend this property, both as a farm and an investment.

ROSEVILLE.—Choice Building Sites, Avenue Estate. Auction Sale, January 18, on the Ground.

AUCTION SALES.

THE CALL OF THE SURF.

This is just the kind of weather when the call of the surf is more insistent than ever. The trouble about the close-in Surf Resorts is that they are so crowded. What you probably desire is a good, safe Surf Beach, reasonably handy to town, where you can enjoy the pleasure of a good, long "shoot," without danger to yourself or to others. We can offer you just this at

BROCK'S ESTATE, MONA VALE

(SECOND SUBDIVISION).

This Property includes the Site of the late Hydro, formerly known as Brock's Mansion, and which, under the title of "La Corniche," was destroyed by fire last year.

The site is, of course, the finest in Mona Vale, which in turn possesses the finest surf beach on the Manly-Newport Coast. It commands magnificent views and is within a minute or two of the Ocean.

The Building Materials, Foundations, etc., salvaged will also be offered, together with some excellent Cottages, etc., adjoining the late main building.

The remainder of the Property is situated on the ground that hitherto constituted the Golf Links, adjoining the Beach, and making fine level weekend or home site blocks.

New Links will be laid out shortly, running right back to the main road.

The journey to Mona Vale has been much shortened by the recent extension of the Manly-Brookvale-Narrabeen tramline, and it is expected that before long the line will be further extended to Mona Vale itself.

AUCTION, SATURDAY, JAN. 25,
AT 3 P.M., ON THE GROUND.

Properties such as this, close to the Surf, and in the popular Manly-Newport district, are becoming very scarce, and should meet with a ready demand. The Easy Terms of £1 down and 10s monthly for every £30 purchased should form an extra inducement to prospective buyers.

Everybody seems to be making to Coogee, Coogee, Coogee. It is all Coogee.

LINDEN, ON THE BLUE MOUNTAINS.

A new development is taking place in these healthy and invigorating Mountain Suburbs, and ANNIVERSARY DAY will mark an epoch in the history of Australian exploration and progress. For it is on this day—the 27th January, 1913, at 2.30 p.m., that the famous WEEMALA Estate will be offered to the public by Auction. Fine big Blocks—glorious views—railway and road frontages—close to two stations, and 1726 feet above the sea. Alldis and Co., Ltd., of Bondi Junction, and 82 Pitt-street, will be the Auctioneers, and plans and all particulars can be obtained from them. To mark this historical event, a Free Luncheon will be given, also refreshments, and a fine band will discourse music. When it is considered that the Estate is only 51 miles from Sydney, and the season tickets only 8½d per day, it is no wonder people are making their homes on the Mountains. The public are cordially invited to this historical picnic, whether they buy or not; and don't forget to bring the children. If you do buy—it's a dead bird—10 to 1 on "Profit."

MACHINERY.

THE CENTRE OF PRODUCTIVE EFFICIENCY IS HIGH-SPEED MACHINES.

You may employ the best hands. You may have a highly organised force. You may enjoy a reputation for good work. But if your machinery is slow you cannot hope to attain the maximum efficiency.

To meet the force of competition—to hold your own in the fight, you need to instal efficient, modern machinery—machines that will deliver the kind of work you want when you want it.

The old-fashioned, slow machines were good enough in their way. But that was YESTERDAY. Now they are merely "the hole in the pocket" through which much of your profits are dribbling away.

You can stop the leakage by installing High-speed Machines that will increase your output without adding to the running costs.

On this matter we can help you. As agents for the leading machinery manufacturers of the world we can show you machines that certainly will profit you if installed. We want you to call and see them, or to write for full details of any particular line. That places you under no obligation to purchase. Now is a good time to get in touch with us. WILL you?

DON'T LOSE THE GRIP OF YOUR FACTORY
DURING 1913.

Losing grip of your works for any time through something going wrong with an ordinary pulley costs you more money than replacing all those old-fashioned metal pulleys with

REEVE'S WELL-KNOWN WOOD SPLIT PULLEYS.

Should a Reeve's require attention you needn't stop the works. Reeves' are split and any one of them can be slipped off the shaft in about ten seconds without disturbing the rest. Think what that means.

The rims are made of wood segments, which give greater strength, better grip of the belt, and thus increased power. The segment rim is also proof against atmospherical changes. Being lighter, they take less power to run than metal pulleys.

We are Sole Agents for Reeves'—the acknowledged Superior Wood Pulley. We have a LARGE STOCK of all sizes, and each is priced the Danks' well-known money-saving way.

3 "TRIUMPH" MOTOR CYCLES STARTED—ALL GOT THROUGH WITH FULL POINTS.

Reynolds being the first to finish. Each and all of the above Machines have had over twelve months' use, and were only ordinary models, a fact that speaks wonders for the capability of the "Triumph."

These machines are on view in our show windows at 124-132 Castlereagh-street, and form a most interesting exhibit.

You should not fail to view them, and also come in and ask to see some of the latest models in our showrooms. While there get our Illustrated Catalogue—which is well worth reading, and contains instructive information on Motor Cycling.

TALKING OF CATS.

HAVE YOU EVER HEARD A KITTEN PURR?
IT PURRS BECAUSE IT IS CONTENTED, PLEASED WITH ITSELF, AND AT PEACE WITH ALL THE WORLD! ! !
So it is with a man who owns a "BUICK" or a noiseless "NAPIER" car.
HE IS CONTENTED because he knows he has the best his money can buy.
HE is PLEASED WITH HIMSELF because he knows that the car will take him wherever he wants to go, and bring him back again without any trouble.
HE is AT PEACE WITH ALL THE WORLD because he is enjoying one of life's greatest pleasures—a comfortable, safe, and happy ride in a good car.
HE PURRS because—No! He doesn't purr; the car does that; it purrs along with a sound sweet enough to suggest a shady tree, and the proverbial babbling brook, which runs on for ever.

IN THE COUNTRY OF THE BLIND, THE ONE-EYED MAN IS KING.

CAR BUYERS who have never really investigated will accept any inferior make, as the King Car. If the price is Regal, they are blind to all else. Like the blind, they bow to half value. Some men think they are getting more, when they are merely paying more.

Regrets are very unsatisfactory affairs. In this connection we wish to remind you that have set up a high standard for strength, durability, and service, unequalled by any car on the road in Australia. Many car buyers who have purchased higher-priced cars know this.

THE OVERLAND FACTORY is so splendidly equipped with time-saving, labour-saving, waste-saving, automatic machinery, the business is so vast, they can afford to make the best car.

1913 MODELS.

30-h.p. sell at £355 and £365 complete, with the finest equipment. No car nearly as good can be purchased at £450.

45-h.p. Models sell at £500 and £510. A better car cannot be purchased at any price.

You owe it to yourself to see these 1913 Models, to examine the wonderful strength of the rear axle and brakes; to test the sweet and silent Motor, with its 5-bearing crankshaft; to see the new self-starter, electric equipments, and the general high-class quality of the fittings. The 1913 Overland is a better car in every way than you would expect for twice the price.

And because of the clean design and easy accessibility of the Maxwell's engine, we invite you to see

THE MAXWELL—ESPECIALLY THE 25-H.P. MODEL.

There's no waste of fuel or power in a MAXWELL.
The engine has been so designed that the merest novice falls into the management of it within a few hours.
Everything about the MAXWELL is simple. That's it—"Simplicity" combined with economy and reliability.
There is very little to learn about the MAXWELL, because the movements have been reduced to a minimum.
That's what makes touring in the MAXWELL a pleasure, or city travelling simple. That is why more and more MAXWELLS are appearing on Australian roads—not every year—but EVERY WEEK.

WE INVITE YOU TO A TRIAL RUN ON ANY OF THE FIVE MAXWELL MODELS AT ANY HOUR ANY DAY.

To fully appreciate it you must see the car, ride in it, examine its construction.

RECORD OF ENDURANCE.

MELBOURNE TO SYDNEY IN TWENTY-THREE HOURS.

This goes to prove our statement of the past that the EMPIRE is not a toy or a so-called runabout, but a Car of the big Car family, sold at a runabout price. Mr. Darge and his EMPIRE accompanied by Mr. Conley, left Melbourne to check the Motor Cyclists' test on their reliability run to this Capital. The undertaking was rather a tall one, on account of Mr. Darge having to overtake the riders, and then check them in control. On the following mornings he had to send the riders away again, and still be in the lead at the end of the day's run! This was ably carried out by Mr. Darge, with the assistance of his EMPIRE, which came through the ordeal without a hitch in the fast time of Twenty-three Hours.

WE WOULD LIKE YOU TO SEE THIS CAR.

LAW REPORT.

EQUITY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Rich.)

WINDING UP ORDER.

RE BONDI PICTURE GARDENS, LTD.

Mr. R. H. L. Innes, instructed by Mr. George W. Phillips, appeared for John David Handley and Grafton Lewis, carrying on business in Sydney as electrical engineers, Richard Buck, of Waverley, printer, and Maurice G. Leverier, of Sydney, electrical engineer, and moved for an order that the Bondi Picture Gardens, Ltd., be wound up by the Court, under the provisions of the Companies Act, 1899, and that Mr. W. H. Palmer be appointed official liquidator. Mr. J. F. Millington appeared for Messrs. Humbert Pugliesse, and Vincent Truda, to consent to the order. The matter was before his Honor a week ago, when, pending the present application, Mr. Palmer was appointed provisional liquidator. The plaintiffs in their petition pointed out that the company had been duly registered, and its objects were to carry on the business, generally of opera house, theatrical, and music hall proprietors, and caterers for public entertainments and cinematograph, biograph, and variety enterprises, etc. Handley, Lewis, and Leverier, in addition to being shareholders in the company, had claims against it for work done, and material supplied in connection with electrical instalment, and petitioner Buck stated that the company was indebted to him for work done. Petitioners alleged further that among other creditors to whom the company was indebted was "The Greater J. D. Williams, Limited," which had threatened to take proceedings in order to obtain judgment and issue execution. If this was done there would be a forced sale, which would result in a sacrifice of the assets, which would be highly prejudicial to the interests of the members and creditors of the company. Since commencing operations the company has been carried on at a loss. It was at present unable to pay its debts, but petitioners believed that the assets, if prudently realised, should be sufficient not only to pay the company's debts, but also to pay a fairly substantial dividend to the members.

His Honor said it appeared that the company was insolvent, and it was therefore a case in which a winding-up order ought to be made. He granted the application, with liberty to Mr. Palmer to act forthwith, and to give security to the satisfaction of the Master at a later date.

SALE OF ASSETS.

At a later stage Mr. Innes applied, on behalf of Mr. Palmer, for an order authorising him to sell the company's assets to the New South Wales Olympic Theatres Company for the sum of £530 cash. Mr. Palmer, in his affidavit, stated that after being appointed provisional liquidator he had consulted Messrs. Handley and Lewis and "The Greater J. D. Williams, Ltd.," creditors, representing more than three-fourths of the whole of the liabilities of the company, and they had consented to the sale. He had also the consent of Mr. J. F. Millington, representing Humbert, Pugliesse, to the sale.

His Honor: Does the proposed purchase include the balance of the lease?

Mr. Innes: Yes; lock, stock, and barrel.

His Honor: Will the amount be sufficient to pay all the creditors?

Mr. Innes: Yes; so far as we know, the debts amount to about £351 only.

AN INJUNCTION MATTER.

Kumar v Josephson.

Mr. Parker, instructed by Messrs. Turner, Teece, and Company, appeared for Mrs. Maria Kumar, and applied to continue the injunction granted on Friday last to restrain the defendant, Eliza Judita Josephson, from dealing with a shop and premises known as 55 King-street, city, until the hearing of a suit brought by the plaintiff for the specific performance of an agreement for a lease. Mr. R. H. L. Innes, instructed by Mr. A. J. M'Donald, appeared for the defendant, who is executrix of the will of the late Joshua Percy Josephson, to oppose the application, and also in support of a motion to dissolve the injunction already granted on the ground of suppression of material facts. The case submitted on behalf of plaintiff was that the late J. P. Josephson some time before his death entered into an agreement with her for the lease to her for a period of three years of the premises in question. Plaintiff afterwards went into possession, and had effected certain improvements, and she feared, that unless restrained by order of the Court, defendant would deliver up to the trustees of the estate possession of the property to the prejudice of her rights under the agreement. The contention on behalf of the defendant, however, was that there was no agreement for a lease, and that all that was agreed upon between plaintiff and Mr. Josephson was that she was to take the premises on a weekly tenancy, and that if she carried on her business as a restaurant-keeper satisfactorily, without annoyance to adjoining tenants, a lease might be granted to her. It was this fact which defendant said was suppressed when the original injunction was granted by the Chief Judge in Equity. It was also alleged that since plaintiff commenced business W. and A. M'Arthur, Ltd., who held the adjoining premises, had complained of a nuisance. On these points, however, there was a conflict of evidence, plaintiff submitting that a lease was definitely agreed upon, and that no nuisance had been caused by her in carrying on the business of a restaurant-keeper.

Mr. Innes said that defendant was prepared, if the injunction was dissolved, to give security for any damage which plaintiff might prove at the hearing by being dispossessed of the property.

His Honor granted a continuation of the injunction until the hearing on plaintiff undertaking not to create a nuisance; consideration of notice to dissolve the injunction was adjourned, and defendant was to have till January 17 to file her defence.

STOCKOWNERS' ASSOCIATION.

FREEZING WORKS ON ABATTOIRS AREA.

At the monthly meeting of the executive committee of the Stockowners' Association of New South Wales, at which the president, Mr. J. M. Atkinson, occupied the chair, the matter of the erection of freezing works on the new abattoirs area was under discussion. It was resolved that the Minister be requested to erect freezing and chilling works on the abattoirs area concurrently with the other works now being erected, for the purpose of being leased to private enterprise, or, as an alternative, to allow private enterprise to erect the freezing works.

A case was brought forward of the slow delivery of sheep from Stuart Town to Flemington, which averaged the rate of 8½ miles per hour. The train arrived too late for Thursday's sale, and the sheep had to be held over till Monday following, which meant considerable extra expenditure and loss in value.

The Quirindi Land Board, at its last meeting unanimously decided to recommend that the reserves in the parishes of Weston and Telford should not be curtailed in any way. This matter was under discussion at the last meeting of the Stockowners' Association, when it was decided to enter a protest, which has since been upheld. Advice has been received that the W. and C. reserve, Parish of Yarraman, County of Pottinger, has been surveyed into four blocks of about 74 acres each, with a view of being disposed of by the Lands Department. As this reserve is situated on the roads Coomoo Coomoo to Dinby and Spring Ridge to Yarraman, it is practically the only one of any benefit to the travelling public, and it was resolved to enter a protest against the curtailment in any way, which would mean a serious loss to the State.

SHIPPING DISPUTE.

PARTIES HOPEFUL.

WAGES BOARD PROCEEDINGS.

The initial meeting of the State (Shipping) Wages Board, number 1 group, appointed to deal with the dispute between the Merchant Service Guild of Australasia and various shipping companies, was held yesterday at Selborne-chambers.

Mr. H. E. Manning, barrister-at-law, who presided, comprises the board, along with Mr. R. A. Bell, managing director of the North Coast Steam Navigation Company, and Mr. R. R. Bradley, president of the Merchant Service Guild of Australasia.

Inspector Kirby was present, representing the Minister for Labour and Industry.

The chairman, in opening the meeting, said: "This is an application by the New South Wales Coastal Steamship Owners' Association and reference by the Minister for Labour and Industry to the Shipping Board for the determination of rates of wages and conditions of employment of shipping masters and officers employed on seagoing vessels in New South Wales, other than those employed on ferry boats and tugs.

"This afternoon we can settle matters of procedure to be observed, and the determination of parties upon whom the application and reference are to be served."

Mr. Bell said he trusted the board would be able to settle the matters in dispute by conferring together. If it were found necessary to call evidence, the inquiry would be quickly settled. He, therefore, proposed that the board should meet together without delay, in order that the business interests of the parties and the convenience of the public should be served.

The chairman said he was about to make that suggestion. Obviously a large number of points could be settled in conference.

Mr. Bradley favoured the board taking such a course.

Mr. Schraeder, on behalf of the several companies, said they hoped to be able to show the board that Mr. Justice Higgins's award was wholly unworkable.

Inspector Kirby: As representing the Minister for Labour and Industry, would you like me, Mr. Chairman, to put forward the Minister's reasons for intervening, or will you have them at a later stage?

The Chairman: I will hear them at a later stage.

Inspector Kirby: I wish to state that the Minister will be very pleased to see the matter settled as quickly as possible, in view of its grave urgency.

The Chairman: The board is fully aware of its urgency; the mere fact of the Minister having referred the matter to the board shows it is a matter of urgency.

Sir Allen Taylor hoped it would not be necessary for the board to call witnesses.

The meeting of the board was fixed for Monday at 11 a.m.

RUSSELL CASE.

DEPUTATION TO MR. CARMICHAEL.

FINALITY MAY BE REACHED.

A development in connection with the Russell case occurred yesterday morning, when a deputation consisting of Messrs. Bowling (secretary), M'Guire (president), Bird (treasurer) of the Southern Miners' Union, accompanied by Russell's solicitor (Mr. Lysaght), waited on Mr. Carmichael, Minister for Labour. The members placed before the Minister the serious position which was said to have developed in the south. The whole position was discussed, and certain suggestions were made for the avoidance of a possible industrial upheaval. Mr. Carmichael said he was unable to give any authoritative statement until he had the report of the Royal Commissioner (Judge Scholes). The report only reached the Premier on Thursday, and was forwarded to the Governor. The Minister hoped to get possession of it that afternoon or on the following day. He would then give the matter immediate consideration, and if he could do anything to preserve industrial peace he would have no hesitation in acting promptly. The suggestions made to him were of such a nature that, pending the publication of the report, could not be disclosed, but it is believed, from a subsequent conversation with Mr. Bowling, that the interview is regarded by the executive as fairly satisfactory. It is also believed that some finality will be reached in connection with the matter early next week. There is every reason to suppose that the aggregate meeting, which had been contemplated for Monday, will be postponed pending a definite answer from Mr. Carmichael to the desires of the department.

POSITION OF A ROCK.

CAPTAIN GARDEN EXONERATED.

The Court of Marine Inquiry (Judge Backhouse, with Captains J. Simpson and C. W. Davidson, as assessors) yesterday exonerated Captain James Garden from all blame in connection with the stranding of the Urilla.

Mr. H. P. Curtis, of the Crown Law Department, appeared for the Superintendent of Navigation; and Mr. H. P. Sullivan (Messrs. Sullivan Bros.), for the master of the Urilla, Captain Garden.

The steamer Urilla, which is owned by the Adelaide Steamship Company, was stranded on July 25 last off Cape Conway, Queensland coast, and was subsequently beached in Genesta Bay. She was on her way to Sydney from Bowen at the time of the occurrence, and when close to Ripple Rock struck a rock lying a short distance out from Cape Conway. A rock was marked on the chart close to Ripple Rock, and the master (Captain Garden), contended that if this was the place he struck it was wrongly marked on the chart. The vessel floated off at high tide; but was seriously damaged and leaking badly. She had to be beached at Genesta Bay.

The Court in October adjourned the inquiry in order to enable the Queensland Government to have a survey made of the spot in question; but they were unable to do so, and the Admiral, at the request of the Premier of New South Wales, had a survey carried out. H.M.S. Sea Lark established the fact that Ripple Rock lay further northward than charted, and when abreast of Ripple Rock, having hauled to the eastward, a rock nearly awash was observed from the masthead lying to east-south-eastward of Ripple Rock. The state of the tide at the time was l. w. neaps. This danger was not correctly shown on the chart.

A tracing of the survey was produced, whereupon the Court unanimously exonerated the master from all blame.

Mr. Sullivan directed the attention of the Court to the fact that the Queensland Government refused to have a survey made of the position. This was a menace to navigators, and he considered the Queensland Government had shown indifference as to the safety of the lives of crews. The result of the Sea Lark's survey had proved the chart to be inaccurate.

His Honor said he would not make any observation on the matter, as he had not heard the other side. At the same time, his Honor considered the Admiral deserved the thanks of all parties concerned for having undertaken to carry out the survey.

RANDWICK SHOOTING CASE.

YOUNG GIRL COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

Vera Moore, 17, was charged at the Central Police Court, before Mr. Clarke, S.M., with maliciously shooting at Annie Joyce with intent to do grievous bodily harm, on December 22. Mr. Spear appeared for the accused.

Annie Joyce, a married woman, living in McGill-street, Randwick, said she was passing the accused's house, and went over and asked her why she had called her a criminal. The accused replied, "So you are." She went inside, came out again, and fired a revolver at the witness. The shot did not take effect. She pointed the revolver again, but did not fire again, as her sister interfered. The witness then went and informed the police.

To Mr. Spear: There had been no previous quarrel, though the accused was frequently calling out to the witness's children. It was not true that she rushed at Ethel Moore and struck her repeatedly.

Catherine Tumeth, a married woman, residing at Randwick, said she was in the company of Mrs. Joyce, and corroborated the evidence as to the shooting. Mrs. Joyce spoke civilly. When the revolver was fired, Mrs. Joyce was standing on the footpath. The accused held up the revolver the second time, but her sister took it from her.

The accused, who reserved her defence, was committed for trial.

NEWCASTLE.

AFTERNOON SHIFT QUESTION.

MAITLAND MINERS CONFER.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

Several of the coal mines in the Maitland district will be idle on Monday next. A resolution has been passed by a conference of delegates from the miners' lodges of the Maitland coalfields requesting that the secretaries of the various lodges in the South Maitland district inform their respective managers that an aggregate meeting will be held on Monday next, and that consequently there will be no work on that day. At a recent meeting the conference decided to ask the joint conciliation committee to consider at once the afternoon shift question. The proprietors' representatives on the joint committee decided not to discuss the matter. The miners then held another meeting, and that took place this week. Two of the lodges' secretaries after interviewing the district president placed before the meeting a report, which was considered unsatisfactory. Later three executive officers from the delegate board made a strong appeal for the miners not to hold an aggregate meeting. Despite their endeavours the conference unanimously decided to call the meeting.

The president of the Colliery Employees' Federation, in speaking to-day on the afternoon shift question, said:—"There is no necessity for more than eight hours from bank to bank. In order to satisfy the just claims of commerce and to meet the exigencies of trade in any part of the world, the capacity for producing coal by the advent of machinery and by the wonderful development that has taken place not only here but all over the civilised world renders it absolutely unnecessary for more than one shift in 24 hours.

POWER OF CAPITALISM.

REMARKS BY MINERS' REPRESENTATIVE.

The president of the Colliery Employees' Federation in speaking to-day about the statement made by Mr. John Brown at the annual regatta luncheon, said that the power of capitalism could no longer rule the destinies of the industrial world. Justice and equity alone could determine the future prosperity and happiness of the people of Newcastle. During 1912 Newcastle had been prosperous. The miners were anxious and desirous that 1913 should be even more peaceful and successful. If strikes were to be avoided both parties must recognise their relationships one to the other.

"The speech all through," he added, "has the same pessimistic ring as his address at the previous regatta." Pelaw-Main colliery had during the past two years given the federation more trouble and concern than any other colliery.

WEEK'S COAL EXPORTS.

The coal exports this week have been light. The total quantity sent to all places beyond this State amounted to 34,621 tons. Of that quantity the Commonwealth received 24,850; while 9771 tons were for foreign countries. The largest quantity was sent to Victoria, which received 10,870 tons.

COAL AND OTHER EXPORTS.

The following vessels were cleared at the Newcastle Customs-house to-day:—Mindini, s, for Papua, via Sydney, with 500 tons bunkers; Yarra, s, for Port Adelaide, via Catherine Hill Bay, with 270 tons bunkers; Maunganui, s, for Wellington, via Sydney, with 2300 tons bunkers, 11 barrels oil, 15 cases oil, 717 pieces sawn timber, and 1 ton copper; Monaro, s, for Melbourne, with 3300 tons coal, 150 tons bunkers, 100 tons coke, and 95 poles; Werribee, s, for Melbourne, with 5500 tons coal, 340 tons bunkers, and 260 poles.

OUTPUT FROM SULPHIDE WORKS.

At the Sulphide Corporation Works, Cockle Creek, during the week, ore was treated, producing bullion containing 184oz gold, 2457oz silver, and 39 tons lead.

A LODGER'S EXPERIENCE.

Henry Jackson, 45, was charged at the Central Police Court, before Mr. Clarke, S.M., with stealing 11s, the property of William Reardon. The latter engaged a room for the night at Woolloomooloo, and after he had retired to bed he found the accused in his room. The accused was sentenced to three months.

BATHURST'S WATER SUPPLY.

NO MONEY FOR PUMPING PLANT.

BATHURST, Friday.

Mr. J. Miller, M.L.A., recently received a communication from the director-general of Public Works informing him that the installation of additional pumping machinery in connection with the Bathurst water supply could not be undertaken at present. Mr. Miller forwarded this letter to the Bathurst council which considered it last night.

In moving that the letter be received, alderman Webb said that he did not know what the council could do in the matter. The situation was very serious so far as Bathurst was concerned. The sewerage system had been installed on the understanding that the Government would supply money and pumping machinery in order that the council might be able to commence the system. He supposed the reason was—

Alderman Crago: No money.

Alderman Webb, continuing, said the men who were governing them had their heads filled with wild cat schemes, on which the money had been spent, instead of being utilised on schemes like the one under consideration. It was hard to say now when the council would receive the money necessary to put in the proper pumping machinery. Unless better machinery was obtained it was doubtful where the city would be able to secure water. Better machinery was absolutely necessary, in order to ensure a continuation of the water supply, and if the council desired to borrow for the purpose of carrying out the work it was compelled by Act of Parliament to obtain the money from the Government. If the Government was going to treat the council in that way it should certainly repeal that Act and allow the council to obtain money at the lowest possible rate.

Alderman Perry characterised the action of the Government as most regrettable, especially at a time like the present, with the sewerage scheme in full swing. The Government should have informed them of its position before the sewerage had been commenced. He thought Mr. Miller should be asked again to urge the matter on the Government.

The motion was amended in the direction suggested by alderman Perry, and carried.

NORTH COAST RAILWAY.

THE RECENT WASHAWAY.

The Minister for Public Works has received a further report from the Chief Engineer for Railway and Tramway Construction regarding the damage occasioned by the recent exceptionally heavy downpour of rain on the North Coast. The report goes to show that the extent of the damage is comparatively slight. Mr. Hutchinson's report is as follows:—

"Statements appeared in the press that slips had taken place, that embankments were washed away, leaving rails and sleepers hanging, and that culverts were in the wrong position and would not take the water, and that, generally speaking, the line was an engineering bungle, and would cost thousands to put in order. These statements are absolutely without foundation.

"In three days there was an exceptional rainfall, amounting to from 10 to 13½ inches, but notwithstanding this exceptional downpour no slips took place, no embankments were washed away, and in no case were the rails and sleepers left hanging. In all cases the culverts took the water, with one exception, where, owing to the bursting of an old dam above the culvert, debris was washed down, blocking the culvert, and the water went over the line.

"The damage done to the line was of a trivial nature, and was repaired in a very short time at a small cost. Only a few small settlements in the embankments took place. This is always liable to happen on a new railway.

"The exceptional rain, of course, brought down some earth from the batters of the cuttings, but caused no damage; in fact, the rain was a good test of the substantial nature of the work, and the line is a first-class job, and the statements made are absolutely ridiculous and unfounded."

FIRE AT HOMEBUSH.

About 11.30 a.m. yesterday the sparks from a copper fire at a dwelling-house in Powell-street, Homebush, caused an outbreak in the laundry. In a very short time the laundry and its contents had been burnt out, and a back room and kitchen roof severely damaged by fire. The house was occupied by Mr. George Evans.

BIG MONEY IN TOMATOES.

IRRIGATION POSSIBILITIES.

JAMIESON VALLEY A HUGE LAKE.

RICHMOND, Friday.

Last year Mr. Alford, the orchardist at the Hawkesbury Agricultural College, produced £130 worth of tomatoes from one-third acre of land, and the figures led to much criticism by vegetable-growers, who were inclined to doubt their accuracy; but that such can be done was confirmed by the same expert's results this year. From November 20 to December 20 the college marketed from quarter-acre of land 320 half-cases of tomatoes, which averaged 7s 6d per half-case, or a total of £120. The plants were got in early and protected from frost, and the tomatoes were marketed when such commodity was scarce and the price high. When the principal told a local meeting of farmers the above facts they received the report with much applause.

"But, bear in mind," added Mr. Potts, "our agriculturist had the advantage of an unlimited supply of water. And this shows you how necessary it is, in your own interests, to back up the original efforts made for the Warragamba water scheme for this valley. It shows the necessity for loyal action whenever the time seems opportune to agitate to get the work going. The scheme is now ready on paper. The plans are out. The irrigable area all over the valley is pegged out. The Public Works Committee has issued its report on the scheme, which is now a complete one, and it just now remains for the psychological moment when the money market improves, and funds are available to warrant the expenditure of from £1,500,000 to £2,000,000 for the conservation of an immense body of water, walled up near the junction of the Warragamba and Nepean rivers, and backed away to the Jenolan Caves, making the Jamieson Valley one huge lake.

"In the Hawkesbury we have 42,000 acres of irrigable land, and, given this water scheme, we have within our power, in this valley, all the elements for the supply of an immense city like Sydney—which will have a million people shortly—with cheap fruit, cheap vegetables, and cheap milk. It is to the masses we want to look; not to the leisured class, but to the poor. At present the bulk of the vegetables consumed in Sydney are grown outside this State. It is a reflection upon us to know that the bulk of the cabbages consumed in our great city come from Victoria.

"Yes, the time is not far distant, if we combine and work loyally and closely together, when the great Warragamba water scheme will be brought into existence. We can then make this district one of the most fertile spots in the world; and, with a great market at our doorstep, our future should be a very prosperous one indeed."

QUEENSLAND BUTTER EXPORT.

BRISBANE.—During the past couple of months there has been a wonderful increase in the export of dairy produce, especially butter, and the season seems likely to create a record. The figures for the week ended December 28 show that 8151 boxes of butter were exported, making a total for the nine weeks of 74,721 boxes, as compared with 36,799 for the corresponding period last year.

HOSPITAL SUBSIDY.

BATHURST, Friday.

The committee of the Bathurst District Hospital is incensed at the action of the Labour Government in witholding the subsidy for 1911. Correspondence has been proceeding since May last for the receipt of the amount due. At the December meeting of the hospital committee it was decided that in the event of an answer not being received to the request for subsidy, counsel's opinion be taken. This action was obviated by the receipt at last night's meeting of another communication from the Under Secretary stating that he had been directed to say that after further consideration of the claim for subsidy, the Minister was desirous of learning the purposes to which it was proposed to expend the money in the event of its payment.

Mr. C. Boyd observed in answer to the request of the communication as to the destination of the subsidy:—"We want to pay our way. That is what we want to do with it.—(laughter)—and I am afraid the Government is not going to pay it, without pressure."

A motion by Mr. Webb that a reply be sent stating that the subsidy would be expended in salaries, wages, and general upkeep was carried.

CHINESE HAWKERS.

The Water Police Court was crowded yesterday, when 14 men applied for hawkers' licenses to Mr. Barnett, S.M. Among the number were over 60 Chinamen. A constable called the names of the applicants. His Chinese may have been faulty, for the majority did not answer, but held a consultation at the back of the Court as to which name referred to them. A wave of mirth passed over the court when the deposition clerk asked the first applicant, "Have you got your bondsmen here?" The Chinese smiled generously and said, "Me have a horse and cart." It was explained to the applicants that they must have two bondsmen each. Trouble was experienced at this stage, but one man saved the situation by producing his two bondsmen, who, on learning the trouble their countrymen were in, volunteered to be guarantors for the whole sixty. The Chinese took it quite as a matter of course that two of their countrymen should risk £1200 for their good behaviour.

POLICE COURTS.

ALLEGED THEFT OF JEWELLERY.

John Lee Tindall, 24, was charged with stealing a quantity of jewellery and £4 in money, valued at £20, the property of Catherine Byrne, the licensee of the York Hotel.

Constable T. Malone, of Paddington, saw the accused coming out of a pawn shop, and, jumping on a tram, he went away. He interviewed the accused later on, when he denied he was in the pawnshop that day. Later on he admitted pawning a ring, but that it was his sister's.

Mrs. Byrne said that on December 17 a man, whom she believed to have been the accused, came to her at the hotel office and made inquiries about a girl. She ordered him out of the house, and on going upstairs later on she missed the jewellery and the money.

This evidence was corroborated by the daughter of the last witness.

RECOGNISANCES FORFEITED.

William Murphy, 21, was called upon at the Central Police Court to show cause why his recognisances, entered into at the Quarter Sessions on October 17, should not be forfeited. On that date Murphy was convicted of assault and robbery and was sentenced to 18 months. He entered into sureties under the Crimes Act to be of good behaviour for 12 months. On December 13 he was convicted of assault. Mr. Love, S.M., ordered the recognisances to be forfeited, and accused to be imprisoned for the whole or part of the unexpired portion of his sentence.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

Patrick Hanley, 27, was charged at the Central Police Court, before Mr. Clarke, S.M., with assaulting Jonathan Everett and robbing him of £2, on December 23.

The evidence showed that the accused and a mate followed Everett, a miner, into an hotel. One of the men put his arm under his chin, and the other rifled his pockets. He followed them into the street, and a man chased the two men into a tram, when they got away.

AN HOTEL INCIDENT.

At the Central Police Court, before Mr. Clarke, S.M., Joseph Shields, 20, was charged with stealing a ring, a watch and chain and trinket, the property of William H. Parkes, and valued at £18. When the accused was confronted by the police he said he had been drinking in an hotel, and the watch and chain were handed to him by one of the party. He admitted that he afterwards pawned it for £3.

William H. Parkes, the owner of the property, a bricklayer, living at Paddington, said he was in an hotel talking to a number of men, when one of them took the articles, including a sovereign purse, which contained 30s. The articles had all been recovered, but the sovereign purse and contents.

The accused made a statement to the effect that he did not steal the articles, and did not know that they were stolen. But they were given to him to pawn by one of the number with whom he was drinking that day.

The Bench imposed a sentence of six months, the sentence to be suspended under the Crimes Act on sureties being found; and the accused was ordered to pay £5 in restitution.

FOOD ADULTERATION.

At the Ashfield Police Court yesterday, before Mr. E. S. Maitland, S.M., Arthur Kench, an officer of the Board of Health, proceeded against Frank Steer, of Carrington-street, Summer Hill, for selling milk which was found to be adulterated. The certificate of the Government Analyst showed that the sample of milk submitted to him was 15.6 per cent. deficient in butter fat. Defendant was fined £2 and 6s costs, or 14 days' imprisonment.

Mary Pryor, who conducts a refreshment room at Summer Hill, was charged at the Ashfield Court with selling milk showing 15.6 per cent. deficiency of butter fat. In this case the defence was that the milk had been supplied by Steer, the defendant in the previous case. Defendant was fined 15s and 6s costs.

Ada Brindley, who keeps a refreshment room at Five Dock, was charged at the Ashfield Court with selling ice cream deficient in milk fat to the extent of 63 per cent. Defendant stated that she sold only vanilla ices, not vanilla cream. The prosecutor, Inspector Kench, said that if the commodity in question had been sold as vanilla ice it would have conformed to the standard. Defendant was fined 5s and 6s costs.

"STOP IMMIGRATION."

No citizen of the State who has the welfare of his country at heart can have read of the Government's decision to stop the flow of immigration to these shores without dismay. Mr. Holman, at Junee the other day, and Mr. M'Gowen since then, have stated that, except for selected agriculturists and domestic servants, a stop is to be put to immigration until such time as the opening up of new lands warrants the introduction of new settlers. The safety of any nation, it has been said with truth, depends solely on the ability to defend it; and from that point of view alone the peopling of this country is an urgent necessity. Every able-bodied man who comes to make his home here is an additional defender. We give the Labour party credit for the resolve to instruct the youth of this country in the arts of war, and in its policy of building up an Australian navy it is satisfying a national need and a national aspiration, but we confess it is beyond our power to understand the process of reasoning by which this party arrives at the conclusion that, while it is necessary to defend our country, it is a wise policy not to increase the number of defenders. One of the things that struck Mr. Bryce during his recent visit to Australia—as it is one of the things that strike every visitor—was the great emptiness of this continent. "Your people," he said, "seem to be living on the fringe of the continent, and in the north and west there are very few people, indeed. One is amazed at the wide, empty spaces that are waiting to be filled up in Australia." In area about the same as the United States of America, it has yet but one twentieth of the population; and instead of doing our best to people it we are actually driving people away. We had hoped that the tide of immigration, which was beginning at last to set in, would continue; but the community has received a rude shock. All that has been done during the last few years to encourage immigration is to go for nothing—the work of the High Commissioner, the despatching of special agents to the United Kingdom and America, the large sums spent on advertising Australia abroad—all these efforts are to be rendered null. The lectures delivered in London and the provincial towns were mere idle vaporings; the big advertisements in the English and Scottish newspapers, the cinematograph films of urban and rural life in Australia, were mere jokes—at least, as far as New South Wales is concerned. We have yet to learn that the other States are so narrow in their outlook, so lacking in men of vision. Anybody can be a politician, and we have politicians enough to-day in all conscience, but not to every man is it given to possess the seeing eye, the prophetic vision, of the statesman. It is a melancholy fact that our real leaders to-day are not inside, but outside, our Parliaments; and we have the humiliating spectacle of Government by outside dictation, the decadence of Parliament, and the sacrifice of national ideals and aspirations on the altar of expediency and personal ease.

We cannot shut our eyes to the fact that the sudden decision to stop immigration is dictated, not by honest conviction in the minds of the men who for the time being have the reins of government in their hands—for that is impossible to men who pause to think—but by an outside faction, whose idea of immigration is based on the utterly erroneous assumption that the more workers there are the less money there will be for each. The experience of the United States, of Canada, and other countries sufficiently disproves it. It is, indeed, too absurd for serious argument, and it should be the business of the leaders of the Labour party to correct a false impression rather than take a course which, as they know in their hearts, is inimical to the best interests of their country. Nor do we blame the leaders of the Labour party alone. All through, for years past, the matter of immigration—and of all matters it is the most important to us—has been hopelessly bungled. The Liberals must take their share of the blame. The total number of immigrants who have arrived in the State during the past six years does not amount to 50,000, and of this number 35,000 have come in the last three years. The influx has been steadily increasing, and last year the new arrivals numbered over 14,000, but we have room for many thousands, and many tens of thousands, more. Even Mr. Hughes, the Federal Attorney-General in the present Labour Government, stated recently that this country should be able to "usefully absorb millions of persons of good health and character." We require many other classes of labour besides the agricultural and domestic. We have had a succession of good seasons, and there has been a great development of trade, and to-day we are on the crest of a wave of unexampled prosperity. No temporary tightening of the money market, whether it be due to the Balkan war or the reckless borrowing of a "non-borrowing" Government, can check our progress. We have our enormous and undeveloped resources, and we must have men to develop them. There are not only railways to be laid down, and other public works to be carried out, but we have been experiencing a building boom unprecedented in our history. There are large city buildings to be erected, and hundreds of private houses to be built, and we need men to build them. In almost every department of our life there is a call for workers. And as for the fear that an influx of workers will bring wages down, have we not our wages boards for protection? With every additional immigrant our wealth increases. He has to be fed, and he has to be clothed. If he earns money for his own work, he spends it again to provide work for others. No man lives to himself. And from a purely State standpoint, every new immigrant means an additional 25/ to the State Treasury from the Commonwealth. Immigration is no party policy; it is a necessity to the national well-being; it is important to our national safety; and as such it should be discussed free of all party feeling—no man for a party, but all men for the State. Australia will have a great awakening some day, and maybe that day is nearer than we think. Thoughtful observers of world-politics have warned us of it—and our reply, forsooth, is to "stop immigration." The Panama Canal, now nearing completion, is going to make of the Pacific the great ocean highway of the future. The biggest problems are, surely and inevitably, coming Australia's way, and not the least of these is the problem of national existence. If we are to continue our existence as a nation, then we must fill up our empty spaces. It is the only way. If our country is worth holding, it is worth defending. The breed of our fathers is not yet extinct, and the more of them we can get to settle in Australia the better for us all—men of self-reliance and resource, men with a strong right arm; and whether they be agriculturists, mechanics, artisans, or whatever else their calling, there is room for them all in this country, which the Premier—the same who has stopped immigration—never tires of describing as "a land of sunshine and opportunity."

ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL.

Cable advices of this week inform us that the foundations of St. Paul's are gravely threatened by subsidence. Their security, long in question, has become of late years a matter of much anxiety to the governing body of the cathedral, and that authoritative opinion now available will arouse world-wide concern. For in view of it, there can no longer be room for doubt that the supporting base of Wren's vast fabric is shaken to the point of weakness. The cause, as is well known, is to be found in the network of underground equipment about the cathedral the necessary probings for which, the weight of traffic it bears daily, and the other enormous weight upon the surface streets, at last have strained the limits of the building's safety. Even the business energies which are for ever expanding the traffic facilities of London, and which, only in the past few weeks, have developed, for purposes of their further expansion, a great underground traction combine—even they will be impressed by the possibility of peril to St. Paul's. The British people, at any rate, will cry them to a standstill rather than suffer them as a source of danger to the historic cathedral. For St. Paul's has a unique place in the heart of London, and in the heart of England, too. It is not merely a great church, and one of the most impressive civic monuments in the world to-day. It is also one of the finest of all the national memorials of the British race. In its own right it claims an incalculable share in two centuries of the life of London, but from the traditional times when a Roman temple crowned the summit of Ludgate Hill, onward until now, the site has been dedicated to worship. It is always difficult for Australians to measure the influence of great traditions. But we do wrong to put tradition by as of no account in the matter-of-fact world that is our heritage. Now and again, even in this twentieth century present, comes a startling reminder of its power upon the hearts of men. The passionate protest of the Turks against the entry of a conquering foe within the Constantinople that for them is filled full of sacred association—there is a case at our very hand. Our own race has many a rallying point where tradition can call upon the common sentiment in entire confidence of its answer. St. Paul's Cathedral is one such. Its appeal to London is irresistible, and hardly less so to the Great Britain which London stands for, while of the scattered British people, there are few who, however far they have wandered, do not conjure up sometimes the London that is graven upon their hearts. And to conjure up London is to remember sooner or later its great cathedral church, standing steadfast and unchanged above the changing generations of men, lifted high for witness of the immutable in the midst of human mutability. Merely as fabric, St. Paul's is always impressive. The architectural schools have their disputes as to this and that detail of the interior, and this and that value of the Renaissance enthusiasms of its builder. But the interior of St. Paul's is scarcely ever less than a solemnity in its own right. Its exterior is one of the noblest assets of the greatest city of the world. It stands four-square upon its hill, broad-based, massive, immense. The mighty sweep of its dome is in itself a glory—by day a marvel of soaring aspiration, against the fading sky of night a solemn brooding presence.

But St. Paul's has more than its outer significance of appeal. In a very real sense it is the national church. Westminster Abbey has its own unrivalled claim upon the memories of the British race, and always will have while those memories can be stirred by the record of the past. It is Westminster Abbey, too, where the sovereigns of Britain are crowned. But the great glory of the Abbey is in its call upon the national spirit as enshrined in the great men who lie buried there. They would not less be buried in honour, by the way, if the Abbey had not been so largely given over to proprietary claims—but even as it is, that great and ancient and beautiful church is an unfailing witness of the breed of Englishmen who led the way to England's glory. St. Paul's has also that appeal in a lesser degree—though a place that memorialises Nelson, and Wellington, and Gordon, to say nothing of other great ones gone, is rich enough for reverence even in that regard. But St. Paul's is at its most significant nationally, in that it is the church where the great national events of the living present are made the subject of devotion. The national rejoicings and the national sorrowings have had expression there immemorially. Now a service of thanksgiving celebrates there the reign of a queen, now the grief of a nation over the loss of a king is caught up and concentrated within the cathedral walls. Constantly the approaches to St. Paul's are lined by hundreds of thousands of people come to share in the cathedral's ordering of some outstanding event—a royal return to the capital, or departure from it, the burial of a great man, the national rejoicing in some or other desired achievement. Constantly, too, the cathedral is crowded by reason of this and that specially solemn function within the calendar of its services. The pulpit of St. Paul's has rarely lacked a man of eminence whose word from it has travelled far and wide across the national conscience. There, in our own generation, by virtue of the gifts of a Church, a Liddon, a Scott-Holland, millions have found the inspiration they needed, whether of the saintly counsel or of the vivid eloquence the powers of such men were so easily able to command. These many years past, too, St. Paul's has set a national standard in the dignity of the services of the national church. A fine culture is about it. The solemnity of the place is for ever reinforced by the high human effort always at its service, in the quiet beauty of its ritual, the detachment and the reverence of those who minister there, and not least of all in the exquisite accessory music which in St. Paul's better than anywhere else perhaps, fulfils that great function of church music by which the wayward thought is touched to fine issues, is absorbed within an all-enveloping emotion, is helped, incalculably, toward the true spirit of worship. That is St. Paul's Cathedral, the great church which is at the heart of London, not only in fact, but by virtue of its place in the life of London, by virtue of its mighty mass of building set upon a hill, its soaring dome and the golden cross surmounting it, its solemn vast interior most familiar as only half-perceived through a dim greyness of falling mist, its music, itself a far-off mist of harmonious sound, the dignity of its services, the splendid sufficiency of its national expression of the people it serves. Australians have no such shrine for spur of their reverence of the past, or to their work for the future. We have our own varied medium of similar appeal, nevertheless, and it has its own claim upon us. At least, in any case, we are a British people, and we should be keen to feel how much is involved in any mischance to the noble fabric of St. Paul's Cathedral.

To-day's "Herald."—Sir Henry Lucy (page 5), after castigation of Mr. Lansbury, who has given away the seat at Bow, goes on to remark upon an unreported speech by Sir Edward Grey in a conciliatory and optimistic vein about the East, and dives farther into American politics by repeating the assurance of a correspondent that at next Presidential election Mr. Roosevelt will come again. Miss Grimshaw in the fourth of her brilliant papers on the pygmies of Papua continues her study of the chief native industry of our Pacific possession, which is sorcery, and then goes on to another Papuan little peculiarity in respect of widows and widowers. On the same page appears a paper dealing with Lowell's fresh studies of Mars. On page 7 will be found two sketches of Hongkong and the Blue Mountains, a descriptive naval paper on the despatch boat, and a study of the new cinematograph developments under the title of "Eye or Ear." Our new tale, "The Little Grey Shoe," begins on page 4.

A Premature Announcement.—The Postal Department notifies that the intimation recently given in the press that the week-end cable letter system came into operation on the 1st instant is not correct. The details of the system have not yet been settled.

Rain and the Harvest.—General rains are reported to have fallen throughout the State. Kiandra received 180 points, Tumut 178 points, and Morangarell 143 points. Some good falls were also registered in the west; but it is likely that the rain at this time of the year will do more harm than good. Harvesting is in full swing, and this is likely to be held up by the wet weather. The rain will also have the effect of bleaching the wheat which is lying in the fields.

Correction.—In our issue of yesterday, in the report of the shooting of Miss Walker by Robert Knight, it was stated that Mrs. W. Meader, wife of a carrying contractor, was Miss Walker's aunt. This was incorrect, the lady being Mrs. C. Meader, who lives as stated, at the corner of M'Donald and Eve streets, Erskineville. We regret that the error should have lead to a confusion of her identity with that of Mrs. W. Meader, of Bruce-street, Stanmore, with consequent annoyance to the latter.

PERSONAL.

The staffs of the "Herald" and "Mail" made a gift to Lady Fairfax on New Year's morning complementary to the presentation made to Sir James Fairfax last week in celebration of his diamond jubilee in journalism. The gift consisted of a beautifully-fitted black motor-bag and an evening fan. Lady Fairfax, in reply, sent a letter to the "Herald" and "Mail" staffs of the various departments, warmly acknowledging the gift, and expressing high appreciation of the thoughtfulness that had prompted it.

The Treasurer (Mr. Cann) returned to Sydney yesterday from Katoomba. He leaves again for the mountains this morning.

During the absence of Mr. J. W. Turner on leave, Mr. J. Nangle, F.R.A.S., has been appointed superintendent of technical education.

The Lord Mayor received a large number of guests at the Town Hall yesterday, amongst whom were Sir Francis Suttor, Messrs. F. E. Winchcombe, J. M. Paxton, J. Nobbs, T. W. Heney, D. Anderson, A. E. Jaques, C. J. Roberts, Hagon Smith, L. S. Spiller, C. E. B. Maybury, Ernest L. Davis, A. G. Ralston, Alfred Nathan, W. M'Court, Aldermen T. Kelly, O'Conner, Griffin, E. Jones, and Clarke, Rev. G. Brown, Commander Stevenson, Lieutenant Lambton, Messrs. John Callaghan, Denison Miller, James Keel, the Mayor of Randwick, Mr. George Fuller, Major Randal Carey, Sir Wm. M'Millan, Lieutenant Spain, Sir W. P. Manning, Messrs. Augustus Robinson, David Storey, J. P. Franki, Thos. Henley, M.L.A., Dr. F. A. Bennett, Mr. Alfred Edwards, Colonel Lister, Mr. A. J. Foley, Mr. W. J. Gollin, the Rabbi, Mr. Milton S. Love, and the president and members of the Water and Sewerage Board and president and officials of the Chamber of Commerce.

The Lord Mayor (Alderman A. Cocks, M.L.A.) will at 11.30 a.m. welcome the contingent of Western Australian members of the Young Australia League who are to arrive this morning. The function will take place at the Town Hall.

Mr. Herbert Priestley, of the firm of Messrs. Priestley, Larcombe, and Morris, was, on his return from a trip to Europe, entertained by the members of the staff at a launch picnic and presented with an illuminated address.

Dr. Lancaster, who is playing Mr. W. S. Viner for the chess championship of Australia, was too unwell to continue yesterday.

Mr. C. W. Davis, who recently resigned his position at Messrs. Kronheimer, Ltd., was, on Tuesday last, made a presentation and given a send-off at that firm's premises. Mr. Davis has been connected with the tobacco trade of this State for nearly 27 years. In 1886 he joined, as accountant, the late firm of Heyde, Todman, and Co., which in 1901 was merged into W. D. and H. O. Wills (Aust.), Ltd., and which again a few years later was succeeded by the firm he has just left.

The funeral of the late Mr. Arthur David Nelson took place yesterday at the Waverley Cemetery. The Rev. W. Allen Stevelly (Petersham) conducted a short service at the house and officiated at the graveside. The coffin was borne to the grave by the employees of the deceased gentleman. The funeral was largely attended, and among those present were Messrs. William C. and Harold Nelson (sons), W. H. Pickup, C. Sydney, and A. W. M'Kean (sons-in-law), W. A. Nelson (brother), Arthur Nelson and William Walton (nephews), Arthur Nelson (grandson), R. W. Johnston, L. S. Spiller, F. L. Parsons, A. W. and W. D. Scott, Albert Ross, T. C. Dickinson, R. G. Watkins, R. G. Gamble, J. J. Fay, John M'Laughlan, R. Patrick, M. N. Manwaring, R. Scott, R. Tulloch, J. Bonner, J. Connolly, W. Taylor, G. Griffith, F. Smith, R. J. Hade, R. M'Lean, Hugh Jacobson, M. M'Kean, W. Cowie, J. Fyfe, and G. H. and T. W. Hoskins.

BALKAN WAR.

PEACE CONFERENCE.

A DEADLOCK REACHED.

ADRIANOPLE AND THE AEGEANS.

LONDON, Jan. 2.

Dr. Daneff, President of the Bulgarian Sobranje, one of the delegates to the Peace Conference, in the course of an interview, stated that Adrianople and the Aegean Islands, which had been seized, must be surrendered, and unless the Peace Conference to-morrow bore fruit in accordance with the terms of the allies negotiations would be broken off.

Reshid Pasha, in the course of an interview, stated that Turkey had abandoned enormous territory because she had been beaten, but she did not intend to abandon Adrianople and the Aegean Islands.

POWERS' CONFERENCE.

In consequence of the conference recognising the principle of Albanian autonomy, three Albanian delegates have arrived to arrange details.

BULGARIA'S INDEMNITY.

VIENNA, Jan. 3.

It is reported that the war has cost Bulgaria £39,380,000, and that she claims an equivalent war indemnity.

MILITARY PREPARATIONS.

VIENNA, Jan. 2.

Great military activity is evident in Turkey. Over 6000 fresh troops are now camped in the vicinity of Constantinople, and large naval orders for ammunition have been placed in Germany.

Military preparations are also active in Servia. Eighty thousand men in the Landstrum have been summoned for service.

TROUBLE AMONG ALLIES.

SALONIKA, Jan. 3.

The Servians have occupied a number of villages in the Florina district, which were evacuated by the Greek Sixth Division.

The Servians have disarmed many Greek soldiers, and ordered them away from various villages.

BALKAN COMMITTEEMAN KILLED.

ATHENS, Jan. 2.

Mr. Palmer Newbould, a member of the Balkan committee, was killed while fighting at Bizani as a volunteer.

THE BUTTER TRADE.

SIR GEORGE REID'S REPORT.

DISSENT IN TOOLEY-STREET.

LONDON, Jan. 2.

A summary of the report of Sir George Reid, High Commissioner for Australia, on the butter trade, which has been cabled, has aroused dissent in Tooley-street.

Mr. E. J. Newton, a member of the Colonial Committee, explained, in the course of an interview, that the committee was in daily consultation, and members watched the trend of the market. They visited the stores and inspected shipments.

The committee, he added, sometimes called selling agents in consultation, and informed sellers as to what was considered a fair working basis whenever a marked change of price was imminent.

FIGHTING IN TRIPOLI.

BEDOUINS ATTACK ITALIANS.

TRIPOLI, Jan. 2.

Bedouins attacked the Italian positions on the northern coast, but they were repulsed with heavy loss.

BRITISH POLITICS.

ELECTION POSSIBILITIES.

NEITHER SIDE ANXIOUS.

LONDON, Jan. 3.

There have been many comments on Mr. Asquith's hint as to the possibility of an appeal to the country, and Mr. Bonar Law's acceptance of the challenge.

The Ministerialists regard the statements as merely debating points.

A member of the Government, who conceals his identity, has predicted that the next election will be fought on the franchise, and not Home Rule.

The Labour view is that neither the Unionists nor the Radicals want an election. The former are concerned with the internal differences in the party, and the latter dread the effect of the National Insurance Act.

The Franchise Bill will be taken into committee in the House of Commons in the last week of this month.

TARIFF REFORM.

THE UNIONIST SPLIT.

LONDON, Jan. 3.

An informal conference was held yesterday between Mr. Bonar Law and representative Lancashire Unionists. The latter expressed themselves as emphatically opposed to the inclusion of food taxes in the party programme.

Mr. Bonar Law promised to consider carefully their views.

Unionist groups representing agricultural divisions also met yesterday, and decided to urge the elimination of the food taxes from the programme.

HOME RULE BILL.

The discussion on the Home Rule Bill in the House of Commons last night was lifeless.

Six clauses were reviewed, and passed with the aid of the guillotine, and seven Government amendments were inserted without explanation.

NATIONAL INSURANCE.

MEDICAL DIFFICULTY.

CHANCELLOR AND THE DOCTORS.

LONDON, Jan. 2.

Mr. Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in the course of an address before the Insurance Advisory Committee, said that while the public regarded the revised terms to the doctors as generous, and the attitude of the doctors was a tacit admission that the terms fairly met the circumstances, they latterly had shifted the controversy from the question of remuneration to something called "lay control."

No other profession, he said, objected to administrative control by a lay body responsible for the payment. He instanced the legal and teaching professions. He added that arrangements were being made to deal with those areas in which the medical panels were inadequate.

The Chancellor stated that 10,000 doctors had agreed to serve under the Act, and it was possible to obtain full panels in five-eighths of the country.

POLITICS AND CLASSICS.

A PROFESSOR'S VIEWS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.

Professor M'Naughton, of McGill University, in a recent speech here, derided President Taft and Mr. Roosevelt for being absolutely without classical knowledge. He also stated that Mr. Taft owed more to "David Harum" than to Homer or the Hebrew scribes.

Professor M'Naughton has now apologised. He explains that he meant nothing personal, and that he was speaking simply as a classical scholar.

QUESTIONS IN THE COMMONS.

LONDON, Jan. 2.

In the House of Commons this evening Mr. J. M. Robertson, Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Trade, replying to Mr. J. P. Farrell, said that the captain of the Narrung had stated that the vessel was a splendid ship.

The Narrung, he added, was not a sister ship to the Waratah, and after being repaired he saw no reason why the vessel should not carry passengers to Australia.

Mr. Farrell offered to supply some confidential documents relating to the alleged unseaworthiness of the Narrung, and Mr. Robertson promised to peruse them.

MARCONI AGREEMENT.

FURTHER EVIDENCE.

LONDON, Jan. 2.

At the Parliamentary committee inquiry into the Marconi contract for the erection of wireless stations in connection with the Imperial chain, Mr. Gandil, representing the Poulsen Company, stated that they were not given an opportunity, but they could have tendered cheaper than the Marconi Company, and at a lower cost for working.

He admitted that the Poulsen system had never been tested up to 2000 miles.

Cross-examined, witness said that he could not get information from the Government in order to enable him to tender, but before making a general offer he had been informed that the stations were to be 2000 miles apart. He had also been told at the time that it was untrue that the Marconi Company had got the contract.

On being pressed for the name of his informant, witness replied that it was Sir William Hall Jones, ex-High Commissioner for New Zealand.

PATRONAGE.

CIVIL SERVICE APPOINTMENTS.

LONDON, Jan. 3.

The evidence given before the Royal Commission on the Civil Service shows that the whole of the upper staff of the Education Department has been recruited by patronage. Similarly, in regard to the staffing of the labour exchanges, men with the special qualifications required have fallen before personal influence.

The abuse of patronage, it has been made clear, has been exercised socially rather than politically.

Lord Macdonald, the chairman of the commission, has declared that unquestionably preference has been given to Oxford and Cambridge men.

HONEYMOON TRAGEDY.

LONDON, Jan. 2.

A fireman on the North-eastern railway line named Bowley, with his wife, entrained at Darlington for home. They had been married recently, and were returning from the honeymoon. During the journey he killed his wife with a razor, and then committed suicide in a compartment of the train.

The Government Savings Bank of N. S. Wales—Head Office: 11 Moore-street, Sydney, has now no connection whatever with the post offices. 114 Branches and 520 Agencies are now open.—Advt.

LABOUR.

CURIOUS SITUATION.

THE ENGINEERS' SQUABBLE.

LONDON, Jan. 3.

Further details of the ejection of the members of the executive council of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers in connection with the dispute over the alteration in the rules, it appears that the council was about to commence the business of its meeting, when a number of members of the association broke into the building and forced seven of them executive towards the stairs, and four of them were rolled violently down 20 stone steps, two of them being badly injured.

It appears that the provisional executive authorised the eviction of the old council.

No machinery exists to deal with such a situation as that existing at present, and the deadlock is without a parallel in the history of unionism.

TAXI-CAB STRIKE.

LONDON, Jan. 2.

In all 11,000 drivers are affected by the taxi-cab strike.

The trouble has now spread to Liverpool.

STRIKE OF DYERS.

LONDON, Jan. 2.

Eight thousand Lancashire and Yorkshire dyers have given notice of their intention to strike.

THE OSBORNE JUDGMENT.

The National Conference of Miners has agreed to a resolution setting out that, although it is unable to accept anything short of a complete reversal of the Osborne judgment, it is prepared in the meanwhile to accept the Trade Union Bill, subject to further improvements being effected in it before it becomes law.

CHINA AND THIBET.

PEKING, Jan. 2.

Advices received from Chengtu state that the Thibetans, profiting by the reluctance of the Chinese troops to follow their officers over little-known and difficult territory, attacked them near Hsiang Chang, and 300 Chinese were killed. The Chinese also lost six machine guns.

Batang, which has been besieged for some months, has now been relieved by Chinese troops, and the district has been cleared of Thibetans.

AN INDECISIVE DUEL.

POLITICIANS WITH SABRES.

BUDAPEST, Jan. 2.

Count Tisza and Count Karolyi fought a duel for an hour, during which they had 32 bouts with sabres.

Both sustained slight wounds, and they parted without being reconciled.

Count Tisza is the President of the House of Representatives, and the duel is doubtless the outcome of the wild demonstration against him, that marked the opening of Parliament in September, and culminated in a free fight. A hundred members of the Opposition were ordered to withdraw from the Chamber, and a terrific struggle with the police followed their refusal to comply with the order, several members had to be literally carried out of the Chamber. Count Karolyi fought with the police, freed himself, and returned to the Chamber, but just as he regained his seat he fainted from exhaustion.

NO STRIKE.

GAS EMPLOYEES' MEETING.

MODIFIED CLAIMS.

The gas employees of the three metropolitan companies (A.G.L., North Shore, and Manly), held a mass meeting at the Trades Hall last night, when about 400 attended. A modified attitude was adopted by those present in respect to their demand for an all-round advance of 1s per day.

Early in October it was decided—when the Gas Bill was about to be introduced to approach the Government, and, failing satisfactory results, to take a secret ballot on the question of ceasing work. This ballot was subsequently taken, but was not counted, because of legal considerations. The bill was eventually passed, making the reduction 3d per 1000 cubic feet, instead of 6d as originally intended by Mr. Carmichael. The men expected good results would follow, but it was stated at last night's meeting that, so far, no definite offer had been made by the companies.

The secretary, Mr. S. Rawlin, was, however, able to report the probability of a compromise. He stated that he and the late president, Mr. C. Willson, had, on December 31, seen Mr. G. J. Cohen, chairman of the Australian Gaslight Company, and submitted to him modified claims. The effect of the modification was that the demand for 1s all round would be withdrawn if the chairman would agree to advance the 8s per day men to 9s. Mr. Cohen desired that this should be submitted in writing, with an estimate of the number of men likely to be affected, and said he would submit the whole matter to the board meeting on January 9. He indicated the probability of favourable consideration.

A draft of the letter already approved by the gas employees council was submitted to last night's meeting, and unanimously adopted.

Mr. W. Farrell (who presided) explained subsequently that the advance would affect between 600 and 700 men, and Mr. Rawlin estimated that the cost to the companies would be £14,000 instead of about £26,000, which was the estimate for the all-round 1s advance.

If the appeal to the directors should be unsuccessful, a case will be stated for the Industrial Arbitration Court.

The strike idea has been abandoned.

"AN INIQUITOUS ACT."

BATHURST, Friday.

The Board of Fire Commissioners of New South Wales proposes to expend £672 in Bathurst during 1913. This information was contained in a communication from the board read at last night's council meeting. In moving that the letter be received, Alderman Webb said that it was no good kicking against the thing which gave power to levy this amount. The board was levying money all over New South Wales, thus costing the ratepayers more than twice as much as formerly to run the fire brigade stations, which he did not think were any better than when under the former management. The present Act was one of the most iniquitous acts ever passed by Parliament. The motion was carried.

BALL OF FIRE.

A POSTMASTER DAZED.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

During the thunderstorm yesterday afternoon lightning fused the telephone wires at the Aberfeldy post-office. The window of the office was broken, and the woodwork caught fire.

Mr. W. Svenson, the postmaster, who was sitting on the verandah at the time, states that a ball of fire appeared to strike the building, and it knocked him down. He was in a dazed condition for a time. Other inmates of the building were considerably startled.

The Goverment Savings Bank of N. S. Wales—Head Office: 11 Moore-street, Sydney, has now no connection whatever with the post offices. 114 Branches and 520 Agencies are now open.—Advt.

RIDING IN THE RAIN.

SPRINT FOR THE 1500 MILES.

The six-day riders were still hard at work on the track during the early hours and the forenoon of yesterday. There was no alteration in the running places of the teams. Nothing of interest occurred during the afternoon until the rain, which started at 20 past 2, stopped active racing. It was only a slight shower, but it was enough to steady up the pace, and no one hesitated to seek shelter. Later the thunderstorm burst over the ground, and the riders were nonplussed. When the heavy showers fell, accompanied by the wind, thunder, and lightning, the referee of the league allowed the riders to take shelter in what is known as the "roller entrance" on the Sydney Cricket Ground, where top coats and macintoshes were in demand, and prevented any effort to identify the riders.

At this period points could not be lost or gained. The riders did not endeavour to exert themselves.

About 4 o'clock the rain cleared off, but the track was still too wet for speed work, and the seven leading teams and the four teams who were only one lap behind had a chance of securing the verdict.

Just then the thunderstorm with its attendant worries of rain, wind, etc., compelled the riders to retire again to the shelter of the roller entrance.

After the official time for three laps had been decided upon the riders returned to the banked track, and under adverse weather conditions continued the long journey. They were labouring under weather troubles, and consequently had to have an easy time until the word to go was given.

At about 10 to 8 last night the sprint for the honour of securing the 1500 miles special prize was started with an announcement that the sprinters of the leading teams had six laps to go for the finish. The leading riders left in for the final dash for the 1500 miles, included the best sprinters of the respective teams, such as Keefe, Hammond, Crook, Kirkham, and M'Namara, etc.

The field of 11 riders, seven of whom were eligible for honours, started the final rush for the 1500 miles prize.

After a desperate effort, R. Spears beat off R. J. M'Namara's sprint by a wheel, with Bert Scott in close attendance. The 1500 miles was completed at 7.50 p.m. last night—nearly 117 hours. It was an heroic effort, and lifted off a lot of the monotony hitherto attending the race. The unfortunate part was that just when the race for the six days was gaining interest the riders were called to the grass track to allow the sprint cycling events to be run. These proved very popular.

The six-day riders returned to the grass track about 10.20 last night, and McNamara, Priestley, Keefe, and Fred. Walcott took turns at keeping the field on the move. There was nothing sensational to record, but there was an element of excitement prevailing right through, as it was rumoured that the Franco-German team would regain the lost lap.

They tried hard right up to 11 o'clock last night, but in any "burst-up" New South Wales, Tasmania, and Victoria representatives, McNamara, Priestley, Keefe, Kirkham, held their own.

A desperate effort was made to shake off the forcing team, but, although they were dropped for three-quarters of a lap at one stage, they pulled up the lost ground by quick changes.

Both Applehans and Rousseau have made themselves popular by their plucky riding.

At 10 o'clock, 117 hours, the distance covered was 1520 miles, at midnight 1541 miles had been passed in 119 hours, and the pace was fairly easy.

The crowd is keenly attentive, and every move in the race is watched with keen interest. The performance of the French team is attracting the greatest interest, and each reappearance of the riders is hailed with applause. The Franco-German team is making a very game fight of it, and spurt ahead at every fresh turn.

All hands are hopeful for Saturday's run, though the Australians are confident of winning. The New Zealanders are also in good spirits. Public opinion seems to be in favour of the MacNamara's.

At the end of the five days, 120 hours, 1551 miles had been passed.

Rousseau, the French rider, has been awarded a special prize for a brilliant performance, and the crowd gave him the greatest encouragement with loud cheering. He is settling the pace fast, and is intent on gaining his lost lap.

MR. HOLMAN'S PLANS.

AGENT-GENERALSHIP.

MR. COGHLAN'S STIPULATION.

FREMANTLE, Friday.

Mr. Holman, the New South Wales Attorney-General, passed through on the Armand Behic yesterday, and during his stay was the guest of the Premier (Mr. Scaddan) at luncheon. The new New South Wales Governor (Sir Gerald Strickland) was present at the luncheon, which was held on Rottnest Island, his Excellency having made a special trip from the mainland in order to meet Mr. Holman.

Interviewed, Mr. Holman said the trip was purely a private one. The work of the past session in the New South Wales Parliament had been very strenuous, and he was taking the trip as a means of recuperation. Asked whether there was any truth in the rumour that he intended to remain in London as New South Wales Agent-General, Mr. Holman said that he had definitely decided to return to Australia in May next.

During the past week, he added, Mr. Coghlan, the present Agent-General, had been appointed for another period of two years. As to whether he would take up the position at a later stage, it was difficult to say. Mr. Coghlan, as he had already said, had been appointed for another two years, but that gentleman had stipulated that he could at any time within that period resign. It might be that the question would be reopened, but nothing would be definitely decided until his return to Australia in May next.

CAUGHT IN UNDERTOW.

A PLUCKY RESCUE.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

Miss Maggie Cunningham had a narrow escape from being drowned whilst surf bathing at Port Kembla yesterday. It appears that the young woman got in the undertow, and was quickly carried out some distance. An alarm was raised, and Master Leslie Hartley, at great risk of losing his own life, at once went to the young woman's assistance, and after considerable difficulty managed to bring Miss Cunningham to shore.

She was subsequently resuscitated by several ladies, and conveyed to her parents' home. Those who were on the beach at the time say that had it not been for the bravery displayed by Master Hartley the surf would have claimed another victim.

The business of the Government Savings Bank of N.S. Wales has been removed from all post-offices.—Advt.

STATE PROSPERITY.

PREMIER COMMENTS.

"OTHER SIDE OF THE PICTURE."

"I notice that a lot is being said about the prosperity of the State," remarked the Premier, Mr. M'Gowen, yesterday.

"It occurs to me that these outbursts of approval, mostly on the part of our critics, form the answer to their own comments on our term of office. It is the other side of the picture. They always paint us as a gang of political desperadoes, seeking whom we may devour. We have been told until we are sick of hearing it that we are engaged in acts of confiscation; that we are driving capital from the country; that we are disloyal to the King; and that we won't allow any more people to come and live here. But the country having gone ahead in spite of all these dire predictions, our critics now frankly admit that we have progressed magnificently; that we are doing a bigger trade than ever before; that the masses have never been so well off; and that generally we may shake hands with ourselves all round.

"The only thing our critics forget to say is that they predicted the reverse would happen under Labour rule. I take this glowing description of our prosperity as a great compliment to the Government of the day. It is also an excellent advertisement for the State. If our critics would only make it a general rule to advertise the State instead of decrying it we would make better progress still. I think it says much for the general confidence in the Government, both at home and abroad, that, in spite of the continued cry of stinking fish by our opponents in politics we have been able to meet all our financial obligations on a very tight and depressed money market. Merchants and traders have never been so busy; the working and middle classes have never had so much to their credit in the savings banks; and generally speaking the admitted prosperity is a complete answer to all the unkind and unjustifiable things that have been said about Labour government.

"As to the disloyalty charge, there was never anything more foolish or childish. We maintain our own State Governor in honour and comfort. We saw that there was a magnificent area of ground idle for the greater part of the year, and it occurred to us that the greater part of the general community might just as well have the use of it, and that the Commonwealth Government might reasonably be expected to provide for the occasional visits of the Governor-General. I am glad to see that the public is taking full advantage of the new breathing-space which this 'wicked' Government has made available to them.

"We have confiscated nothing as alleged. No one is poorer through Labour being in a majority, and as our critics admit a great many people are better off. The stream of immigration has been temporarily checked, because there was a danger of the Labour market being flooded. But when we are able to throw open large areas of land we will start a stream of immigration such as has never been known before in the State. Bring by all means as many worthy white people as we can to the country, but first make sure that when they arrive they will find profitable employment.

"Now that this frank admission has been made about our prosperity, in spite of Labour administration, I hope we will not hear so many of these gruesome stories for a while."

SAVINGS BANKS.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA WAVERING.

The Treasurer (Mr. Cann) does not fear the competition of the Commonwealth Bank. He stated yesterday that the State's arrangements were now complete, and that initial difficulties in the way of removal had been overcome. So far business had increased in the branches dissociated from the post offices. He attributed this to the fact that the State banks were now being run by bankers, and not by post office clerks. Customers were naturally able to get better attention than in the post offices, where the officials had multifarious duties to perform.

In view of the deadlock which the governor of the Commonwealth Bank has reached with New South Wales and Western Australia, it is interesting to note that an arrangement has been come to with Tasmania, the Commonwealth yesterday having taken over Tasmania's business. It is also understood that there is a probability of the deadlock with Western Australia being overcome.

Following is a statement by the Premier of Western Australia (Mr. Scaddan) on the subject:—

"After very careful consideration and extended negotiations with the governor of the Commonwealth Bank, we find at the last moment, I regret exceedingly to say, that it is impossible to come to a conclusion in that matter which we consider would be satisfactory to the State, so as to permit us to hand over our State Savings Bank to the Commonwealth. I want it to be distinctly understood that, so far as the Government are concerned, we were desirous of joining with the Commonwealth in this matter, because we are strongly of opinion that it is undesirable there should be two institutions in a State like Western Australia, with a population of 300,000, owned by the people, and controlled by different Governments running in opposition to each other.

"It would be an absurd position for one country to have two businesses running in opposition. But we had to consider when negotiating with the Commonwealth whether the State was getting a fair deal in the offer they made. There was one point in particular we were not able to come to an agreement upon, with the result that I have informed the governor of the Commonwealth Bank, together with the Prime Minister, that we regretted exceedingly we would not join with the Commonwealth in having them take over our savings bank on the terms they offered.

"I am still hopeful that we will be able to confer and bring about an arrangement satisfactory to the Commonwealth and to the State, and, above all, satisfactory to the depositors, the people who really own the institution."

TRAM AWARD.

APPEAL TO THE HIGH COURT.

PRELIMINARY ORDER FOR INJUNCTION.

BRISBANE COMPANY APPEALS.

An important development has taken place in connection with the Tramway Award recently made by Mr. Justice Higgins in the Federal Arbitration Court. An appeal has been made against the award to the High Court, and a preliminary order for a stay of proceedings has been granted.

The award made by Mr. Justice Higgins principally affected the privately-owned tramway companies in Brisbane, Melbourne, and Adelaide. In the present appeal against the Court's award the Brisbane Tramway Company is the appellant.

Mr. Feez, K.C., and Mr. Henchman, two prominent members of the Queensland Bar, specially journeyed to Sydney, and on Thursday afternoon made an application to the Chief Justice, Sir Samuel Griffith, for a rule nisi prohibiting the Federal Arbitration Court from proceeding further in the tramway award in which the Brisbane Tramway Company is involved.

The application was heard by the Chief Justice in Chambers, and the grounds of the appeal involved a lengthy list. The principal ground, however, was that none of the Brisbane Tramway Company's servants were concerned in the award.

The Chief Justice, after hearing argument in support of the appeal, granted a rule nisi calling upon the Federal Arbitration Court to show cause in Melbourne at the next sittings of the High Court.

DELIVERY OF THE AWARD.

COMMENTS BY MR. JUSTICE HIGGINS.

When announcing the terms of the award in respect to the plaint filed by the Tramway Employees' Association against the Adelaide Tramway Trust, the Brisbane Tramway Systems Company, and others, Mr. Justice Higgins, on December 21, made a lengthy statement, in which he referred in caustic terms to several matters, and made a very strong attack on the methods adopted by Mr. Badger, the manager of the Brisbane Tramways Company.

"The Brisbane Tramway Company has refused even to consider an agreement," said his Honor. "It objects to everything. It is an English company, and its American manager, Mr. Badger, adheres to the time-honoured policy of absolute control over his own employees. The form of agreement which he has used for years leaves the amount of wages to be paid to employees from day to day absolutely in his discretion. Any good thing that comes to his employees must come through the manager's hands. He does not even believe in a wages board. In a letter, written in May, 1910, to the electrical engineer of the New South Wales Railways, he speaks of the absolute futility of the Wages Board Act of Queensland. Until this association was organised, Mr. Badger succeeded in crushing out all attempts to form a true union among his men.

"He has been always able hitherto to stamp out sparks of unionism before they have spread. I can only say that it is not for me to aid him in his battle against unionism."

PREFERENCE TO UNIONISTS.

"Mr. Badger stubbornly sets his face against the employment of members of this union, but this Court has power to award, and is invited to award, preference to the members. It has power to compel the company to cease its obstinate policy of antagonism to the association. The position of the men who tried to leave the association at the instance of the company's officers is indeed an unhappy one. They had to choose between their billets and their union, between a hungry home and the reproaches of their comrades. Their conditions were bad, but loss of employment was worse, and they chose to retain their billets. Their feelings have, in many cases, been embittered by the jeers and taunts of their fellow-members, and of the public, and at present many of them would no doubt be glad to defeat the association.

"But if the heavy hand of intimidation were taken off the men would soon begin to welcome an award in favour of themselves and other members of the association."

His Honor also dealt at length with Mr. Badger's business methods, and then said:—"I shall make the order for preference, because the company refuses to undertake not to discriminate against the members of the association."

The tramway claims were first presented before the Federal Arbitration Court on October 26, 1911, and the award was delivered on December 21, 1912—14 months later.

EMPLOYEES' ATTITUDE.

AWARD REJECTED.

BRISBANE, Friday.

The recent award of Mr. Justice Higgins was considered, in its relation to the local association, by members of the Brisbane Tramways Employees' Association at two crowded meetings held yesterday afternoon and evening. Fully 600 members were present at the two meetings. After discussion, each meeting unanimously resolved:—(1) That, after having fully discussed the award, we express our confidence in the principles of the local association, as registered under the Queensland Trade Union Act of 1886; (2) that, after taking into consideration the few apparent advantages set out in the award, and the alluring and dangerous effect which would ultimately follow either its recognition or administration, we pledge ourselves to assist to the utmost of our ability the executive and committee of the Brisbane Tramways Association in their efforts in securing, from time to time, betterment of our conditions by deputation to the management, or such other methods as are open to us by the State law; (3) that we further pledge ourselves to resist and resent to the utmost any attempts put forward by the Australian Tramways Employees' Association, or their agents, to induce any of the employees to enter into alliance with that body, which in the past has endeavoured to intimidate and in every way stand against the best interests of the men now in the service.

OVERTURNED CAR.

MOTORISTS' PERILOUS POSITION.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

Mr. J. Henderson, who recently started a motor car service in Wollongong, had his fine car destroyed last night under exciting circumstances. It appears that Henderson had driven a party out, and when returning near Woonona one of the wheels came off, causing the car to overturn. The occupants, Messrs. Henderson, John Smith, John Baggs, Robert Woods, and H. Konhalt, were thrown out, Smith and Baggs being pinned underneath the car.

The petrol became ignited, and almost immediately the car was in flames. With great difficulty Smith and Baggs were rescued from their perilous position, just in time, as the flames by now were all over the car. Konhalt received a bad cut over the eye, the others escaping with a severe shaking. It is nothing short of miraculous that the whole party were not seriously injured. The car was insured for £450. It was completely destroyed.

HARD TIMES.

WATER BOARD'S WORKS.

The poverty to which the Water and Sewerage Board has been reduced by the action of the Government in cutting down their votes was illustrated at its meeting yesterday, when a firm who had been informed that no money was available for the carrying out of the sewer extensions they had applied for made an offer to advance the board the money to do the work, amounting to £400. It was decided to carry out the extensions in this case.

AMATEUR PROBLEM.

OARSMEN DEBARRED.

APPLICATION FROM NEW ZEALAND.

The definition of an amateur oarsman adopted by the New South Wales Rowing Association is rigid in its application. It closes the door of all aquatic contests carried out under its supervision to sportsmen who have rowed in races for gain. If the oarsman has once accepted a money prize he is debarred participating in a wide field of sport as an amateur contestant.

For some time past the opinion has been gaining strength that elasticity should be introduced by the association into the interpretation of the definition. So far it has, to all intents and purposes, been adamantine in its refusal to class as amateurs rowers who have accepted money, no matter how modest the amount, or whether the element of personal gain was entirely absent from the transaction. It is believed in some quarters that the interests of amateur sport would be better served, or, at least, would find greater encouragement if the definition was materially altered and something less drastic in its incidence substituted.

An echo of the prevailing opinion found rather significant expression in a letter tabled at the last meeting of the New South Wales Rowing Association, when the New Zealand Amateur Rowing Association pointed out that the definition and rules of the association should be so amended as to allow New Zealand oarsmen to compete in Australia. It was explained that at a meeting of the New Zealand body a resolution was carried instructing the council to collect information with a view to bringing the matter under the notice of a special meeting of delegates, to be held in Wellington on the occasion of the championship regatta. This will be in either February or March, and the New Zealand organisation has asked the New South Wales Association to assist in the matter.

If the alteration were made as suggested it would doubtless benefit the sport generally, and allow a freer exchange of competitions between the two countries, which in itself would be an incentive to the sport, and be responsible for an increase in public interest. Anything that would tend to popularise rowing contests without endangering the interpretation of the term amateur, would be welcomed by a large circle of rowers. Whatever concession can be made in regard to New Zealand would be, no doubt, reciprocated by any reasonable extension of privileges, which would give encouragement to the development of a high standard of amateur rowing contests between the two countries.

It was pointed out at the meeting in question that oarsmen of the Dominion were virtually amateurs. Whatever breaches had been committed were purely of a technical nature. Whenever the oarsmen had rowed for money it was not for themselves, but to benefit their clubs. There were very few men who had competed for money in other branches of sport, and if the amateur definition be amended the New Zealand Association asks that a generous view be taken of these cases.

The practice at present followed in New South Wales is that New Zealand oarsmen wishing to compete in this State must apply for reinstatement as amateurs, but this, as a rule, is merely a matter of form, provided the applicant has never competed for a cash prize for his own personal benefit. But, unfortunately, a reinstated amateur is not eligible to compete in an interstate race. Therefore New Zealand oarsmen could not compete in such events, although they could take part, after reinstatement, in New South Wales regattas.

After giving the matter full consideration, the committee of the New South Wales Association resolved to suggest to the South Australian Association (under whose control the next interstate conference will be held, at Adelaide, in April next) that New Zealand should be invited to send a delegate or delegates to the conference, and that the New Zealand Association should be informed to that effect.

There is also the question of the northern river clubs, which are similarly debarred. Special treatment has been asked for a long time past, on the ground that owing to limited membership and scope of operations such a strict amateur definition as that adopted by the metropolis could not apply in this case. The consequence of laxity in this regard has closed the doors of many important amateur rowing contests to the oarsmen of the northern rivers. The Grafton Club suggests that competitors might be classed as amateurs. If this were done the classification could be made retrospective, provided they have not pursued nor do not pursue athletics as a means of livelihood, nor for substantial financial gain; and, in the case of rowing clubs, that the members do not earn their livelihoods by the use of a boat for fishing or otherwise.

About five years ago it was suggested that a general "whitewashing" rule should be adopted, so far as the country clubs were concerned, provided they adhered to the amateur definition from that time on, but nothing came of it. Apparently this is not regarded as a suitable solution of the difficulty. If the suggestion of the Grafton Club were adopted it would probably mean a drastic departure from the association's rules. At the time the proposal was advanced it was after the most careful consideration refused.

Metropolitan rowing men express the hope that the northern clubs will form a Northern Rivers Association, and so amend their rules that they may meet the requirements of the parent body in regard to what is required of an amateur.

ANNANDALE FIRE.

FACTORY STOCK BURNT.

Not many minutes after 3 p.m. yesterday, a fire broke out in the oilskin manufactory of Messrs. T. Hood and Co., Ltd. (Thomas Hood and A. E. Sanderland), in Trafalgar-street (near Booth-street), Annandale. The fire brigade did good work, however, and almost saved the two-story brick building. The stock damage is estimated at £5700.

Mr. Hood's son was the first to notice the fire. A number of oilskin coats were hanging against a wall on the first floor, from which he saw some smoke issuing. In another second there was a burst of flame, and all hope of subduing the outbreak was futile.

Next door was a stable, in which some horses and vehicles were standing. These were rescued opportunely. On the other side of the building is situate the spirit store of Geo. Younger and Son, Ltd.

The district stations and the headquarters' brigade were soon at work, and with the help of the motor-turbine and the Glebe steamer, succeeded first in cutting off the spread of the flames from adjoining premises, and, after an hour's hard work in saving portion of the ground floor of the factory; but the whole of the first floor, with the roof, was burnt out.

Through the excessive heat the electric wires connected with the driving motor of the factory fused. The inrush of the outside current thus had the effect of disorganising the local circuit. On this account there may be some delay this morning in the absence of motive power at various business concerns.

Hood's premises are the property of Taylor Bros. (Geo. Wright), who hold an insurance policy in the Colonial Mutual Company for £4000. The oilskin stock is covered in the sum of £2000—New Zealand Insurance Company, £750; Batavia Company, £750; and Colonial Mutual, £500.

MOTOR LORRY BURNED.

WAGGA, Friday.

While returning to Wagga at an early hour with a picnic party, the carburetter of M'Gillivray's motor lorry caught fire at North Wagga. The passengers were taken to town in another motor lorry. M'Gillivray returned to the place where the latter's motor lorry had been left, and endeavoured to restart the machine. It, however, back-fired in the carburetter, and set the benzine alight. The car was soon in flames, which the men tried to extinguish by using sand and water. They were able to save the back portion of the lorry, but the other parts were completely destroyed. The lorry was insured for £500.

GREAT LIBERAL VICTORY.

THE BLAYNEY POLL.

SECOND BALLOT TO TAKE PLACE.

CLOSE CONTEST FOR SECOND PLACE.

(BY OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

BLAYNEY, Friday.

After one of the most interesting and strenuous political contests in the history of the State, the electors of Blayney have decided by a magnificent majority in favour of Liberalism.

Incidentally, these same electors at the ballot-boxes passed a tremendous vote of no-confidence in the present Labour Government. Just over two years ago Labour polled 2799 votes. On this occasion, the solidarity candidate only found a few more than 1100 electors to support the Government.

An analysis of the voting shows that the electors as a whole vetoed Mr. Beeby's attempt to introduce a third party into the political arena, though his personal following was so great that he polled about the same number of votes as the Labour candidate.

But though Mr. Withington secured a splendid victory, he did not get the absolute majority of the votes polled, so a second ballot will be necessary. The result, however, should not be in doubt.

A feature of the campaign was the rapid way in which Mr. Beeby lost ground towards the close of the campaign. A week ago he was absolutely confident of victory. Last night his final address contained all the elements of pessimism.

The position of candidates stands as follows:—

WITHINGTON (Lib.) .. 1795
BEEBY (Ind.) .. 1144
JOHNSTON (Lab.) .. 1120

Mr. Withington is 469 votes short of an absolute majority. On present appearances Mr. Beeby will go to the second ballot with Mr. Withington.

The only return to come in is from Paling Yards, where there are about 25 electors, practically all Liberal supporters. At the last general election Mr. Kelk, the Liberal candidate, polled 21, and Mr. Beeby, then the nominee of the Labour party, only 3.

BURYING THE HATCHET.

BLAYNEY, Friday.

Although the election has been fought with determination and keenness, if not with bitterness, the element of personal ill-feeling seemed to be eliminated last night. The rain spoiled the open-air rallies of the Independents and Labourites, and the Town Hall was thronged to hear the Liberal speakers. But at the conclusion of the addresses of Mr. Wood and Mr. Withington, the Liberal executive gave permission for their opponents to address the meeting.

So the final phase of an epochal election was unique, and the electors witnessed the novel spectacle of the three candidats on the same platform. So the fiercely fought campaign ended amicably.

If the hatchets were not buried, at least they were out of sight. And the same give-and-take spirit marked the work of the partisans outside the booth all day. The utmost good humour prevailed, with little or no bitterness or disputing.

THE POLLING.

Shortly before 8 o'clock a lady stood before the Blayney Court-house tightly grasping an election card in one hand. There were other electors gathered round about, but she occupied pride of place, and when the hour struck and the doors were opened she hurried through, and, putting an emphatic cross in the square opposite Withington, registered the first vote for Liberalism.

But there are 55 polling places in the electorate, and it is quite probable that in many of these centres Labourites and Independents were first into the booth. However, in the chief town in the electorate the first vote went to Mr. Withington.

There was very little excitement during the morning. In ones and twos the electors filed in and recorded their votes, and, having justified their citizenship, returned home.

Motor cars plied steadily, bringing in voters from the outskirts of the township. Traps, buggies, and sulkies came in from the country, bringing the farmers, anxious, for the most part, to register a vote for Liberalism and freehold. Outside the booth were the campaigners sedulously canvassing every arrival. Most of the partisans wore distinguishing colours, and the royal blue of Liberalism predominated. But there were plenty who displayed the sky blue and white which stands for Labour. The Independents had no election badge, and no distinguishing colour, which in itself (a Liberal remarked) was very appropriate, since they had no policy.

Mr. Harry Morton, who lent his presence and influence to Mr. Beeby, voiced his regrets that the Independents were not distinguished by the red white and blue tricolour, which had won him success on the rivers.

LIBERALS CONFIDENT.

"If good wishes were votes," said Mr. Beeby, "I would win hands down. This remark was prompted by the receipt during the day of scores of telegrams from all over the State. But he was not singular in this regard, for both Mr. Withington and Mr. Johnston were the recipients of many messages of goodwill and encouragement.

The Liberal vote in Blayney itself has always been solid, and early in the day it was evident that Mr. Withington was more than holding his own. But Labour was doing distinctly better, and Mr. Beeby rather worse than was anticipated. At midday it was ascertained that Mr. Withington had secured approximately a shade over half the votes poled, while an approximate estimate showed Mr. Johnston to lead the Independent.

In Millthorpe reports were also encouraging for the Liberal viewpoint, and Mr. Withington, who spent half the morning there, found his old supporters solidly in his favour. Reports from the eastern section of the electorate showed solid support for labour.

THE CRICK VOTE.

As the day wears on there is more and more uncertainty as to the destination of what has been dubbed "the Crick vote." Early in the campaign as the result of the championing Mr. Beeby received in some journals it was looked upon as certain that he would get this vote. When this campaign was a week old he seemed very confident, and there were not wanting enthusiasts who were ready to wager any sum that Labour would not poll 500 votes. The Labour party realised this, and, failing to make much headway at the outset, got to work to shift the Crick vote. Some hard campaigning and canvassing were put in by Messrs. Trefle, Dooley, Osborne, Keegan, and Cusack, endeavouring to swing the Crick vote back to Labour. Then came Mr. Donaldson, who made a sympathetic appeal to the electors to let the mantle of Crick rest on the shoulders of Beeby. With what success this part of the campaign was worked the figures show.

RAIN AGAIN.

Old campaigners remember many wet polling days in Blayney. This was no exception; but fortunately the rain did not greatly affect the polling. There were a couple of showers in the morning and a few more in the afternoon, but there were bright, clear hours in between, when the voters came out in full force. The rain the previous night suspended harvesting, so there was no excuse for any farmer to stay away.

RIP VAN WINKLE.

The day so far as Blayney itself is concerned was devoid of incidents. So thoroughly had the electorate been canvassed that nearly every voter had his or her mind made up before reaching the polling booth, but during the day there arrived in a tumble-down, ramshackle cart a rough, long-haired, unkempt elector from the fastnesses of the Abercrombie Ranges. He had never been canvassed. Circulars had not reached him; his only papers were weeks old. Noticing his indecision, three canvassers metaphorically went for his scalp. They surrounded him, and in brief staccato sentences pleaded their cause. For five exciting minutes the mountaineer stood like Rip Van Winkle while the political situation was explained to him, and the virtues of the candidates extolled to the utmost. A crowd gathered, urging on the disputants and offering advice, which further bewildered the poor elector. Finally the argument in favour of the poor downtrodden working man carried the day, and amid Labour cheers the bewhiskered elector timidly entered the booth and voted for Johnston.

The first result out was from Blayney itself, and cheers sounded from the crowd when it was seen that the Liberal candidate had gained an absolute majority over both his opponents, the figures being—Withington 308, Beeby 101, and Johnston 145. Then followed Oberon, where again the Liberal led easily with 119, against Johnston's 19 and Beeby's 72.

Large crowds gathered in the street to watch the figures being hoisted, and throughout the evening there were demonstrations and counter demonstrations, as was anticipated. Mr. Withington scored a majority right from the outset, and there were hopes of his having an absolute majority on the first ballot.

Newbridge and Hazelgrove showed to what extent Labour had been successful in cutting into the Crick vote. At the former place Johnston scored 59, while Beeby slumped to 10, and Withington secured a respectable 35. At Hazelgrove, where Beeby defeated Kelk by 65 to 5, he only secured 22 to Johnston's 27 and Withington's 12.

Jenolan Caves again stood solidly for Liberalism, giving Withington 18, Beeby 1, and Johnston nil. Moorilda, Neville, and Hobby's Yards considerably increased Withington's lead, while Tarana, where no Liberal association had ever existed up to the present, gave the Liberal twice as many as the Labourite, with the Independent halfway between the two.

By 9 o'clock, however, the scores were—Withington 1246, Johnston 720, Beeby 657. So hopes of a straight-out victory began to fade.

NECK AND NECK.

As time fled on the crowds becamee excited over the neck and neck ding-dong contest between Beeby and Johnston for second place honours. In racing parlance, Withington had passed the post before Beeby and Johnston had turned into the straight, and since the winner had already been chosen the crowd concentrated all their attention on the second horse.

A prophet is not without honour, save in his own country. Once again was the scriptural maxim fulfilled, for Johnston, at his birthplace (O'Connell), only received 20 votes, while Beeby was honoured with 47, and Withington 60.

Captain Millard, M.L.A., was a badly-used politician when he found that he had to put in New Year's Day among the ranges at Trunkey. But the South Coast veteran did not let the grass grow under his feet. He spoke at two meetings, and had many a chat with the old miners, and he had his reward by seeing at Trunkey 70 votes for Withington, as against 32 to Beeby and 47 to Johnston.

MR. WITHINGTON'S MESSAGE.

After the result of the poll was no longer in doubt, Mr. Withington, the successful candidate, issued the following message to the electors:—

"My best thanks are due, first, to the electors of Blayney for their magnificent justification of the principles of Liberalism, and, second, to those loyal workers who fought so strenuously and disinterestedly on my behalf.

"Although a second ballot is necessary, the final result canot for a moment be doubted. The splendid vote cast on this occasion in favour of freehold and sound government will be felt all over our State and cannot be disregarded by those concerned."

AN ANGRY LABOURITE.

Late to-night, when the result of the poll was sure, and when Mr. Beeby looks certain of just scratching into the second ballot, Mr. Peters, M.L.A. said:—"If the alleged leaders of Labour had been true to the cause of Labour, we would certainly have got into the second ballot, and then we would have won the seat."

MINISTERIAL VIEWS.

Mr. Flowers (Vice-President of the Executive Council), who was on deck with Mr. Trefle (Minister for Agriculture) till a late hour last night, expressed the opinion that either Mr. Beeby or Mr. Johnston would win on the second ballot.

"There is no Liberal victory," he said. "Mr. Withington has apparently polled every Liberal vote. Mr. Beeby has not taken a single one from him. All that Mr. Beeby has done is to split the Labour vote. And the combined Labour vote shows that the Liberals are worse off than at the general election. The chances are that whoever goes to the second ballot with the Liberal candidate —Mr. Beeby or Mr. Johnston—will win.

"Those who voted 'Labour' will certainly not vote 'Liberal' in the second ballot. Mr. Beeby will undoubtedly get the preference. Similarly those who voted for Mr. Beeby will not vote 'Liberal.'

"My firm opinion is that the divided Labour vote will be united in the second ballot, and that Mr. Withington will be defeated."

Mr. Trefle said that the main feature of the contest showed that Labour had not gone back in the country. The Labour party's main difficulty was that it had to go to the polls on the old rolls. Had the new rolls been available there would have been from 400 to 500 additional Labour votes. Liverpool Plains was a case in point. At the second by-election about 500 new names were put on the roll, and they were all Labour.

AT THE LIBERAL ROOMS.

There was nothing of the "I told you so" spirit at the Liberal rooms last night. Of course, as is only natural, there was a quiet elation at the excellent position in which the Liberal candidate stood, from the very first of the results which came to hand. The Liberal organisation has taken this contest very seriously. No campaign was ever better organised. It was recognised that the result of the Blayney by-election would carry with it an extreme significance. Perhaps never before in the political history of the State did so much depend upon the result of a single election. In a word, it meant the supremacy of one or other party in the State Parliament.

The Liberal rooms were a busy centre, but there was very little anxiety after the first few returns had come in. A number of prominent men in the ranks of Liberalism were in and out of the rooms during the night, including Sir James Graham, Mr. Ed. Lonsdale, M.L.A., and Mr. J. C. L. Fitzpatrick, M.L.A., Mr. D. Storey, M.L.A., Mr. Brinsley Hall, M.L.A., and Alderman A. A. C. Cocks (Lord Mayor). None of these gentlemen could be induced to talk about the election. The whole matter was at present in so uncertain a state and in view of the certainty that there would be a second ballot it was preferred to allow the matter to rest.

Mr. Fitzpatrick expressed the consensus of opinion in a cryptic statement that, in view of all that had been said, especially during the last few days, about the prospects of a win straight out on the first ballot for Mr. Beeby on the one hand and Mr. Johnson on the other, the position occupied by Mr. Withington at the head of the poll with close on 1000 votes to spare, was a magnificent testimony to the strength of the Liberal party.

Mr. Archdale Parkhill, secretary to the Liberal Association, said:—"The figures so far available are very satisfactory from the Liberal point of view, in that they disclose the substantial lead which it was expected Mr. Withington would secure. The figures of the various polling places tally almost exactly with the information supplied to this office by the organisers and committees at work in the electorate. Speaking without final information, it is evident that the Liberal vote has been practically unaffected by Mr. Beeby's campaign, and is solidly behind Mr. Withington. There also appears to be a distinct Liberal gain compared with the figures of the last election. The second ballot, which appears to be inevitable, will be very interesting."

THE OFFICIALS.

The first return reached the Chief Secretary's office at 8.5 p.m. Mr. F. A. Coghlan, Principal Under-Secretary, Mr. S. Fotheringham, and Mr. T. Neely, were present, and the figures, received direct from official sources at Blayney, were promptly transferred to the press representatives.

ELECTORS ON THE ROLL.

There are 6717 electors on the roll, of whom approximately 4100 exercised the franchise.

At the last general election there were 7027 electors enrolled, and 5152 voted, or 71.49 per cent.

STATE OF PARTIES.

Labour members	44
Liberal members	38
Independents	5
Speaker	1
Vacant seats	2

YESTERDAY'S STORM.

ELECTRIC WIRE FUSED.

LARGE HAILSTONES.

After a sultry and oppressive morning a severe thunderstorm occurred in the city at about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. One result was that the temperature dropped from 90 to 75 degrees.

The storm was strongest to the south of Sydney, and hailstones, some of which were an inch in diameter, fell in the vicinity of the George's River.

Some excitement was caused at the premises of Messrs. Marcus Clark and Co., Limited, and Messrs. Wood, Coffill, and Co., Limited, in George-street. When the storm was at its height the lightning struck and fused a wire outside the premises of the former company. The electric lights in both places were extinguished, and one of the lifts at Messrs. Marcus Clark's was temporarily put out of use. The fusing of the wire was accompanied by a deafening noise like the falling of glass.

MR. FISHER PUZZLED.

QUEENSLAND LOAN.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Some misunderstanding appears to have occurred over the renewal of the Commonwealth loan of £1,000,000 to the State of Queensland, which falls due on March 5. The Premier, Mr. Denham, is reported by telegram to have stated that no definite steps had been taken in connection with the renewal of the loan, as the State had plenty of money, and had no cause for worry on that account.

The Prime Minister (Mr. Fisher) said to-day that final arrangements had been made for the renewal of the loan, and he had that day initialled the final papers completing the transaction. He could not understand the Premier of Queensland making a statement such as he was reported to have made on the subject. The loan of £1,000,000 was divided up into £730,000 under Australian notes issue, and £270,000 out of general trust fund. The interest was fixed at 3½ per cent. under the old issue. The renewal is made at 4 per cent., and this will be the first Commonwealth loan to a State Government at so high a rate as 4 per cent.

IMMIGRANTS' HOME.

OPENING CEREMONY TO-DAY.

The receiving depot for immigrants and labour exchange established by the British Immigration League at Hereford-street, Glebe, will be formally opened at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. A. A. Dangar, who has evinced considerable interest in the movement, has consented to perform the ceremony.

CALENDARS ALL GONE.

There has been a great rush on our Calendars this year—they are better than those we have sent out before. We would suggest your telling your Grocer you want one before he gives what he has all away.

Now, may we tell you about the goodness of our Tea? We would like you to know that it is absolutely pure tea—practically the only difference between it now and when it was growing on the bush is that the leaves have been dried to make it keep good. In describing the flavour of "Robur" Tea we can only say that it has the flavour which pure tea ought to have; and, as regards its intrinsic value, we know of no tea that it will pay you better to use.

SCIENCE CONGRESS.

THE MEETING IN MELBOURNE.

IMPORTANT QUESTIONS.

The fourteenth biennial congress of the Australasian Association for the Advancement of Science begins in Melbourne on Tuesday next, and lasts for a week. On Tuesday afternoon there will be a reception at the University by his Excellency Sir John Fuller and the President-elect, Professor T. W. Edgeworth David, C.M.G., D.Sc., F.R.S. The inaugural meeting and presidential address are set down for 8.30 in Wilson Hall. Professor David's address will deal with "the Australian climate, past and present, with special reference to sub-Antarctic and Antarctic factors in its control." Professor Masson is the retiring president. Dr. T. S. Hall is to act as general secretary to the congress.

Most of the New South Wales delegates will leave for Melbourne to-morrow night, including Mr. J. H. Maiden, the permanent hon. general secretary, and with them will be Professor Dettmann, of New Zealand, who arrived in Sydney from Auckland yesterday. Other New Zealand representatives are proceeding direct from the Bluff to Melbourne.

SCIENCE IN THE BROAD SENSE.

The association exists for the advancement of science in its broadest sense. The meetings are by no means attended by scientific men and women exclusively, but also largely by people who may be classed as friends of science, interested more or less in scientific matters. Not the least important aspect of these congresses is the social aspect. Men and women gather from all parts of Australia and New Zealand, and visitors to Australia from various parts of the world are always in evidence, so that a unique opportunity is presented for the interchange of ideas. You may meet at one of these gatherings a man with whom you have been in correspondence, but whom you have never seen at all, or have not seen for many years.

The papers that are read before the congress and discussed are, of course, prepared weeks, and even months, ahead; and, apart from these valuable contributions to the cause of science, the presidents of the various sections may always be relied upon to give a masterly survey of their particular subject, specially tracing its development since the previous congress.

SPECIAL CONFERENCES.

Then there are the research committees, some of which are entrusted with sums of money to carry out the objects of the committee, and reports are furnished by them regarding their labours on the specific subjects allotted to them at the previous congress. Again, there are special conferences on specific subjects. For example, there will be on this occasion a conference, in which people from various States will take part, on the popularisation of Australian forestry. Then there is to be an important pharmaceutical conference, under the auspices of the chemical division of the congress. Matters of interstate moment which require Federal action will be discussed by delegates from all the States.

CINEMATOGRAPH AND THE BLACKS.

One of the most interesting features of the congress will be the cinematograph pictures illustrating Professor Baldwin Spencer's journeys in the Northern Territory and Melville Island. He has been Acting-Protector of the aborigines, and his work has been mainly the ascertaining of the social condition of the aborigines of the far north; but he has also succeeded in elucidating a number of points in regard to tribal customs.

Various public institutions and important commercial firms in Melbourne will give demonstrations in their establishments, exhibiting scientific progress in different directions, during the currency of the congress.

A FEDERAL BODY.

Since the formation of the association in 1888, much valuable work has been done. Representations are always made to the Governments, Federal and State, based on the reports of the committees, and every consideration has been given to the recommendations of the association. The general council of the association, is a truly Federal body, and it meets on three occasions during the progress of the congress. It is the mouthpiece of all the States in regard to scientific matters.

A SOLAR OBSERVATORY.

A further effort is to be made by the congress now about to meet to secure the establishment of a solar observatory in Australia. It has been urged by scientific men in all parts of the world that a solar observatory in Australia is necessary as the link to complete the chain of such observatories extending round the world. Miss Proctor, the visiting astronomer, is going specially to Melbourne to take part in the discussion.

BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

Owing to the fact that the British Association for the Advancement of Science meets in Australia in August and September next year, it is likely that the next Australasian Congress will be postponed till 1916. It will in all probability be held in Hobart in January of that year.

INDUSTRIAL PROSECUTIONS.

WEST MAITLAND, Friday.

The Industrial Court sat at the courthouse to-day to hear cases of alleged breach of awards, Mr. Charles Hibble, industrial magistrate, presiding. James Dilley was charged with having failed to pay a horse driver the minimum wage under the Trolley, Draymen, and Carters' Country Board Award. Defendant was fined 15s, with 16s costs. The same defendant, for failing to keep time and wages sheets with respect to another employee, was fined 5s, with 6s costs. David Ley, charged with having committed a breach of the Shop Assistants' Metropolitan Drapers' Award by failing to keep pay-sheets, was fined 5s, with 16s costs. George Galton, Ltd., was charged with a breach of the Shop Assistants' Country Award by having employed G. C. Moore from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday, June 8, without paying overtime rates. King's Birthday, it appeared from the evidence, fell on the same week, and was observed as a holiday by the company, which also kept open on the following Saturday afternoon. Mr. J. H. F. Waller appeared for the company, and asked for an adjournment of the case, which was granted.

THE THIRD PARTY.

MR. WADDELL'S POSITION.

CARCOAR, Friday.

During the campaign in the Blayney electorate, which adjoins Belubula, represented by Mr. Waddell, it was stated that Mr. Waddell had third party sympathies. The secretary of the Carcoar Liberal League wrote to him, and mentioned the rumours that were current. Mr. Waddell has replied that he has not changed his position one bit, and in response to the request from the Carcoar Liberal League, he has arranged to deliver a political address at Carcoar on the 9th inst.

Mr. Waddell says he intends to take as practical and commonsense a grip of public questions affecting people as he can, and to as forcibly as possible, point out the ruinous effects of the Labour policy on the country. He will also explain what he thinks should be the leading features of the policy of the Government of the State. In addition to this, he will deal with the question of the third party. He states that he will be able to put matters in a much clearer light than would appear in the turmoil of the criticism now going on.

INTERSTATE BOWLS.

RINK CHAMPIONSHIP.

WON BY NEW SOUTH WALES.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

There was a large attendance at the Carlton green to-day to witness the final games in the rink championship of Australia, and the spectators were rewarded by seeing some of the finest games witnessed for a long time past. The event was won by the rink captained by H. Moses, of New South Wales.

Interest, of course, centred in the final game, and after H. Moses and T. A. Williams had defeated, respectively, E. M. Pascoe and J. S. M'Donald in the semi-finals, the merits of the opposing teams were freely discussed by representative bowlers present; but the Ballarat contingent was practically unknown to most of the metropolitan players.

It was recognised that Messrs. Morgan, Tredwell, and Sayers, with T. A. Williams as skipper, were worthy of upholding the honour of the State, and that they would put up a good defence against their formidable opponents. The supporters of the New South Wales rink were fairly confident of victory; but fully recognised that Moses's men would have to be at their best to win. Considering the team consisted of the winners of three single-handed championships of New South Wales, in H. Moses, W. Arnott, and J. A. Chapman, with such a brilliant third player as J. Yeo, there was every reason for their confidence, but when the Ballarat players established a lead of 13 to 7 at the 13th end, they were not on such good terms with themselves. From this out, however, Moses and his team fully justified the estimation in which they were held, and won by 10 points.

The game was umpired by Mr. S. Nathan, president of the Australian Bowling Council; but on only one occasion were his services required. The star performer of the two rinks was undoubtedly J. Yeo, playing third for Moses, and his drawing and forcing shots were at times perfection, his length was admirable all through, and he was the main feature of the success of the rink. Moses is a most reliable and resourceful captain, and he certainly got a lot of good work out of his team by his encouragement and ideal directions. He played a fine game himself, and at a critical stage of the game scored a point when Williams was lying five. He did not have to drive so much as usual, but drew some beautiful shots, while his "guarding" was very effective. At times, in the early stages, Arnott did not lead up to his usual form; but after the game was half-way through he was up to his proper form, which is a very high standard. J. A. Chapman was decidedly useful, and made one very fine drive when the position was all against his side, the result being a "dead end."

T. A. Williams, the Ballarat champion, had a lot of work to do, and in the main did it well. Taken all round he was not so well supported as Moses, and there was generally a lot of short timber in his way, sometimes both hands being blocked. In the early part of the game Morgan held his own with Arnott, but from this out was not nearly so good. Tredwell drew some excellent shots at times, but had a tendency to be short, and Sayers played some fine bowls with a good deal of bad luck.

THE SEMI-FINALS.

H. Moses (N.S.W.) met E. M. Pascoe (Melbourne), and the game was very even up to the fifteenth end, when Moses was a single to the good. Moses then drew away, and won by six points. The winning rink played the better game most of the time.

T. A. Williams (Ballarat) was opposed by J. S. M'Donald (Armadale), and the latter led up to the fifteenth head, being 13 to 9; but in the concluding stage Williams held the advantage and won by a couple of points.

THE FINAL GAME.

After a brief respite the New South Wales and Ballarat rinks came out to play for the honours. The banks were crowded with spectators, and throughout the contest every good shot on either side was impartially applauded. Out of the first end Moses scored a single by good play, but in the second, after some good leading by Arnott, Sayers altered the position in Ballarat's favour, and a couple going down to Williams in the third end. Morgan, leading for Williams, drew right on the jack, followed with another good one from Sayers; but Yeo disturbed the position with a fine drive, leaving Williams two. Moses, however, came to the rescue, and drew a couple of shots in the next head, and after some exchanges Moses drew the shot, but Williams was equal to the occasion, and wound up by scoring a couple.

Moses then added a couple of singles in the next head; Yeo drew a fine shot, but Sayers shifted the jack, leaving Williams lying a couple, the latter adding another, and Williams was then 7 to 5. In the next end Moses drew the "absolute," and Williams then added a single. Moses scored a point in the next end, and then Chapman made a "dead end" for Moses with an excellent shot. Two more to Williams, followed by a couple and a single, the outcome of good play. Moses then got possession, and after Yeo had taken a fine shot of Morgan's right off the jack, Moses drew another, and by the aid of two more in the next head, mainly through the agency of Chapman and Moses, the score now stood: Williams 13, Moses 11.

Yeo was principally instrumental in making the scores 13 all at the next end, which Moses followed up by scoring another trio, then Williams played a beautiful but unlucky shot, touching the ball he intended, but just a trifle too hard, and that left Moses lying three, instead of getting the shot himself. Moses 19, Williams 13.

Williams scored a single in the next head by a fine effort, picking the shot bowl almost off the "kitty." The rest of the game was generally in favour of Moses, who, despite some excellent play on the part of Williams' rink, added 1, 2, 1, 1, 2, and with Williams netting a couple in the last end, Moses won by 26 points to 16.

Cheers were called for both winners and losers by Mr. S. Nathan, and these were heartily given. In the play-off for the third and fourth prizes, H. H. Pascoe captained the Melbourne rink instead of his brother, E. M. Pascoe, in their game against J. S. M'Donald (Armadale). Melbourne led from end to end, and finally won by 27 points to 15.

Following are the scores:—

Semi-final Games.

Morgan, Fredwell, Williams (Ballarat), 18, beat Cox, Sutton, Stephens, M'Donald (Armadale), 16.

WEST TO EAST.

BOY TOURISTS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

A contingent of 132 lads, chiefly from the goldfields and farming districts of Western Australia, under the command of Mr. J. J. Simons, arrived in Melbourne to-day on a month's visit to the Eastern States. They marched through the city to the Federal Parliament, where they inspected the building and grounds. Later luncheon was provided for the boys by the Australian Natives Association. They left for Sydney this evening, and after a tour of New South Wales will return in a fortnight's time for a stay of upwards of a week in Victoria, before leaving for Western Australia towards the end of January.

BLASTING ACCIDENT.

The first mining fatality of the year occurred yesterday on the North mine, the victim being David Nicholson, 32, miner, a native of Daylesford, Victoria. The afternoon shift working in the winze at the 1100ft level had set 11 holes, and just before midnight 10 holes went off. Nicholson and his mate, Huxtable, took up work shortly after midnight. About 2.15 o'clock Nicholson must have bored into the eleventh hole, which exploded, and the full force struck him in the stomach, inflicting frightful wounds, and causing instantaneous death. Huxtable had gone to the top of the winze for a moment, and so was saved. Deceased was unmarried.

CUSTOMS INCREASE.

FEDERAL ESTIMATES EXCEEDED.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Customs and Postal revenue statement for the first half of the financial year was made available to-day by the Federal Treasurer. The increases largely exceed the estimates, the advance for the six months in the Customs and Excise Department being £939,031, and in the Post and Telegraph Department £180,668—a grand total of £1,117,699. The Prime Minister estimated a decrease in the Customs returns for the year of £199,199, and an increase in the Postal Department for the year of £285,401.

The following are the returns for the month just closed, and the six months' figures for the Customs and excise.

INTERCHANGE OF OFFICERS.

LONDON, Jan. 2.

Colonel Seely, Secretary of State for War, speaking in the House of Commons this afternoon in reply to Sir Gilbert Parker, enumerated the various Imperial Army officers who were serving in the oversea Dominions.

He said that the Government was doing its utmost to extend the interchange of officers.

Our Melbourne correspondent telegraphed last night: "The Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) stated to-day that it was very gratifying to hear that the Imperial Government was doing its utmost to extend the interchange of officers with the dominions. Undoubtedly the Imperial officers who are in the Commonwealth," he went on to say, "have been doing very useful work. It has been very fully recognised by the Militia Officers' Conference that the system of exchange of officers should be extended both for the purpose of enabling Australian officers to go to England to get training with the permanent troops, and also to afford the British Army officers the opportunity of coming to Australia to get training and military education. The conference furthermore passed another resolution asking that five additional British Army officers should be obtained. In these circumstances it is very gratifying to find that the Secretary of State for War is willing to assist us in that direction. At the present time one branch of the service (engineering) is desperately in need of officers. We cannot turn out engineer officers in a year, we have to put them through the military college and give them military training. We must do something to put our engineering service on a popular basis, and the Militia officers recognised that when they passed the resolution to which I have referred."

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

The immense low pressure which was noted yesterday as being over the central part of Australia, has moved very rapidly eastward, and is now centrally situated to the south-east of Tasmania.

This disturbance has resulted in fairly good general rain, but of a scattered nature, over New South Wales.

At 9 this morning it covered the whole of our State, the greater part of Victoria, and the whole of Tasmania. To the rear of the disturbance is a fairly energetic high pressure which should result in cool weather for two days.

BOYS' BRIGADE.

During the Christmas holidays, through the instrumentality of Mrs. Consett Stephen, a number of young gentlemen, including Kenneth Marks, Alastir Stephen, Douglas Campbell, Tim Bennet, Lynd Nathan, and Leslie Stephen, entertained the members of the Boys' Brigade at the brigade's building at Surry Hills. An enjoyable time was spent, and the behaviour of the boys excellent. At the conclusion of the ceremony Mrs. Herbert Marks presented each of the 125 boys present with a newly-coined shilling. A large number of friends were present.

INDIGNANT CLERKS.

FREMANTLE, Friday.

At Perth recently the Arbitration Court awarded the temporary clerks in the Government employ a minimum wage of 12s 6d per day, the previous rate being 10s. The Public Service Commissioner yesterday advertised for applications to permanent Public Service clerkships, stating that there was a scarcity of suitable applicants on the temporary staff. The salaries offered range from £144 to £180. The Clerks' Union intends holding an indignation meeting and appealing to the Premier against the Commissioner's action, and characterises his statement as a libel on the temporary clerks.

"NOT CONSCRIPTION."

MR. FISHER ON DEFENCE SCHEME.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Victorian council of the Australian Freedom League recently wrote to the Prime Minister urging the necessity of abolishing the compulsory clauses of the Commonwealth Defence Acts. The league contended that conscription was opposed to civil liberty.

The Prime Minister, who replied through his secretary, pointed out that to call the universal military training scheme "conscription" was a misuse of language. Under the Australian scheme the citizens retained their full rights of citizenship, but under conscription the members of the forces ceased to be citizens, and became permanent soldiers. The statement that under the Defence Act power was given to the Military Board to control education under the junior cadet regulations showed either gross ignorance of the relationship between the Education Department and the junior cadet system, or else a wilful misrepresentation of facts. Furthermore, there was nothing in the Defence Act to prevent or in any way interfere with public discussion on the conditions under which civilians serve.

CAMPER'S ACCIDENT.

NEW YEAR'S EVE PRANKS.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

A young man, Stephen Yates, who was camped at Stuart Park during the holidays with members of the Y.M.C.A., sustained a very serious injury through stepping on a broken bottle. The tendons of the foot were severed, and the cut extended to the bone. He was removed to Dr. J. Kerrs' surgery, and from there to the local hospital.

On New Year's Eve a band of young men caused considerable damage to property at Port Kembla. Not being satisfied with removing gates, they turned their attention to the overturning of outhouses, thereby doing considerable damage. No less than 14 structures were overturned, and in some instances the contents scattered about the ground. A large quantity of paint in a house being erected for Alderman H. R. Lee, was taken out of the building and wilfully emptied out of the tins.

DEFENCE ORGANISATION.

ENGINEERING SERVICE.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

It was announced by the Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) to-day, that the Chief of Ordnance (Colonel Wallace) was now investigating the organisation of the engineering services of the Defence Department throughout the Commonwealth. His object would be to bring this branch more completely into line with the new defence policy of the Commonwealth. This would involve the adoption of a policy of decentralisation.

It was hoped that the new organisation would enable engineering work to be carried out more expeditiously than was the case at present. A feature of the new arrangements would be the establishment of an engineering office for each brigade area. The chief difficulty which was anticipated was the shortage of officers, but every effort would be made to overcome this obstacle.

END OF DRINKING BOUT.

GOULBURN, Friday.

John Michael Eggleston, alias Donnelly, was arrested on a charge of drunkenness, and on a constable visiting the cell shortly afterwards Eggleston was found with his throat wounded. The handle of a drinking mug had been wrenched off. He was removed to the hospital, and is progressing favourably.

MAN'S THROAT CUT.

Constable Badnock, of the George-street North Police Station, was on duty early yesterday morning in the Dawes Point Reserve, Miller's Point, when he found Charles Henry Wilson, 22, lying on the grass with his throat cut, and in a very weak condition from loss of blood.

Wilson informed the constable that his throat had been cut since January 1. He said that he had remained in his room for two days, and then went out at night into the reserve. The wound in his throat had been inflicted with a razor. Constable Badnock took Wilson to the Sydney Hospital, where the wound was attended to. Wilson is a recent arrival from England.

Later in the day Wilson was before the Water Police Court, charged with attempting to cut his throat. He was remanded for a week for medical attention.

THE STATE AND INDUSTRY.

THE RATIONALE OF STATE OWNERSHIP

ITS PROVINCE AND LIMITATIONS.

The advisableness of the extension of State ownership of industries has been much in the public eye of late. Its advocates are many. Some genuinely believe that there are not a few functions that are better suited to the State than to the individual. Others more fully realise that State-ownership is what an American recently described as the "false whiskers of Socialism." The fact of the Sugar Commission pronouncing so emphatically not only against straight-out nationalisation, but also against State competition, dealt a heavy blow to the advocates of the indefinite extension of the functions of the State. At the same time these same advocates have made considerable progress of late. In our own State, have we not now State brickworks, State quarries, a State hotel, an embryo State coal mine, with a proposal for a State meat market? In Victoria they have a State coal mine, which has proved rather a fiasco, while the State coal mines in New Zealand have turned out far from a success, when regarded through clear business spectacles. Nor can we look upon the New Zealand Life Assurance office as a good advertisement for State management, for the results shown do not compare at all favourably with those of its greatest competitor run by private enterprise. The State fire office in the Dominion has so far proved a qualified success, but it has yet to stand the test of a big conflagration. In South Australia they have a State butter factory, not merely an experimental establishment for educational uses, but a concern that competes with other factories in the open market. This factory recently imported butter from the other States, had it repacked and branded with the Government brand. This action has received Ministerial endorsement. The Government of South Australia has gone even further. Some little time ago the Moorak Estate at Mt. Gambier was purchased, and included a considerable area of forest country, the timber being suitable for the manufacture of fruit cases. The Government did not sell this timber as it stood, but erected a sawmilling plant, and one department of the State gave the timber to the other department of the State that ran the sawmilling venture at a much lower price than private sawmillers would have paid, and so enabled it to appear to make a substantial profit. The Government department which paid no rates or taxes competed against the private mills on these advantageous terms. In Queensland there are quite a number of State sugar mills, and more are proposed to be erected. The Commonwealth has its clothing factory, its cordite and small-arms factories and a Federal deep-sea fleet has been suggested to compete against the so-called shipping ring.

It is interesting to consider whether there are any principles that can be laid down in connection with State ownership, or whether every demand for a further extension of the activities of the State should be considered on its merits as it arises. There is no doubt that in some connections interference by the State is quite justifiable. Although our railways may not be all that we might desire them to be there are probably but few who would advocate allowing them to be taken over by private enterprise. The assumption of the control of the harbour frontages by the Harbour Trust has probably been in the public interest, though the mercantile community would like to see greater haste displayed in providing more adequate wharfage accommodation. As to whether the State brick kilns will justify themselves only time can show, for they have not yet been established long enough to give us any definite results. What we can clearly see, however, is that the State enterprises naturally fall into two classes.

(1) Those in which the State has established a monopoly—for instance, the railway and tramway systems, wharfage accommodation, water and sewerage, etc., and

(2) Those in which there is no monopoly, e.g., the manufacture of bricks, the winning of coal, the making of butter, the selling of intoxicating liquors, or the provision of life or fire insurance.

In such cases as those in which the Government has a natural or a statute monopoly it is very difficult to say whether the services are as effectively carried out as private enterprise would carry them out. Of course we know that the State is a lax employer. It has not that keenness which is born of pocket interest, and which is one of the main characteristics of private enterprise. From the employees' point of view this may be an advantage, for the State scarcely looks upon old age or inefficiency, brought on perhaps through ill-health, with the same seriousness as the private employer must do under the lash of competitive strife. Nor does the State exhibit that keenness in getting the most suitable men for the particular task in hand. This much we know. But who can say whether our railways would be better or less efficiently run were private enterprise at the helm? We know that private enterprise would need to be paid for its services; i.e., it would have to get some profit, something in excess of the mere interest on the capital invested. All we can now say definitely is that the New South Wales State railways pay the full interest on their capital debt, and have a substantial surplus over. Last year this surplus was £566,373 from the railways and tramways. But is this a real or an illusory surplus? If private enterprise could carry passengers at a lower rate, and demand lower charges for the carriage of goods, then the surplus may be largely or absolutely fictitious. As the railways have a monopoly, they are enabled virtually to place a tax on the community whenever they like. Five per cent. increase all round in rates would mean an enormous sum, which could be used up in inefficient management or carried to a surplus. As far as the other class of industries is concerned, we shall, provided proper books are kept, soon be able to guess shrewdly if we cannot definitely say how they are faring. If the State can make bricks of good quality after paying fair wages to its employees, full interest on the capital expended, while making a due allowance for depreciation on plant, and can still sell its product at a lower rate than they can be purchased on the open market, then the industry is justified, not otherwise. The fact that the State is the only customer at present for the State bricks should not be allowed to obscure the issue. In a paper recently read before a manufacturers' association in the United States it was pointed out that experience taught us that the State should have some say in the discipline of its industry, but the precise problem is to determine what should be the extent, degree, and character of that discipline.

Three forms present themselves for observation and comment—Regulation, Intervention, and ownership. Regulation by the State implies continuous action and constant supervision. To have regulation we must have regulators, and at this exact point serious doubts and misty dangers arise. For how about regulating the regulators? Intervention by the State is still another proposition. It is scoffed at by the socialists, but welcomed by the individualists. The meaning of intervention is that upon proper occasion and under proper procedure the State should interfere in industrial matters. Intervention takes place at irregular intervals under the direction of the judicial and at times the executive powers of Government. Then there is the third form or system of State attitude towards its industry, which we call State ownership. We need not dwell long on this proposition. It is that "socialism with false whiskers" referred to above.

It is true that we have long left behind us that era of one-man control in industry. All programmes are now executed through collective group systems, in which the individual is of necessity subordinated. But even if our industrial society is complex, even if a certain participation in industry by the State is necessary, there is no reason why it should be made unnecessarily complex. Evolution has not ceased to play its part.

And Reversion ever dragging Evolution in the mud.

The arguments that can be used against Government undertakings in general equally apply to such as cordite or small arms factories. Here, however, other considerations have to be taken into account. Though private enterprise could probably make cordite and small arms more cheaply than the Commonwealth can, public policy demands that in matters so vital to our defence the Government should have supreme control, even at any sacrifice that may be entailed in the direction of mere cheapness.

Each man pays a price
For what himself counts precious, whether true
Or false the appreciation it implies.

Even where a monopoly has grown up under the law it may be that, in certain circumstances, as where the monopoly operates to the public disadvantage, the State should step in, but here the onus of proof as to the advisableness of State action undoubtedly rests upon those who propose it. All Governments are dependent upon taxation, so, as a general rule, it is not equitable that the taxpayers should be hindered through State competition, which is often unfairly waged, from making the wherewithal to meet the taxes.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

CORNSACKS STILL ADVANCING.

Business will commence in earnest on Monday. All the travellers leave for the country on Sunday night with their revised price lists. So far there have been few changes in important lines. In groceries only jams and canned fruits and some lines of jellies have advanced. Metals are unchanged, though bar iron is firmer. Orders, too, have begun to come in for wires and wire-nettings. In oils there has been easiness in linseed, and with cheaper oil coming forward from London the tendency is downward. Chemicals are quieter. Tea is firm and steady, but the business done this week has been of the smallest.

The jute market was excited yesterday about cornsacks. Not sufficient could be procured to fulfil orders. In the morning there were a few sales at 7/6, but before noon 7/9 was asked and taken, and this price ruled during the afternoon. One holder sold at 8/, and declared his intention if the rush continued to accept not a penny less than 8/3 on Monday. Stocks available for sale in the market were under 300 bales at the close of the day, when the two principal holders had between them only 90 bales which they were prepared to sell. The Gracchus, which is expected to-day, will bring little relief, as her shipment for Sydney is small—175 bales—and it is understood they are held by one house to supply sales already made to the country. The market closed strong, with nothing offering under 7/9. The Janus will be here on January 15 or 16, and quotations of sacks from her are 7/ net cash on rails, equal to 7/2½ usual terms. Branbags were rather weaker, without quotable change; for spot lots, 6/4 for small quantities, 6/3 for five-bale lines. Sussex-street was offering November shipment at 6/11 ship's slings, equal to 6/2½ delivered, and it was understood that these offerings were on behalf of Melbourne sellers.

IRON TRADE COMBINE.

In Great Britain combines of manufacturers in the iron and steel trades have proved notoriously unstable, but one now in operation promises to be the most important yet formed. This combine (writes a correspondent of the "Financial Times") includes the great bulk of the manufacturers of what are known in the trade as light castings, consisting of grates, stoves, ranges, gates, railings, and suchlike goods. The aggregate capital interested in this branch of the trade is very large, and the annual value of the products enormous. The new body is known as the National Light Castings Association. It has been in existence for some time, but is now seeking to perfect, by organising and regulating the distributing trade, the organisation which it was formed to inaugurate. Distributers have been divided into four classifications, each entitled to different terms, and they are being invited to sign an agreement binding themselves to maintain certain minimum prices. Failing the acceptance of the agreement or its sedulous observance, their supplies of the goods in question are liable to be cut off. In some quarters it is reported there is a natural hesitation among distributers to sign the agreement in view of rumours to the effect that independent capital to a substantial amount is about to seek remunerative employment in the industry. Certainly those new developments would appear to ensure a wider margin of profit than his hitherto been available.

STEELWORKERS TOO FEW.

The finished steel departments of Sheffield industry have for a long time been severely handicapped by an insufficiency of rolling plant, and are crying out for additional mills. Steel-rolling plant is, however, costly, and cannot be provided under nine or twelve months, and capitalists are deterred from investing large sums in such an enterprise from lack of confidence in the continuance of the boom until the new works could be completed. The other difficulties relate to workmen, high prices of raw materials, and increased costs of production owing to a variety of causes. These difficulties (according to the "British Trade Review") combine to make it impossible for manufacturers to deal promptly with orders and to satisfy customers' wants. Delays in the earlier stages of manufacture go right through to the ultimate purchasers, and there is inconvenience and dissatisfaction practically everywhere. There can be little further expansion of trade here because the supply of workmen is used up unless, of course, more labour-saving machinery can be introduced. That, however, if attempted would occupy considerable time. Moreover, the Sheffield processes depend more for their success upon the human element than is perhaps the case in any other centre of the metal industry. Hundreds of capable men could find employment here if they could be obtained. A small number of emigrants are being tempted back from Canada and Australia by the abundance of employment and the possibility of obtaining good remuneration in Sheffield.

"MERCERISED" SILK.

The old misdescription "mercerised" silk now and again crops up, and the latest was in the Marylebone Police Court, London, when Henry Dobb, Ltd., of Westbourne Grove, London, was charged by the Board of Trade with applying a false description and exposing and selling goods with a false trade description. The summonses were taken out at the instance of the Silk Association of Great Britain and Ireland. It was stated that in June last the defendant company issued a catalogue of various things in connection with its summer sale. In that catalogue it had a drawing of what it called a golf coat of wool, advertised at 18/11, and next to it was displayed a similar coat of "mercerised silk," the sale price of which was 16/11. A lady who went to inquire for one of these latter coats was told on two occasions that they were sold out. On a third occasion she again asked for a silk mercerised coat, as advertised, and was supplied with one. At her request the coat was described as "mercerised silk" on the invoice. She subsequently sent the coat to Mr. Warner, the president of the Silk Association, and it was found to be made entirely of cotton. The prosecution had been instituted to put a stop to any large and growing practice of describing cotton goods as silk. The defendant company pleaded guilty, and on its behalf it was stated that the lady who had the sole authority to make out the sale catalogue had simply given to the goods the description which she had been acquainted with for a long time. There was no such thing as "mercerised" silk. "Mercerised" meant silk, and to talk of "mercerised" silk was similar to talking of gilt gold. Nobody could be deceived in the matter. It was intended that the description should be mercerised cotton. The firm took the entire responsibility, and would not visit on the assistants the penalty which the magistrate might impose. The magistrate declared that a more glaring example of an absolutely untrue trade description it would be difficult to conceive. The false description would be likely to lead to its sale; otherwise the article would not be advertised with that description. He could see no ground for imposing anything but a very substantial penalty. The defendants would be fined £20 on each of the two summonses. The magistrate ordered the payment of 3 guineas costs.

We have received copies of Christmas issues of the "Australian Leather Journal," and of the "Australian Brewers' Journal."

BREADSTUFFS.

LITTLE WHEAT OFFERING.

The stagnation in the wheat market continued yesterday. Little was obtained from the farmers, and the temptation to operators to do some speculative selling forward was found by some to be irresistible. Farmers were either stacking the bulk of their wheat on their farms or were putting into store with shippers waiting for better prices. Shippers varied from 3/6 to 3/6½ ex trucks Sydney, equal to 3/1½ to 3/2 on trucks at country stations. For wheat on spot buyers of parcels would give 3/6½, and for spread delivery January-February-March, 3/6¾. Private cables stated that there was no quotable change in overseas values, and our own cables indicate an easier tendency on free offers from Argentina. Steamer freights are 3d dearer, at 42/9 per ton, but sailers are 1/9 easier at 33/3, or 5/3 below the highest rate of a few weeks ago.

Flour was quiet yesterday, and the desire on the part of the bakers to make contracts at the association price of £8/15/ had fallen off. A little business was done in flour for export, not equal to finest bakers', at £7/15/ per ton in fifties.

WORLD'S WHEAT CONDITIONS.

Mr. George Broomhall, F.S.S., the Liverpool grain trade authority, in estimating the future of the international wheat market, predicted that about the middle of December the shipments from North America would fall from 900,000 to 500,000 quarters a week. This prediction has been fulfilled. Further, he stated that this latter rate would continue until navigation re-opened in the spring. As regarded South Russia and Roumania importing countries must look for a reduction in the weekly shipments from those quarters, and he thinks that the quantities will average nearer 400,000 quarters per week than 600,000 quarters per week. From India the indications are that shipments are going to fall off to a level of about 40,000 to 50,000 quarters per week; and naturally one cannot expect much from the Southern Hemisphere until the new crops come on the scene, which will not be very far distant as regards shipments, but importers will have to wait several months before there are free arrivals on importing markets; therefore, on the whole, it does not appear as if Europe would have excessive supplies during the next three months, especially as port stocks are certainly on the moderate side, and the floating supply, although liberal, is not overwhelming. On the other hand, one must not forget that there are large supplies of native wheat in Europe still untouched, and it will not be long before a portion at least of these retarded supplies come upon the market; consequently the demand may now become less active for foreign wheat, but the quality and condition of the native wheat are so poor that a very considerable admixture of foreign wheat will be necessary all the time, but one can hardly look to see the enormous demand for foreign wheat of the past three months fully maintained all the season. It is certainly a fact that there are good quantities of wheat about, and we may be sure that these supplies will continue to influence the market, and keep any upward movement in check; and, further, it seems likely that we may continue to have other depressing influences in the shape of good crop reports from the Southern Hemisphere. On the other hand, there is still war in Europe, and, above all, the fate of Constantinople is not yet settled, so that developments must still be regarded as very uncertain, and the possibility of further war scares should certainly not be overlooked.

LONDON WHEAT QUOTATIONS.

Mr. Tom Brown, M.P., has received an official letter, setting out that the arrangements made by the Commonwealth Government to furnish daily quotations of Australian wheat in the home markets is as follow:—

Dear Sir,—Adverting to the question asked by you in the House of Representatives on the 1st November, 1911, regarding the cabling of prices realised for Australian wheat in British markets, I am directed to inform you that the Minister has, in compliance with his reply to your second question, since been endeavouring to make arrangements for the furnishing, if possible, of an authentic daily record of Australian wheat quotations.

So far, the negotiations have resulted in arrangements being made under which Mr. George S. Broomhall, of Liverpool and London, who is the editor of the "Corn Trade News," and an independent and reliable authority, is to furnish the High Commissioner's Office with the following information:—

(a) A daily quotation for wheat, prompt shipment for each State of Australia, and a similar quotation for forward shipment. These prices to be cost, freight, and insurance for whole cargoes.

(b) Daily prices graded red wheat in Liverpool ("futures"), one price being for wheat on the spot, and the other for forward delivery. These prices to be the closing price of the day, and the tone of the market to be also given.

This information, as soon as it is received from Mr. Broomhall, will be placed at the disposal of the Australian Press Association, who have agreed to cable it as part of their ordinary news service.

From the compiler we have received Broomhall's Grain Merchants' Ready Reckoner.

EXPORT TRADE.

AUSTRALIAN RABBITSKINS.

At the last periodical sales of rabbitskins held in London the catalogues were exceptionally large. Sydney produce was well represented, while a comparatively small collection was available from Tasmania and New Zealand. There was a full attendance of buyers, and an active demand was encountered. All cutting skins were 2d per lb dearer than in October. Thin pulted does suitable for dressing ranged from late rates to 1/ per lb advance.

Hareskins were also well competed for, and in some cases were 50 per cent. higher than at the previous sale.

Of 3228 bales offered, 3051 bales were sold. The prices realised for the Australian consignments were:—

Well furred	3/ to 5/10
Fairly to well furred	1/9 to 2/9
Fairly furred	1/3 to 1/8
Low in fur	/7½ to 1/4
Suckers, small and wormy	/10 to 1/1
Hares	6/6 to 16/6 per dozen.

PRODUCE.

EGGS STILL DEPRESSED. CHEAP POTATOES.

The depression in the egg market continues. Arrivals from the Northern Rivers and South Coast were phenomenally heavy for the last real business day of the week, and the best endeavours of agents failed hopelessly to keep stocks from accumulating. Case varieties were offering freely at 1/, and new-laid suburban at 1/1, with a few extra choice lots at 1/2 per dozen.

Cheese was practically unsalable. Prime loaf was freely offering at from /6¾ to /7, but buyers appeared totally disinterested. It is anticipated, however, that next week will witness a change for the better.

Stocks of bacon were light, and quotations were well maintained. Butter was unaltered at 104/ per cwt. Poultry was dull.

The Clarence River boat landed a shipment of 2500 bags of potatoes. There was a steady inquiry, but holders were content to accept £6 per ton for the best samples. Victorian tubers were available at from £5 to £7 per ton. Supplies of Tasmanian were in firm hands at previous levels.

Maize was in good demand. Flat African was moving out freely at 4/6 to 4/7 per bushel. Northern river grain was nominally quoted at 4/6.

Only six truckloads of firewood were submitted at auction. Competition was moderately active, and best box realised to 17/6 per ton.

AFRICAN BACON IN LONDON.

East African bacon has made its appearance in London, and has aroused considerable interest in the trade. It is said that able men are backing the enterprise. Pedigree stock has been shipped to East Africa at considerable expense and disposed of to the farmers at nominal prices in order to encourage them to pay special attention to the branding of the hogs to be turned into bacon. Native labour is cheap, and feeding material can be produced at very low cost. The curing is in the hands of capable men from the West of England, and the selection and butchering of the meat leaves little to be desired. Owing to the facilities for transport, the bacon is arriving in London in excellent condition, each piece of bacon being wrapped in thin calico, and made up in bales of three to four sides.

RAILWAY MARKET

BIG SUPPLY MAINTAINED.

Railway yarders—or, at least, officials—sighed with relief at the refreshing sight of a one sheet manifest on the board. Arrivals have been exceedingly heavy of late—involving much labour, and, although no sustained decrease of supplies is expected just yet, respite of one day even is welcomed.

The century was put up again yesterday, when 116 trucks were lined in position. Buyers attended in force, and a spirited sale resulted.

Wheaten chaff seemed to chop about considerably. Each auctioneer expressed a different opinion, according to his specific realisations. Some quoted it at a slight advance, and others at a proportionate decrease. However, no alteration worth bothering about was experienced. Oaten chaff went down a peg or two, a fall of /3 covers its alteration. Variation on lucerne chaff is uncommentable. Lucerne hay was going off well at a slightly higher figure. Wheat was relinquished up to around 3/7½.

Wheaten chaff touched even money at 6/ for top value, under the hammer. There was not the quality in the offering as in that lined up on Thursday. Steady business was effected. Oaten chaff went off up to 5/11, on a part truck included under wheaten chaff appended. Lucerne dust changed hands at 7/, and chaff at 6/5 and 6/6. Although some of the lucerne hay was not put up at auction, of that which was, 5/7 bid for green in large bales, headed the market for sales. Potatoes were relinquished up to 8/.

MINING.

STOCK EXCHANGE RESUMES ON MONDAY.

The Sydney Stock Exchange will resume operations on Monday morning, after adjourning over the Christmas and New Year holidays, and the impression prevails generally that after the market gets into its regular stride business will be on sound, if not buoyant, lines.

This view is largely based on the strength shown by the London Stock Exchange during the Christmas and New Year recess. When the Sydney Stock Exchange adjourned on Saturday, December 21, the price of copper stood at £74/4/6. In London on Thursday it was £76/15/. It is quite true lead has eased 3/9 to £17/18/9 per ton, but both spelter and silver hold firm positions, whilst the middle quotations of the London Stock Exchange for Barriers and Australian copper stocks indicate considerable soundness.

This latter statement will be seen by the fact that buying quotations on the strong side were made for Hampdens at 51/3, Mount Elliotts at £8/1/3, Great Cobars at 90/, and Mount Morgans at 64/4½, whilst the following quotations indicate firmness:—Broken Hill Proprietary, 44/9; Broken Hill Block 10, 38/9; British Broken Hill (old), 50/9; Zinc Corporation (ord.), 16/6; Zinc Corporation (pref.), 41/; Sulphide Corporation (ord.), 31/9; Mount Lyells, 24/9; Amalgamated Zinc, 35/9; and Sulphide Corporation (pref.), 43/3.

MINING NOTES.

Information to hand from a prominent Australian engineer, who had just completed a tour of the Malayan Peninsula, during which he visited the leading tin-producing districts, as well as others in course of exploration, is to the effect that the Malayan States offer great facilities for the investment of Australian capital in tin-mining ventures. The engineer, after full inquiries in London regarding the prospect of tin, is confident the metal will not only maintain its present price of close on £230, but is satisfied it will even see a higher figure.

According to the latest report to hand, dated December 21, from the general manager of the Mount Oxide copper mine, Mr. Gerard Williams, the ore on hand amounts to 120 tons of "firsts," assaying 43 per cent., 3800 tons of "seconds" assaying 17 per cent., and 63 tons of bagged ore assaying 45 per cent. Copper at £75 per ton is worth 15/ per unit, hence the copper contents of the ore at grass at Mount Oxide is worth £54,446.

In the report referred to above, Mr. Williams shows that, after the New Year holidays, work of an important character will be started, as he has managed to get additional miners from Charters Towers. Operations for the week ended December 21 showed that in cutting a big plat at No. 3 winze the glance ore was not broken down, whilst 72 tons of "seconds" assaying 18 per cent. were won. If the "seconds" assay 18 per cent., the glance ore will probably be over 40 per cent., and where it was left standing it is 5ft 3in wide. The good character of the ore in the 152ft level north remains unchanged in quality and width—namely, 32 per cent. over 5ft 6in. Some 50 tons of 18 per cent. ore trucked from the main shaft ore shoot. The north shaft is progressing well, the week's footage—12ft—taking it to 96ft 6in.

For the week ending December 27, the mill of the Harden gold mine ran 32 hours, crushing 55 tons of ore. There were cyanided 60 tons of sands, of an assay value of 10/10 per ton. The electric pump has been raised to the surface.

During the week ended December 20 the output of the Hercules mine (Tas.) was 50 tons of sulphide ore, 20 tons of loose zinc ore, and 107 tons of bagged zinc ore.

The Broken Hill Proprietary Company, Limited, has received a cable message, dated London, January 2, giving the following quotations:—Silver, 2/5 5-16 (official quotation); lead, £17/17/6 (buyers' price); company's shares, £2/4/3 (buyers' price); spelter, £26/5/ (buyers' price); and copper, £76/18/9 (buyers' price).

The Araluen Redbank Company's dredge this week worked 104 hours, and won 38oz 8dwt of gold.

Operations at the Goulma copper mine, which were commenced during the latter portion of last year, have resulted in the completion of the preliminaries necessary to the safe and proper working of the mine. The shaft timbers have been renewed, and a new ladder way completed. A steam winding plant, with headgear and brace, has replaced the old horse gear method, and, as a result, the water gives no trouble. Prospecting operations have been carried on for a few weeks at the 70ft and 140ft levels, and the No. 2 shaft has been sunk to 156ft. The 140ft drive north is now in a full face of sulphides worth 8 per cent. copper, with ore on the footwall side. This drive will connect with the extension of No. 3 shaft at 60ft from the present face. The bottom of the No. 2 shaft is in 2ft 6in of sulphides, with improving widths and values, and the immediate extension of this shaft to the 240ft level is proposed as soon as work commences in the new year, in order to have the development work well ahead, and assure the supply of ore for the furnace.

CLONCURRY COPPER FIELD.

EFFECT OF GOOD COPPER VALUES.

This field in the past has been mainly exploited by Melbourne investors, assisted by English and foreign capitalists, who have brought the Mount Elliott and Hampden-Cloncurry mines to a producing stage. The former company is now on the dividend list, whilst it is expected the latter will next month join the dividend payers.

Indeed, the profits earned by the Hampden Company in the latter part of last year placed it in a position to declare a dividend before this, but the directors some weeks ago announced that in view of their intention to enter upon a vigorous prospecting campaign, they desired to increase the reserve fund materially, hence the payment of the first dividend was postponed for a little while. This reserve fund must have accumulated to a respectable sum. Take the two last monthly outputs.

The November yield of 650 tons of copper, 7382oz silver and 395oz gold, would, with electrolytic copper at £81, give an approximate profit of £37,000, after allowing for depreciation for plant and machinery, whilst the shorter run in December (21 days) produced 441 tons of copper, containing 4317oz silver and 167oz gold, and would yield an approximate net profit of £21,000. Hence the profits of those two months alone would approximate to £58,000. A mine that can earn profits on the basis of over £1000 for each working day of the week is certainly in a fair way to reward its shareholders.

In addition to the Mount Elliott and Hampden-Cloncurry copper mines, in the great Queensland copper belt, the MacGregor mine is reported to have been sold for £100,000, whilst the Mount Cuthbert mine, which has also been opened up, and shows good prospects, is only awaiting the completion of the railway to Mount Cuthbert to enable the directors to start smelting operations. It is claimed by those who have personally inspected the mine that it should not be long, after smelting is started, before this company also joins the ranks of the dividend payers—provided, of course, the red metal maintains a fair price.

Melbourne has also recently secured the Willcox group of mines, the principal of which are the Rosebud and Secret. On the former, a considerable amount of work has been done, and a winch plant installed. Included in the group is the Federal mine, from which regular shipments of ore are being despatched.

Sydney speculators are evidently awakening to the possibilities of the Cloncurry field. They have secured the Mount Oxide mine, the development reports from which show it to possess an exceptionally rich lode—doubtless the richest in Australia. They have now, through the medium of the North Australian Exploration, Limited, secured several properties, such, for instance, as the Mount Lindsay, Mount Lidster, Cameronian, and Eagle leases.

On the Mount Lindsay lease, the North Australian Exploration Co. has done a considerable amount of development work, with satisfactory results, and it is the intention to form a strong company to thoroughly equip and develop the property. The latter is in the advantageous position of being situated within 27 miles of the Marraba Railway Station on the railway line to Cloncurry, whilst the proposed railway line to the MacGregor and Trafalgar mines will be within five miles of the Mount Lindsay lease. It is possible the new company, which is to handle the Mount Lindsay property, will do as the Mount Elliott and Hampden-Cloncurry Companies are doing, namely, secure a group of mines to act as feeders to the parent.

This vast copper field, which has been proved 300 miles long by 100 miles wide embraces many small "shows," which would not warrant the erection of smelters, owing to the difficulty of transit. Only rich ore—20 per cent. and over—can bear the cost of transit. It is contended by men who know the field well that these transit difficulties would be overcome by linking up with the main railway line by means of 2ft tramways, which could be laid at a cheap rate, seeing the level character of the country.

In most cases the lodes in the Cloncurry copper belt carry an appreciable quantity of gold. The Mount Lindsay lode averages 2dwt to the ton of ore. On the eastern portion of the field the richest copper lode carrying gold is the Native Companion, which is owned by the Mount Elliott, Limited. The latter company is carrying out boring operations to prove the downward continuity of the lode, and the cores show the ore to be worth 18dwt per ton.

MINING IN THE STATE.

HILLGROVE, Friday.

The superintendent of the Baker's Creek gold mine reports for the month ending December 31:—"In the north end, No. 11 level, the drive on the middle reef was advanced 38 feet to 91 feet, average width of reef 6 inches, and low in gold values along the last 30 feet. Some 200 tons from driving and stoping work in this section of the mine yielded 160oz 1dwt smeltered gold. On the new footwall reef at No. 15 level the drives were extended to a total distance of 125 feet, average width of reef 9 inches, with free gold still showing in the breakdowns. The starting of the battery run will be mainly on stone from this reef. At No. 16 level the drive for the new pay shoot was advanced 42 feet, total 45 feet, from the starting point. The reef has not yet been entered."

RADIUM.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Kindly grant me space to reply to "A Patient Shareholder," who, in the "Herald" of the 1st inst., charges me with "wilfully misrepresenting the facts." He gives three instances in support of his charge. All three happen to be his mis-statements, not mine:—

(1) "The items of stores, transport, and wages, which 'Sauerkraut' charges as extras under the heading of expenditure are already included in the cost of £30 per ton of concentrates." Wrong. The report clearly states that the £30 is made up of the following items:—Treatment costs, and the cost of mining, crushing, concentrating, and transport from the mine to Woolwich Wharf (see page 7); while salaries, wages, rent on leases, and mine timber are treated as extras 'at mine,' and the following expenses as extras 'at Sydney,' viz.:—Directors' fees, travelling expenses, insurance, general expenses, stores, rates and taxes, interest on purchase money, chemicals, scientist's salary, transport charges, and legal expenses (see balance-sheet).

(2) "A further mis-statement by 'Sauerkraut' is that the present magnetic plant is not large enough to cope with the present output." Wrong. I wrote "expected output," viz., the output now expected of the mine. Compare the statement of the mine manager (page 13), "The magnetic plant has been working satisfactorily, but I would point out that it is not large enough to cope with the capable output of the mine."

(3) "Any sensible shareholder will know that the providing of a further £8000 capital will not alone leave the present asset of radium, 400 mgm., worth £6000, ready for distribution as profits, etc." Wrong. The sensible shareholder will know the managing director's latest statement: "Towards this expenditure (a fully-equipped laboratory) they possessed 400 mgm. of radium bromide, which, at £15 per mgm., was worth £6000." (See press report of last meeting.)

"A Patient Shareholder" has made an unfortunate onrush. He has hurt himself. I am sorry for him. Better luck next time.

I am, etc., SAUERKRAUT.

INTERSTATE CRICKET.

SHEFFIELD SHIELD MATCH.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA DEFEATS VICTORIA BY 68 RUNS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

A heavy shower of rain early on Thursday evening, followed by other slight falls, affected the wicket for the third day's play in the interstate match. Whitty and Mayne resumed and Ryder. 30 runs were added in 24 minutes batting against the bowling of McNaughton tes, then Mayne, who had been missed by Seitz at mid-on, was caught behind the wickets off a skier, Ryder being the bowler. He batted 80 minutes, and hit four fours.

Crawford, who was next, had not scored when he felt for one from Ryder, and was caught at short-stop by Carkeek. Gehrs was next, and, hitting hard, soon ran to double figures. Next he drove one from Ryder over the fence—a grand stroke. He tried to repeat the stroke, but skied the ball over the slip fieldsmen's head for two. When 15, Whitty tipped one from Armstrong into the slips, where Ryder brought off the catch. Hill followed, and after stealing one cleverly, had a sensational over from Armstrong. Off the first ball the bowler missed a hard return, then followed 6, 4, 4, 2, and off the last ball the left-hander was brilliantly caught on the boundary by Brown.

VICTORIA'S SECOND INNINGS.

Requiring 209 runs to win, Seitz and Carkeek commenced Victoria's second innings. Off the first ball from Whitty Mayne caught Carkeek at point, and off the third ball M'Naughton was caught at silly point by Gehrs. Two for none. With M'Naughton's dismissal the players retired for lunch.

On resuming, Ryder took the remainder of Whitty's over, and got him away to leg for 4. Crawford was the other bowler. Baring and Ryder made a short stand, but Armstrong was soon out—caught in the slips. Ransford and Baring added 62 in half an hour; then the former was caught at third man. At the tea adjournment the record was seven wickets for 129.

Whitty and Crawford bowled again after tea, and Baring drove the latter for 4, but the end soon came, and Matthews, who would have batted if there had been any hope, being absent, the innings closed for 140 runs. South Australia thus won by 68 runs.

SPORTING.

THE TURF.

Metropolitan racegoers will this afternoon have the choice of horse-racing at Canterbury Park and pony and galloway racing at Victoria Park; Mentone Racing Club caters for Melbourne sporting folk; Albion Park Jockey Club provides an outing for Brisbane sportsmen; and the Canning Park Turf Club holds its January meeting near Perth (W.A.).

The first racing fixture for the New Year on the suburban courses is that of the Canterbury Park Race Club, which holds its January meeting this afternoon, and has provided an interesting programme for the occasion. The track and surroundings having benefited by the recent favourable weather are at their best, and the management has made ample preparations for the requirements of a large attendance. The transit arrangements include special trains starting from the Central Railway Station at 11.25 a.m. (horses), and 11.50 a.m., 12.34, 12.40, 12.45, 12.57, 1.12, and 1.34 p.m., while the ordinary service on the Belmore line will also be available. The sport commences at 2 p.m. with the Flying Handicap, in which the places may be occupied by Ruby Hampton, Zinita, and Kentucky Girl. Delara, Lord Emily, and Simmereen may pass the judge in order in the Maiden Handicap; Carna, Chid, and Duko may divide the honours in the Nursery Handicap; Selbrook, Calvinia, and Lorn may get home as named in the Park Stakes; Santanno, Pan Out, and Merel may fill the situations in the Canterbury Handicap; and Single, Truxton King, and Barley Water may claim the attention of the judge at the finish of the Welter Handicap.

Tuesday next will be a busy day at the office of the Australian Jockey Club, for at 4 p.m. on that date entries close with the secretary, Mr. C. W. Cropper, for the two leading handicaps of the autumn meeting, and at the same hour the general entries for the A.J.C. Anniversary meeting must be lodged. The well-endowed races of the autumn are the Doncaster Handicap, a handicap sweepstakes of 20 sovs each, 5 forfeit, with 2000 sovs added; the owner of the second horse to receive 400, and the owner of the third 200 sovs from the prize, 1m; and the Sydney Cup, a handicap sweepstakes of 20 sovs each, 5 forfeit, with 5000 sovs added, the owner of the second horse to receive 700, and the third 350 sovs from the prize, 2m. Further liabilities can be avoided on declaration of first forfeit of 1 sov for the Doncaster Handicap and 2 sovs for the Sydney Cup, before 4 p.m. on Tuesday, March 11. Nominations will also be received up to the same hour at the office of the V.R.C., Melbourne; the S.A.J.C., Adelaide; and at the offices of the principal clubs in New Zealand.

The minor events on the card for the A.J.C. Anniversary meeting on the 25th and 27th insts., carry 2500 sovs prize-money, distributed over half a score races, which include a contest for two-year-olds each day, and a hurdle race on Anniversary Day. The prize for the Second Nursery Handicap is 300 sovs, while each of the other races carries 250 sovs, with the exception of the race over the battens, for which 200 sovs has been provided. Good entries have already been received for the leading handicaps—the Challenge and Anniversary—and similar support may confidently be anticipated for the minor events on Tuesday next.

Followers of pony and galloway racing are catered for by the Victoria Park Racing Club this afternoon, and the bill of fare to be played should attract a bumper attendance. The track is excellent going, large fields may be anticipated, and everything foreshadows a pleasant outing. The customary traffic arrangements will be in vogue, special trams from Circular Quay and the Central Railway Station landing visitors at the racecourse gates, while the ordinary service to Zetland will also be available. The sport commences at 2 p.m., and the results of the races may be anticipated as under:—Flying Handicap: Lord Hautboy, Fitz Merv, Cres O. Maiden Handicap: Argofern, Rose Alpine, Uncle Jim. Hurdle Race: Bombardment, Alberto, Marvel Lawn. Fourteen-one Handicap: Bridgefield, Strixia, Thelma. Victoria Park Handicap: Battleship, Aubrey, Resolved. Fourteen-two Handicap: Orchid, Bile Beans, Highlander. Trial Handicap: Circumspect, Teralba, Kenara.

The programme for the Warwick Farm January meeting on the 18th inst. demands the attention of owners and trainers on Monday next, for at 4 p.m. entries close with the secretary, Mr. H. B. Dando. The prize money totals 475 sovs, distributed over six events, of which the Warwick Handicap absorbs 100 sovs, the other events, which include a race for juveniles, being endowed with 75 sovs each.

Of the £11,600 which the W.A.T.C. gave at its annual meeting, P. A. Connolly secured almost a fourth, and practically the whole of the stakes went to Western Australian owners and breeders.

Messrs. Wm. Inglis and Son will hold a sale of blood stock at Payten's Newmarket stables, Randwick, on Tuesday, the 28th inst. (the day after the A.J.C. Anniversary meeting), at which a lengthy catalogue, comprising racehorses in training, brood mares, and untried stock, will be brought under the hammer.

CRICKET.

TO-DAY'S FIXTURES.

This afternoon the eighth round of grade matches will commence, but will not conclude until the 18th instant on account of the New South Wales v South Australia match intervening. At present North Sydney, Redfern, and University are the three leading teams; the firstnamed heading the list with 12 points, the other two being bracketed together with nine points. As the next team on the list has only two points to its credit, it looks as if the winner of the competition will come from the three teams named above. To-day North Sydney will meet Middle Harbour, at North Sydney Oval, and a victory for the Shoremen should result. University should easily hold Petersham, and Redfern will meet Balmain at Redfern. Current form indicates that the former should win, though Balmain may effect a surprise. Burwood and Paddington should provide an interesting match at Pratten Park. This will be the first occasion on which a first grade match will be played on the Ashfield ground. Glebe will meet Sydney, at Rushcutter Bay. AUSTRALIAN ELEVEN.

BOARD OF CONTROL INQUIRY.

SURPRISE AT DELAY.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

It was expected that the committee appointed by the Board of Control to inquire into the allegations made by Mr. Crouch, manager of the last Australian Eleven, against some members of the team, would have met before now, and there is a deal of discussion as to the delay. One member of the committee appointed to inquire into the charges, when asked to-day if anything was being done, said, "I cannot tell you anything, for I have not heard any more about it since the board met. I am surprised that we have not been called upon to inquire into the charges. It is important that there should be no delay."

The matter will be further considered by the Australasian council at a meeting to be held on Monday night.

ALLEGED EMBEZZLEMENT.

William Colin Moir, 25, a native of Victoria, was charged before Mr. A. N. Barnett, S.M., with fraudulently embezzling the sum of £8 [illegible] 6d while he was a clerk in the employ of the Scottish Australian Newspaper Company, Limited, on October 3, 1912, at Sydney.

Alexander Gray, of the company, and also a member of the firm of Gordon and Gotch, said accused was in charge of the [illegible] in Hunter-street, where the paper was published. Accused's books were in order, except that the cheque was not paid in to the firm's accounts. The money had since been returned to the firm.

In answer to the magistrate, witness stated that there were other defalcations for which accused was responsible, but the company had also been reimbursed for those amounts.

Moir said there was no time fixed for him to pay money into the bank. He paid it in when he considered there was sufficient to need banking. The £8 [illegible] 6d had been refunded to the company. He did not intend to defraud.

Accused declined to answer a question as to whether he had paid back £85 to the firm, and the magistrate advised him that he was taking a foolish course in refusing to answer.

Accused: "I will admit that I handed some money to my solicitor."

The magistrate: "I will advise you to answer the question wholly, or not at all."

Accused: "Yes, I have paid back £85, and also given [illegible] promissory notes for the balance of a further amount, making in all £1[illegible]."

Questioned by the magistrate when £84 was paid into the bank, and the cheque for £8 [illegible] 6d was not included, Moir said it is possible that the £8 [illegible] 6d was part of the £84 paid in." Later, however, he admitted he knew it was not.

On the advice of his solicitor, Mr. Briner, Moir withdrew his plea of not guilty, and pleaded guilty. He asked to be dealt with leniently.

Mr. Barnett, S.M.: "I intended to give him the benefit of the First Offenders Act, but I shall adjourn the case until Tuesday next, at 2 o'clock. Meanwhile I will consider the new aspect which has arisen in the case. The accused did not adopt the proper plea, and he went into the witness box and tried to deceive me."

DROWNED IN LAGOON.

NON-SWIMMER AT NARRABEEN.

At about 5.15 p.m. on Thursday, George Henderson, 25, a labourer, of Killarney House, Narrabeen, and Joseph Stanley, went for a swim in the Narrabeen lagoon. Neither of them could swim.

Stanley went into shallow water on one side of the stream. Henderson entered from the other side, where the depth of water proved to be about eight feet.

The latter at once got into difficulty. He struggled frantically; then threw up his hands and sank.

Stanley went for the assistance of two men Bentley and Brown, who dived for and recovered the body. Dr. Clay pronounced life extinct.

On the application of Detective Pearce, Adams was remanded to appear at the Paddington Police Court on the 9th inst. Bail was not applied for.

TRADES AND LABOUR.

GAS EMPLOYEES' OFFICERS.

At Thursday night's meeting of the Gas Employees' Council the following office-bearers were elected:—President, Mr. W. Farrell (meter readers' branch); vice-president, Mr. C. Lucas (lamplighters' branch); trustees, Messrs. R. Shead, R. Mason, and W. Robertson; delegates to the Labour Council, Messrs. R. Mason, W. Farrell, and S. Rawlin.

SHEET METALWORKERS.

The interstate conference of sheet metalworkers, which was held during the week at the Trades Hall, decided to include as members of the Sheet Metalworking Industrial Union of Australasia persons wheresoever employed in the production or assisting to produce any article in connection with the tinsmithing, sheet metalworking, gas meter-making, or canister-making industries. The objects of the federation were set out in general rules (subject to confirmation by the unions) as follows:—

1. To uphold the rights of combination of labour, and to improve, protect, and foster the best interests of its members.
2. To promote industrial peace and efficiency by all amicable means, such as conciliation, arbitration, or the establishment of permanent boards. (a) To prevent strikes or lockouts. (b) When differences do occur, to obtain their settlement by just and equitable methods. (c) To establish branches of the union. (d) To open up regular correspondence with kindred societies in all parts of the world on trade matters; and (e) to establish a fund for the carrying out of the foregoing objects, and to foster co-operation where practicable.

The headquarters of the federation will be in Melbourne. The Federal Council will be composed of two representatives from each State, irrespective of the numbers of financial members, and who are to be appointed annually at the first meeting in January each year of the branch. Each State is to conduct its own election: the result to be in the hands of the general secretary at least seven days prior to the annual meetings of the council.

UNITED LABOURERS.

Mr. D. Culliney, general secretary of the United Labourers' Union (the head office of which is at Melbourne), has written to Mr. A. Vernon, the secretary of the United Labourers' Protective Society, asking that his union should elect two delegates to the national executive to give effect to the ballot in favour of amalgamation. The letter went on to say that the Victorian Government had granted the 9s minimum on railway construction work, affecting 2000 men, and it expresses the hope that, in the near future, there would be one big union of Australian labourers.

RAILWAY WORKERS' CONFERENCE.

The annual conference of the Railway Workers and General Labourers' Association of New South Wales was continued at the Trades Hall yesterday, under the presidency of Mr. Hugh Sullivan. It was decided, after lengthy debate, that horseowners who employ drivers could still remain in the union, but that no tickets of membership should be sold to business people and hotelkeepers. Much time was spent discussing a question whether district secretaries in remote parts (especially at Yanco and the Federal capital, where large areas have to be covered to organise scattered gangs) should be paid. This matter has to be further discussed. A motion of condolence was passed to the widow of the late Mr. T. White, ex-secretary of the A.W.U., whose death occurred at Adelaide. The conference will sit again to-day and also next week.

TELEGRAPHIC SERVICE.

The question of hours worked in the Telegraph Department is a matter that is causing a good deal of trouble. The recent Royal Commission decided that six hours should be a maximum day's work; but the Sydney men say they have been working 6½ hours for a long time. A case was stated for the Arbitration Court, and a claim was made of six hours as a maximum. The department's reply was that the introduction of the new system would obviate the difficulty. The gravamen of the complaint against the new system is that it imposes harder conditions on the men, as yet makes it impossible for the same amount of work to be done as under the old system. This was demonstrated during the week. Although business has been slack, it is stated that all the staff, and between 20 and 30 extra hands, have been required to keep the work up to date. On Thursday last four lines had to be closed down to allow the men off for the statutory half-hour meal relief. There is, therefore, much concern about next week, as about 20 men will be away on leave.

Complaints are also made about delay in recognising the claims of a large number of operators to promotion. Over 40 Sydney operators are said to be due for promotion. But nothing has yet been done. The men also complain that the new system effectively cuts them off from any chance of recreation.

A letter, signed by a large number of the temporary hands, has been sent to the Postmaster-General, in which an application is made for an increase in wages from 10s to 12s 6d per day. It is explained that some of these men have been in the service for four years and upwards.

LABOUR COUNCIL'S PRESIDENT.

Mr. Charles Fox, who has just been elected president of the Sydney Labour Council, is a native of Windsor, on the Hawkesbury River. For the past 30 years he has been intimately connected with trades unionism and the Labour movement generally, but it is only 25 years since he first held office, being then elected to the post of president of the Operative Bricklayers' Union. At that time it was not the custom for the retiring president to seek re-election, so some little time elapsed between his various holdings of the presidency of his union. He has also held the office of secretary of the union.

About 16 years ago Mr. Fox was elected as a delegate to the Labour Council. Some years afterwards he was appointed chairman of the organising committee of the council, a position he is still holding. In May, 1910 the council made him a presentation in recognition of his services in organising work.

Mr. Fox was vice-president of the council a number of years ago, and opposed Mr. Riley, who is now a member of the Federal Parliament. Mr. Fox has also been associated with the eight hour committee, but has not held office since 1905. He also was a representative on the first wages board in connection with the bricklayers.

CASUALTIES.

KNOCKED DOWN BY A TRAM.

William Donolley, 33, cab proprietor, residing in William-street, Bathurst, was crossing George-street, near Liverpool-street, when he was knocked down by a tram, and the wheel passed over his left foot. The Civil Ambulance rendered first aid, and took him to Sydney Hospital, where he was admitted suffering from a crushed foot.

KICKED BY A HORSE.

John Davis, 13, residing at Bexley, was assisting to harness a horse at some stables in Bridge-road, Pyrmont, when he was kicked by the horse in the side. The Civil Ambulance rendered first aid, and took him to Sydney Hospital, where he was admitted suffering from fractured ribs, internal hemorrhage, and abdominal injuries.

BOY AND REVOLVER.

LITHGOW, Friday.

A boy named Davidson, about 12 years old, was playing with a revolver in the main street this morning, when the weapon went off. The bullet traversed the whole of the palm of one of his hands, inflicting a nasty flesh wound, but without severing any of the muscles.

RACING ACCIDENT.

LITHGOW, Friday.

An accident befel J. Wade at Donnybrook races on New Year's Day. Wade was rather too anxious to see his son win the Brush Hurdles Race, and wandered on to the track to see more clearly. He failed to keep clear of the animal ridden by a competitor, and was knocked down. He was taken to the hospital, where it was found that a small bone in one of his legs was fractured.

TWO BROTHERS DROWNED.

ADELAIDE, Friday.

Between December 31 and January 2, Murray Antony, aged 22 years, and Manuel, aged 15 years, were drowned in Pike Creek, near Renmark. They were swimming two horses across the stream in order to take part in a gymkhana at Loxton. The elder youth could swim, but his brother could not. It is supposed that the younger boy got into difficulties, and took his brother down with him.

HOSPITAL PATIENT DROWNED.

WELLINGTON, Friday.

The body of the man found last night floating in the river was taken to the morgue at the hospital, where it was identified as that of James Lyons, who had been a patient until Saturday last. Since then he had been missed by his mate. It is surmised that the deceased fell over the bank in the dark. He was a Victorian, 47 years of age.

WIDESPREAD RAIN.

THUNDERSTORM IN THE CITY.

HEAVY HAIL AT GEORGE'S RIVER.

The extensive low pressure which on Thursday covered the central part of Australia has moved rapidly eastward, and is now centrally situated to the south-east of the continent. As a result light to heavy rains have fallen throughout the whole of the State with the exception of the south-west corner, and in parts of the northern districts. These falls were in instances accompanied by thunder. The maximum registrations occurred in the south, where Kiandra had 180 points, Tumut 178, Moranbarell 143, Tumberumba 132, and Dandaloo, on the central western plain, 135 points.

The temperature on Thursday over the western districts showed a slight falling off; but in the north-east an increase was noticeable; only at two stations did the mercury extend beyond the hundred degrees. Owing to the arrival of southerly winds in the south-western corner of the State yesterday morning the readings showed a considerable decrease, compared with those at 9 a.m. on Thursday. The chief being Wentworth, with a drop of 20 degrees, Hay 18, and Deniliquin 15.

At 9 a.m. yesterday it was cloudy to unsettled generally, and showers or light rain were falling at many stations south of the Lachlan River, and at a few isolated places elsewhere.

A thunderstorm of some severity broke over the city at 3 p.m. The temperature at that time was 90 degrees, and within a few minutes it dropped to 75 degrees, a fall of 15 degrees. Further south the storm was at its best. One of the Weather Bureau officials who was taking observations at George's River, reports that some of the hail was at least one inch in diameter. The storm raged terrifically there for about 15 minutes, doing much damage to the animals.

RAIN IN QUEENSLAND.

BRISBANE.—A private wire received at Brisbane states that the rainfall on Thursday at Longreach was 3 inches, at Rio 385 points, and at Kerfield 3 inches. Light rains have fallen throughout the district, and it is still threatening.

BATHURST.—About 30 points of rain have been registered as the result of intermittent showers, which commenced on Thursday night. The grain and the potato crops will be assisted materially.

BREWARRINA.—A good rainstorm occurred on Thursday afternoon. Up to 9 a.m. on Friday the registrations were: Brewarrina 30 points, Booroomа 45, Mouralue 60, Terewah 60, Narran Hut 37, Bokhara 80, Milroy 148, Milroy Woolshed 176, Moorabilla 90, Tara 90, Corella 80, Biree Hut 163, Talawanta 40, Weilmoringle 45, Weilmoringle Bore 40, Kelngle 30, Quantambone 100.

COONAMBLE.—Sixty-eight points fell during last night's storm. Quambone had 25 points, Gular 71 points, Billeroy 58 points.

COOTAMUNDRA.—Heavy rain fell on Thursday and Friday. Cootamundra had 136 points, Brawlin 105, Wallendbeen 87, Landgrove 146, Cowcumbla 101, Woodbury 131, Shaftesbury 147. The storm knocked down crops, only half the stripping being finished.

LITHGOW.—Five points were registered yesterday morning, and light showers fell during the afternoon.

MANILLA.—The rainfall record at Manilla post-office during the last year was the lowest on record since the rain chart has been kept. In Manilla the total was 1068 points. The next lowest was in 1881, when 1082 points were registered.

PARKES.—A smart thunderstorm swept over the town on Thursday evening, followed by light steady rain, which continued at intervals during the night. About 87 points fell locally. The weather continues unsettled, with showers in parts of the district.

SOUTHERN COAL TRADE.

A BRISK YEAR.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

Now that the miners have resumed employment after the Christmas holidays, work at the collieries is again of a brisk nature. For current pay Corrimal has eight and South Bulli nine days. A large number of employees of both mines failed to respond to the call of work after resumption following the holidays. Mount Pleasant worked nine days for the pay, having the Christmas holidays. The mine's output for the two days following was small, as a goodly number of employees were absent. There are several miners leaving Mount Pleasant, some twelve having put in their notice, saying they were dissatisfied with the work and conditions. There is also dissatisfaction in the miners' lodge in reference to several claims for deficiency being sent along to the district some time since without any result or word in reply. Holiday week has been one of very broken work. At Mount Kembla mine it was understood that there was to be work on all days except the actual holidays. A considerable number went away on Christmas Eve, and on resumption there were a good many vacant places. This week only two days were worked, repairs having been undertaken in the latter part. There are between 39 and 40 men less working than there were three months ago. Union membership shows a decrease of about 40. This is due to men leaving, and few new hands coming along.

The past year has been for work an outstanding one in the record of mine averages, being 10 days per fortnight during the holidays. The steamer Sydney loaded 1300 tons of coal for Melbourne; Urilla followed, and received 1300 tons of coke for Queensland; and Burwah, 750 tons coke for the same port. Koonda loaded a part cargo of coal for Melbourne. The Ouraka is expected on the 7th for 3700 tons of coal.

THE GALE BENEFIT MATINEE.

On Tuesday afternoon next an elaborate benefit matinee entertainment will be given at the National Amphitheatre in aid of Mrs. Gale and Little Sadie, bereaved by the fatal accident to the late Sam Gale on December 13 last. The Australian Vaudeville Artists' Federation, the Federated Theatrical Employees, and the Australian Musicians' Association are supporting this charitable movement, and leading artists from several theatres will appear. The list will include Misses Grace Palotta, Blanche Browne, Vera Pearce, Messrs. Leslie Holland, Frank Greene, Jack Cannot, Edward Nable, and other artists, as well as favourite artists from the Brennan-Fuller Company, and Mr. J. C. Bain's Company. A strong programme is assured.

TOWN HALL ORGAN RECITAL.

This evening at the Town Hall the City Organist will give one of his popular grand opera organ recitals, the subject chosen being Gounod's "Faust." Mr. Ernest Truman will play nearly the whole of the opera in the course of this interesting recital, and the progress of Goethe's tragic story will be explained on the annotated programme.

THE QUESTION OF THE DAY.

The question of to-day, of to-morrow, and of every succeeding day, is

HAVE YOU USED PEARS' SOAP? If you have not, you have not done your duty by your skin and complexion. If, on the other hand—that is, on both hands, and on the face, and on the skin generally—you HAVE used PEARS', you can feel happy, for you will have done the best that possibly can be done for the skin's health and beauty. There can be no question about that.

PEARS has been making beautiful complexions for nearly 120 years.

AMUSEMENTS.

CRITERION THEATRE.

"Milestones" of Life to the number of 52 are passed by the wayfarers in the new comedy at the Criterion Theatre, where crowded audiences watch the strange process of "growing old" so searchingly illustrated by the dramatists and the actors who carry out their conception. Mr. Julius Knight and the artists of the J. C. Williamson Company show all the pathos, humour, and sentiment of the story. There will be a matinee on Wednesday.

THEATRE ROYAL.

"Faust" at the Theatre Royal is set out on a spectacular scale which embraces a new and effective prologue, showing old Faust (Mr. Eardley Turner) distributing alms in Nuremberg, and the declaration of war against France, with choral hymns and operatic ensembles. Mr. Robertshaw draws a fine portrait of Mephisto as an easy mannered prince of this world, and Miss Beatrice Terry as Marguerite and Mr. Eric Maxon as the lover assist in the tragedy. There will be the usual matinee on Wednesday.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

"Florodora" continues to draw great audiences at Her Majesty's Theatre, the central attractions being the gorgeous tropical scenery, the popularity of such songs of sentiment as "Silver Star of Love" (Blanche Browne) and "The Shade of the Palms" (Frank Greene), and of such vivacious numbers as "Tact" (Grace Palotta), and "The Millionaire's Song and Dance" (Mr. Leslie Holland), and the humour of the lecture scene on Bumps by Jack Cannot. On Wednesday there will be a matinee.

PALACE.—"THE PARISH PRIEST."

This evening, at the Palace Theatre, Mr. Allen Doone will produce Daniel L. Hart's three-act domestic drama "The Parish Priest," a play which has won a reputation throughout America. Tableaux showing the lawn of Dr. Cassidy's house and other scenes have been painted, and the new cast will include Rev. John Whalen, Allen Doone; Michael Sullivan, Tom Buckley; Katherine Corrigan, Ethel Grist; Agnes Cassidy, Ethel Bashford; Frank Dougherty, Clive Farnham; Dr. Cassidy, Onslow Edgeworth; Dr. Welsh, Ronald Riley; Helen Durkin (Father Whalen's ward), Edna Keeley; James Welsh, Frank Cullenane.

ADELPHI THEATRE.

There will be a matinee performance at 2 o'clock to-day of "The Monk and the Woman," a story of ancient France, in which the George Marlow Company shows the cloistered monastery with Brother Paul (Mr. George Cross) in charge of a fair Ward of the King (Miss Nellie Bramley), and many subsequent encounters with the gay monarch himself (Mr. Kay Souper) and Prince Henri (Mr. Thos. Lloyd). The earthquake effect closes the story.

NATIONAL AMPHITHEATRE.

At the National Amphitheatre new artists will join the Brennan-Fuller Vaudeville Company at to-day's matinee, namely John Fuller, the Eight Bohemians, and Zit. The new programme will further include Jules Garrison and his Roman Maids in a new act of quip and song, La France in her beauteous art poses, and Pedrini, the astonishing foot-equilibrist, assisted by Toby, the educated baboon.

BUD ATKINSON'S CIRCUS.

At the matinee (2.30) and evening performances to-day of Bud Atkinson's American Circus and Wild West in Moore Park, the Australian and American horsemen undertake to ride any unbroken horses brought to the grounds. The marvellous desperado act, and a host of sensational attractions, will keep all lovers of equestrian feats and bush life delighted with a constantly changing exhibition.

SYDNEY HOSPITAL FETE.

Elaborate arrangements are completing in respect to the fete promoted by Mr. Hugh D. M'Intosh to assist in the upkeep of Sydney Hospital. The carnival of February 11, promises, from a spectacular standpoint, to eclipse anything of the kind previously arranged. Several new features are promised, including the battle of flowers, which will be arranged in conjunction with the floral motor parade. Mr. Geo. H. Williams, organising secretary, reports that a highly satisfactory sale of art union tickets continues.

"THE DANDIES" AT MANLY.

"The Dandies" at Eden Gardens, Manly, have proved an exceptionally good draw to the visitors at Manly, and have played to crowded houses. The entertainments are constantly varied.

WEST'S PICTURES.

To-day at West's two popular picture theatres, the Olympia and the Glaciarium, Miss Asta Nielson returns to revisit, in photographic guise, these glimpses of the moon in "When the Mask Falls." Miss Nielson, who has been aptly termed the Bernhardt of the cinematograph, has seldom been seen to greater advantage than in this thrilling drama, which momentarily lifts the greyness with which our view of the world is usually veiled, and shows us the romance of life, its lights and darkness undreamed of in every day prose. De Groen's Vice-Regal Orchestra will discourse a programme of musical selections.

SPENCER'S PICTURES.

The table of the magic carpet has become a reality to the fortunate citizens of the twentieth century, who without expense, seated quietly in comfortable fauteuils, can visit what country they please as though transported thither by enchantment, while culturally treed from the anxieties which usually attended those who trafficked with the Sons of the Djinn. Large audiences have thus been enabled during the week to travel instantaneously to India and by the aid of Kinemacolour at Spencer's Lyceum Theatre, behold with unbounded interest the Oriental pomps and splendours of the Durbar. This afternoon Humpty Dumpty, a delightfully amusing pantomime, will be screened by the new process.

CRYSTAL PALACE.

Despite the recent outbreak of fire at the Crystal Palace, which wreaked such devastation among the films, no alterations have been made by way of allowing the performances to be interrupted. On Monday next an interesting programme will be presented, abounding in comedy and with one thoroughly romantic drama, entitled "When Woman Loves," which deals with the passionate love of a gipsy queen for a young officer. Various other productions of a less serious nature, including "Mixed Sample Trunks," "Cook's Bid for Fame," "Williams' Weekly," and "Paying the Board Bill," will contribute their assistance towards dissolving care in a gale of laughter.

J. D. WILLIAMS' THEATRES.

"Hubby Does the Cooking," "Alkali Ike's Pants," "Absent-minded Mr. Brown," "Warwick Chronicle," "The Emerald Necklace," and "His Auto's First Trip," will be shown at the Lyric on Monday.

At the Colonial will be "The Redskin Raiders," "What's the Joke?" "My Baby," "Gaumont Graphic," "Cheyenne Frontier Day," and "Rube's Mistake."

A sparkling programme, including "Polidor's Inheritance," "Into the Unknown," "Topical Budget," "Patriotism," and "The Clubman and the Crook," will be screened at the Empress.

ENGLISH AGENCY.—The Undersigned, established upwards of 80 years, confine themselves exclusively to a General Commission Business, are well acquainted with Australian requirements, and possess special facilities for purchasing goods to the best advantage in the English and Continental markets.

Indents should be accompanied by 5 p.c. remittances, or bank letters of credit, to cover full trade discounts. Account sales of produce under consignment rendered promptly, and net proceeds remitted as instructed to order.

The Shipping Department has been largely developed of late years, and where indents are sent direct to manufacturers the shipment and insurance of the goods are effected upon the most favourable terms.

Sydney, 18th December, 1912.

IN THE MATTER OF THE INCOME TAX (MANAGEMENT) ACT, 1912.

NOTICE is hereby given, under section 20 of the Income Tax (Management) Act, 1912, that Returns of Income received during the year 1912 for the purposes of the assessment of Income Tax for the year 1913 are required to be furnished to the Commissioners of Taxation, at their office, George-street North, Sydney, on or before the eighth day of February, 1913, and all persons who are in receipt of income, and all persons liable under the provisions of the above Acts in any representative capacity to furnish returns for the purposes aforesaid, are hereby informed that the prescribed Forms of Returns are now available and (except those for Companies) may be obtained on application at any Post Office, Police Office, Customs-house, Railway Station, and the Office of any Clerk of Petty Sessions in New South Wales, Stamp Duties Office, Phillip-street, Sydney, or at the Office of the Department of Taxation, George-street North, Sydney.

Forms for Companies can be obtained on application at the Stamp Duties Office, Phillip-street, Sydney, or at the Taxation Office, George-street North, Sydney.

All persons carrying on any business, including grazing or farming of every description (whether the land used in this connection be Crown lease or Freehold), trade, or profession on their own account, or who are in receipt of Income from rents of property, are required to furnish Income Returns irrespective of the amount of their income; but unless demanded by notice in writing from the Commissioners of Taxation, a return of Income in the case of a person in receipt of salary or wages only, and who has not previously been a taxpayer, is not required if the gross annual amount of such salary or wages does not exceed £200.

All employers of labour, whether they themselves are liable to make Income Tax Returns or not, are required to furnish to the Commissioners of Taxation the name, occupation, and address of each and every employee whose salary or wage for the year 1912 aggregated £100 or upwards.

Special attention is called to the fact that owing to recent legislation ALL INCOME derived from GRAZING and FARMING of every description, or from RENTS of property, or from the USE, OWNERSHIP or CULTIVATION of all classes of land in any way, is LIABLE TO TAX, and notwithstanding that the land used in this connection may be subject to a LAND TAX, MUNICIPAL or SHIRE Rate.

Public attention is particularly called to the following facts, viz.: That a penalty not exceeding Twenty Pounds is imposed on any person neglecting to furnish the Return required of him within the time above mentioned and that any person failing to furnish such Return is not relieved from liability to the penalty by reason only that a notice to furnish the Return may not have been received by, or that the prescribed Form may not have been delivered to, such person.

All owners of taxable lands subject to mortgage should furnish particulars of every such mortgage, in order that they may derive the benefit of any deduction to which they may be entitled in respect of the interest on the mortgage of their lands, including improvements thereon.

Forms of the prescribed Return (Form K) may be obtained on application at the Offices of the Commissioners of Taxation, or the Commissioner for Stamp Duties, and should be furnished on or before the eighth day of February, 1913, before mentioned.

L. S. SPILLER,
J. W. HOLLIMAN,
Two of the Commissioners of Taxation.

The ground floor contains public bar (39ft 8in x 20ft 3in), private bar, billiard-room, four bar parlours, and offices, etc.

The first floor contains dining-room (40ft 9in x 18ft) and servery, drawing-room, reading-room, smoking-room, nine bedrooms, with linen press, ample bathroom, and lavatory accommodation.

The second floor contains private sitting or dining room, 13 bedrooms, 2 servants' bedrooms, together with linen press, bathrooms, and lavatories.

Passenger and goods lifts, electric lighting, and good hot-water service are installed.

The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted. Deposit, by marked cheque, for 10 per cent. of the first year's rent to be enclosed.

THE ORIGINAL STOTT.

Twenty-seven years ago Mr. Sydney Stott commenced the FIRST BUSINESS COLLEGE in Sydney in Victoria Arcade. In 1909 he purchased the finest building for teaching purposes in Sydney at 70 PITT-STREET, every room being twenty-one feet high, and having the best light and ventilation procurable.

INDISPUTABLE ADVANTAGES OFFERED BY STOTT'S.

1. Everybody knows that Mr. Sydney Stott was the Founder of Business Education in Australia.
2. Our College is not merely a local one, but is an Australian Institution, having branches on the same lines in Melbourne, Adelaide, Brisbane, Perth, Auckland, and Dunedin.
3. We teach two Systems of Shorthand. The Pitmanic System and the Gregg System, and students attending the College have the advantage of the choice of two systems. The Gregg System is very easy to learn, to write, and to read, and is very largely used in America and on the Continent.
4. For all who qualify we obtain an excellent appointment. We make no charge for this service.
We have placed over 13,000 youths and young ladies in good positions and Government Departments during the last 27 years, and can do the same for your boy or girl.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS DESTROYED BY DANNEBROG.

A BLESSING TO WOMANKIND.

MADAME FROKJAR, of 105 Pitt-street, Sydney, is known as a benefactor to womankind. Why? The answer is simple, and lies in the word DANNEBROG, a word famous throughout the Commonwealth as an incomparable remedy for Superfluous Hairs. Madame FROKJAR was once a popular masseuse, known even at FEDERAL GOVERNMENT HOUSE, Melbourne. Her pity for women suffering from Superfluous Hairs led her to practise with DANNEBROG, which she had brought with her from Northern Europe. Dannebrog is a delicate highly sensitive remedy, as genuine as truth itself, and as pure as morning dew. Its effect on hair is remarkable, as hundreds of grateful clients freely testify. They refer to Dannebrog as a blessing to womankind. Only one fee, and success shown before payment. Country clients treated by post. Consultations and pamphlets free.

"LET HER NOT WALK IN THE SUN."

"Let her not walk in the sun" was Hamlet's advice to Ophelia. This shows that Hamlet knew what had the power to mar the beauty of woman. But in these enlightened days woman can afford to laugh at the wisdom of the Prince of Denmark. With impunity she may golf and motor, hunt and yacht, and frolic in the surf, knowing full well that Valaze, Dr. Lykuski's Skin Food and Beautifier will put to rout every freckle, will dispel tan and sallowness, and restore clearness and whiteness to the skin, and will, within from a fortnight to a month of the first application, recreate a complexion that has lost every claim to the name. It will also refine the skin's texture and prevent the inroad of lines and wrinkles. Price 3/6 and 6/6 a jar, postage 6d.

An equally interesting speciality will be found in Novena Sunproof and Wind-proof Creme, which shields the skin from the sun as well as the wind, and prevents as Valaze removes—sunburn, freckles, tan, and sallowness, and cracking and chapping of the skin, due to heat, wind, or weather, 2/ and 3/6, postage 4d.

Valaze Soap is perfect for toilet use. It contains many of the properties of the Valaze Skin Food, and will be found quite different to any other soap in soothing, cleansing, and stimulating the most sensitive skin. Price 2/2 posted.

Valaze Lip Lustre prevents cracking and chapping of the lips, protects the delicate membrane of the lips, and imparts a natural colouring which cannot be displaced by biting or wetting; 2/ and 3/, postage 3d.

Novena Hair Destroyer instantly removes the hair without the slightest detriment to the complexion. After application Novena Hair Destroyer leaves a delightfully cool sensation which is so different to the usual effect of other depilatories. Price 5/6, postage 6d.

Write for Mme. Rubinstein's Book, "Beauty in the Making," which will be sent to any address on receipt of 3d for postage. Valaze preparations obtainable from all Chemists, or direct from Helena Rubinstein, Prop., Ltd., Dept. D, 158 Pitt-street, Sydney, or 274 Collins-street, Melbourne.

A SIMPLE RECIPE FOR CLEARING THE COMPLEXION

Exposure to hot winds and sun makes the nerves and muscles of the face tired and lifeless, and the skin shrivelled, wrinkled, and unhealthy.

If anyone with a sallow, blotchy, wrinkled, or pimply complexion will only take a little trouble in following the directions here given they will find a marvellous improvement in their complexion. Get some Purittol Wax from the chemist or draper, and apply at night, washing off in the morning with warm water and soap. Then lap a little cold water ten times upon the face with the hands, allowing it to get thoroughly round the closed eyes. The treatment should be followed out in every detail to ensure success, and undoubtedly accounts for many of the clear complexions so much admired by those who do not yet know the secret. See that you get the right kind; it will not injure the most delicate complexions. It is also a splendid application for cleansing the little pores and keeping the skin healthy and free from blackheads, a little should be applied, and the dirt removed by gently rubbing with a soft cloth.

A TRY TELLS WHY.

If your skin is rough or muddy, or your complexion not too clear, the judicious use of ... will do much to hide ... defects; but a woman is foolish indeed to risk doing more harm than good by using any powder but the very best.

NARCILIA.

A touch of "Bouquet Narcilia" Beauty Powder will work wonders with rough skins and bad complexions. It is pure and healthful, and gives that smooth, velvety appearance to the skin that is so irresistibly attractive. Ladies who have once tried it use no other.

BEAUTY POWDER.

A touch of the "right sort" of Powder cools and refreshes during the hot weather, and at the same time adds to the attractiveness of a good complexion. But it is important to choose the "right sort," as the "wrong sort" ... can do no good, and may do untold harm.

IS THE BEST.

You can make no mistake by asking for "Bouquet Narcilia" Beauty Powder that pure and healthful creation from Paris. It will delight you as well as those with whom you come into contact, and the dainty way in which it is got up is in keeping with all its other qualities.
